CONNECTICUT TWENTY-THIRD IN MOTOR REGISTRATION

Ranked in the order of total registrations of motor vehicles, Connecticut stands twenty-third among the states of the Union. Nine states of large population, Georgia, Tennessee, Maryland, West Virginia, Louisiana, South Carolina, Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi have less motor vehicles registered than Connecticut. Sixteen states of smaller populations take rank after Connecticut. Nebraska and Colorado are the only states with less inhabitants than Connecticut which have more motor vehicles. Hartford and New Haven, each, have more automobile owners than there are in the entire state of Nevada, and almost as many as in Delaware.

At the end of last year, 189,566 motor vehicles had been registered in Connecticut for 1923. The 200,000 mark was passed early in July this year and indications are that the total registrations for 1924 will reach 225,000. In other words, if all the cars registered in Connecticut were to be operated on the public roads of Connecticut, exclusive of city streets, at one time, there would be one for every 328 feet of roadway throughout the entire state. If all had set out with the purpose of covering a fixed distance, a car at the head of the line moving along lazily at an unreasonably low speed, would tie up the whole procession or force the thousands of cars behind to turn out to pass it, a practice which while often necessary, is one that contributes to a large percentage of the accidents reported to the state motor vehicle department. These two practices, those of extremely slow driving and passing other cars as well at excessive speed, are becoming more serious problems as the number of motor vehicles increases.

Marriage License in Providence.

A marriage license was issued at the office of the city clerk in Providence Thursday to George Edmund Bailey, 106 Union street, New London, salesman, and Miss Harriet Newel Albee, graduate nurse, 234 Broad street, Norwich.

LEBANON SUIT FOR ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS

Saturday morning in Lebanon Center, Deputy Sheriff Oscar D. Maine of Norwich, jailer of the New London county jail, attached the store and real estate of Wilbur L. L. Spencer of Lebanon Center, in a suit for damages of $25,000 brought by Earl Crane also of that town. It is charged by Crane that for three years Spencer has alienated the affections of his wife, Nellie Murray Crane. O. L. Pultz and F. F. Taylor furnished bonds in $15,000 to release the attachment on the stock in the store. The case will be heard in the New London county superior court the first Tuesday in November.

Crane has been employed by Myron Hoxie as a farm hand since February last. Mrs. Crane is a clerk at the Spencer store. In a statement made Saturday afternoon Earl Crane, plaintiff in the case, said that he was married at Harwick, Vt., March 1, 1919, after which he and his wife came to Salem, this state to work on a farm. Over two years ago they began to work for Mr. Spencer and the husband left that job to become janitor of the Lyman Memorial High school following its opening.

In the spring he went to work for Mr. Hoxie and he later left the Spencer house. Crane alleges that he saw enough to warrant him in his belief that his wife and Spencer were far from being strangers and he knew of instances when the two went away together, further confirming his suspicions. Crane said that he is 27 years old and his wife 29 years. Spencer is nearly 70 years old.

His version of the case Mr. Spencer declared that there was nothing wrong. The woman in the case, Mrs. Crane is a war bride and a graduate nurse. She formerly lived in Hardwick, Vt., and Crane came from West Lebanon, N. H. During a furlough from the navy he married Nellie Murray. After the close of the World War the Cranes went to work for F. W. Ames in Salem, Conn. Mr. Spencer was also working there at that time. Later Mr. Ames discharged all the help and this left the young couple up against trying times. As Mr. Spencer had a home in Lebanon occupied only by himself at times and his grandson, he proposed to the Cranes that they come to live with him and care for him during the remainder of his life. He promised a substantial reward in return. He told of Crane leaving his house and jobbing around since he lost his place at the high school. Mrs. Crane continued as clerk in the store. "Mrs. Crane is a good woman," said Mr. Spencer, "and I have no fear of the outcome of the coming trial."

HUMAN FLY CLIMBED BUT GOT SMALL REWARD

George Polley, the human fly, demonstrated that nerve, and iron grip in his hands and some acrobatic ability were all that is needed to scale the court house, for he climbed up to the building and the tower at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon before an immense throng that filled Union square and all the adjacent streets. The nervy climber threw in a stunt or two for good measure, swinging by his arms from the cornice and standing on his head at a couple of advantageous points.

A collection was taken among the crowd. It was understood that Polley and his managers expressed considerable dissatisfaction with the way the Norwich crowd responded with coin of the realm in return for the free show.

Found Drunk by Roadside.

An automobile driver notified local police headquarters Sunday night about 10.30 o'clock that he had passed an intoxicated man lying alongside the Norwich and Westerly highway a couple of miles below the city line. The man was brought to police headquarters by Sheriff Michael Nolan of Preston and Officer Patrick Shahan of the local force. He gave his name as Daniel Sullivan and his age as 50. He will be presented in the Preston town court on a charge of intoxication.

GRISWOLD POTATO KING EARNED NEW TITLE

Daniel Morgan, the potato king of Griswold, has a new title, that of King of Feasts.

In honor of his son, Benjamin, who is on a vacation at the Morgan homestead, Mr. Morgan gave a clam bake to a large company of his friends and neighbors last week.

Fred H. Gilbert was in charge of the bake and with waving arms and stentorian voice, ordered his willing subjects about until he had assembled all the necessary equipment for a delicious dinner. When the stones were piping hot the professor packed the bake. Then the rabble were spread under the big maple tree, with all the good things Daniel knows how to produce. Mr. Gilbert opened the bake at the scientific moment and such juicy clams as he produced would make an epicure smile. Corn roasted to just the right taste—ah; we are hungry now! If anyone in town wants a successful clambake ask Professor Gilbert. He knows how to produce it every time. One of the women present eat so much it took the combined efforts of two husky young men to help her away from the table.

If Dan "loves his neighbor as himself" he will have another dinner soon, topped with the same kind of luscious watermelons. Guests were present from Newton Centre, Mass., Pachaug, Jewett City and Lisbon.

Well Baby Conference

A well child conference is to be held Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Grange hall, Colchester, from 2 to 4 p. m.

By bringing the child to the well child conference, it is possible to keep a record of the gain and find out almost at once if any physical defect has developed. Such cases are referred to the family physician, and mothers already have realized the value of having these corrected at once.

J. B. MARTIN TEAM MAKES CLEAN SWEEP OF SERIES WITH THE TAFTVILLE A. A.

The J. B. Martin team made a clean sweep of the series with the Taftville A. A. winning Saturday's game at Taftville, 4 to 2, and taking the Sunday encounter at the Velvet Mill diamond 6 to 3. Lefty Sayres of Hartford, Villa Nova pitching ace, hurled both games allowing seven hits in the first game and six in the second. Although handicapped with a broken right hand it was his fine that won the Sunday game.

Saturday's game was easily a J. B. Martin affair and would have been a clean cut game but for Lefty Harrell's out in the ninth inning that took a long hop in the outfield and two runs scored. Sayres was never in difficulty and his team fielded well behind him. The feature of the game was the hitting of Eddie Joubert who in four trips to the plate cracked out three hits. Goodette featured for Taftville with three running catches of line drives.

On Sunday the Velvet closed the series when they took Taftville's measure for the second time within as many days. The Taftville team put up better opposition in this game than in Saturday's contest. The game was fast throughout and until the sixth inning it was anybody's game with the score a deadlock. In the last half of the sixth with every base occupied Lefty Sayres connected with one of Fegan's fast ones for two bases scoring two runs and then purposely mixed up the opposition when he was trapped off second and the third run scored.

Opposite of Sayres' pitching and hitting the feature was the fielding of Eddie Murphy who pulled down long fly balls in the outfield.

GIANTS NOSE OUT DODGERS IN A SLUGGING MATCH

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Sept. 7.—New York took a firmer hold on the National league pennant by defeating Brooklyn 8 to 7 today, while Cincinnati was taking a double header from Pittsburgh. It was a slugging match due to the crowd of 35,000 which surrounded the field and made grounds rules necessary. A riot call had to be sent to disperse the thousands who failed to get into the enclosure, although hundreds climbed over the concrete wall. The score was tied in the eghith when with the bases full and one out, Mitchell fumbled an easy chance and before the side was retired, five Giants had scampered across the plate. Dodgers rallied in the ninth and had the tying and winning runs on second and third, but McQuillan, who had relieved Bentley, fanned Ruether. A pinch hitter for Mitchell. Several men ard boys who fell trying to climb the walls had to be taken to hospitals in ambulances. Score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

With a runner on first base and a fast man at the bat, he hits the ball sharply toward first base and close to the bag.

Should the first baseman throw ball to second or touch the bag to put out the batter?

This is another play in which the infielder, in this case the first baseman, determined what he is to do by the speed of the runner at bat. If the ball is hit hard enough he should field it and touch the bag as he still will have time to catch the runner going to second. On such a play, the shortstop should take the ball at second.

RED SOX HUMBLE LEADERS IN EASY GAME

Washington, Sept. 7.—Ferguson kept Washington's hits scattered today and Boston took the last game of the series and of the American League season here, 6 to 2. Fohl's team drove Ogden from the mound before a man was out in the first inning, scoring enough runs to win. Russell also was treated roughly and was withdrawn for a pinch hitter, Marberry held his opponents safely, striking out four in two innings.

Thirty thousand spectators, one of the largest crowds ever to jam its way into the American league Park here, saw their favorites go down to defeat but took heart when the score board showed a New York defeat by Philadelphia. As a result the Senators maintained their two game margin as league leaders. Score:

The score was 2 to 0, "Lefty" Thompson being practically invincible with men on bases. He was reached for seven safeties, including a triple and three doubles but managed to have the happy faculty of being able to tighten up with men on the sacks.

"Rube" Richards who performed on the mound for the locals, twirled a fair enough game of ball after the third inning. Manchester scored a run in the second inning when "Bob" Smith got a life after Adams had dropped a thrown ball from Normandin on his roller. Smith stole second, aided by a low throw by Donohue and scored on Thompson's hot shot down the third base line.

The Silkmen team added another in the next inning. Bronkie, first up, worked Richards for a pass, went to second on Wilson's out at first and rode home on Lamprecht's tremendous triple to left.

Thereafter the vistors were docile enough but the damage was done. A couple of fast double killings were a big help in keeping the opposition away from the platter.

Willimantic threatened in nearly every inning but that was all in the opening inning. Normandin led off with a double to right but the next three men at bat could not hit the ball out of the infield. In the second Carl Johnson doubled to left with two away and Donohue took a futile lounge at the ball for the third strike. Smith and Sharpe singled with two men down in the third but were left on base when Burkhardt pulled down Adams' fly in right.

The home team went out in order on their next four trips at bat but in the eighth, Donohue got a fluke single back of second. He was thrown out by a city block trying to steal second a moment later, however. Richards grounded out to the pitcher and Normandin came through with a resounding triple to center. The best Smith could do was to groun dout to Massey.

The fans still had a ray of hope in their breasts when Sharpe, first up in the ninth, caught one on the nose for a nice clout. A perfect relay, R. Smith to Wright to Bronkie erased him from the picture when he tried to stretch it into a triple. The next two men went out in order and the game was over.

"Sammy" Massey with a double and a single and Thompson with the same turned in the best stickwork for the visitors while Normandin and Sharpe were the whole show for the home club. "Monday" getting a double and triple and Sharpe a double single.

A number of good fielding plays were turned in, the best of which was by Johnson and Adams off Wilson in the fifth inning. The locals short fielder spared a mean hopper over second with one hand and cut loose with a hurried throw to Adams. The latter completed the good play by pulling down the high throw with one hand. Normandin, Smith, Sharpe and Richards also fielded well for the home club and Massey, Bronkie, Wright and Thompson turned in good plays for the winners.

A crowd of about 750 witnessed the game, including a large delegation from Manchester. The two clubs play the next game here on Saturday of this week and the fourth game, if one is necessary, in Manchester. The score:

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKKLY MARKET REVIEW.

New York, Sept. 7.—Political consideration began to play a prominent role in this week's financial markets, most of which displayed a reactionary tone. Uncertainty over the outcome of the presidential election led to heavy profit-taking and short selling in the stock market, resulting in a cancellation of about one-third of the advance made by prices since the bull movement started last June. Liquidation of stocks also was influenced by the unexpected omission of the American Woolen common dividend and the lack of public participation.

While the pressure of grain and cotton bills was the direct cause of the weakness of the European exchanges, selling of sterling also was inspired by the differences between Premiers Macdonald and Herriot as revealed in their speeches before the league of nations assembly at Geneva, and the fear in some London business circles that the proposed commercial treaty between France and Germany would be inimical to Great Britain's export trade, particularly of steel products.

The stiffening of call money rates proved to be only temporary, although time money displayed a somewhat firmer tone. The weekly bank statements continued to testify to the plethora of funds available for all legitimate commercial and stock market purposes.

R. I. REDS PROMISE TO SMASH ALL RECORDS

Ferneside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., is now expected to set a new high record in the Storrs laying contest. This pen's total production to date is 3260 eggs or more than the winning pens have laid in the last five years. If this pen of pullets can come through with 32 eggs in the next eight weeks, which seems to be an almost foregone conclusion, they will beat the best previous pen record established in 1914 by ten hens from Corvallis, Oregon that laid 2352 eggs in one year. Beginning early in September the hens in the laying contest

BELIEVE FIRE STARTED BY CIGARETTE BUTT

The fire department was called out Saturday morning shortly before 9 o'clock by a bell alarm from box 226, North Main and Erin streets, for a small fire in the grocery and meat store on North Main street conducted by Anthony Konlewski. The cause of the fire is thought to have been a cigarette butt dropped in some loose papers by a man whose name could not be learned. The damage was very slight.

NORWICH GUARDSMEN HOME AFTER SUMMER DUTY IN VIRGINIA

Battery B., and First Battalion Headquarters and Combat Train, 192d Artillery, C. N. G., arrived back in Norwich Saturday night about 10.30 o'clock from Camp Eustis, Va., after their annual fifteen days tour of duty. The companies made the trip home by special train along with the other units of the 192nd Artillery. They left the southern camp early Friday evening and stopped off at Washington, D. C., for a brief visit. The boys arrived in Washington about 1.30 o'clock Saturday morning.

Arriving at the local railroad station the guardsmen marched to the armory on McKinley avenue where they were dismissed The only fault the boys found with this year's camp was the lack of suitable drinking water. All water had to be boiled before it could be used for drinking purposes. It is rumored that this may be the last time the Connecticut National Guard will go to Camp Eustis as it is said the war department is considering abandoning this camp site.

The annual 15 day encampment of the 2nd Regiment Field Artillery, C. N. G., came to a close on Saturday upon the arrival of the batteries at their home station, Battery B and the First Combat Train reaching Norwich about 10 p. m. after a busy day.

The return trip was made in good time leaving Fort Eustis, Va., at 7 p. m. Friday and including a stopover in Washington. Plans were made in advance to enable the regiment to have several hours in the capitol and nearly everyone took advantage of the stop. Buses were provided for over six hundred men to take a sight seeing tour around the city extending from 6.30 to 9 a. m. This permitted the men to see practically all the points of interest in Washington including public buildings such as the capitol, white house, treasury, union station, post office, D. A. R. headquarters, senate office building, pension office, Corcoran Art Gallery and various departmental buildings; the many famous statues in the public squares, the important avenues and centers, and a trip through the national cemetery at Arlington.

There was ample opportunity to see the Memorial Amphitheatre in front of which is the tomb of the unknown soldier. The view from the amphitheatre down the Potomac and over Washington was a splendid one and set forth Washington Monument and the Lincoln memorial much better than a closer view. The Lincoln memorial was seen at closer range later in the trip.

Some of the men felt that Connecticut was slighted a little in naming the streets until the party reached the magnificent Connecticut Avenue bridge when all concluded that their home state had her full share of honor due her.

The bus ride was over at 9 a. m. allowing half an hour in which to remember the home folks with souvenirs of the city. As this was the first opportunity for a large part of the men to see anything of Washington they were immensely pleased and look forward to another visit.

Camp life was varied with a well rounded program strictly adhered to. Several days were spent on the range by each battery with the gun crews gaining valuable experience in the handling of the 155's. Battery B gun sections under Sgts. Coleman and Bonin and Corporal Beausoliel handled their work like veterans. The combat train functioned well in getting ammunition up to the guns and handling the battalion telephone lines. The guardsmen were obliged to do the work that would be required in case of war and were complimented by many of the regular officers and men stationed at Fork Eustis. This favorable comment was made after observing New York guardsmen, who were in camp just before the 1921 Regt. and the comparison from unbiased sources was well in favor of the 192nd. Pistol practice occupied an important plan in the program and every man was given an opportunity to qualify. Five men from Battery B qualified as pistol expects the highest rating in pistol qualifications.

Governor Charles A. Templeton arrived in camp on Wednesday accompanied by General Morris B. Payne, formerly in command of the 192nd and Adjutant General George M. Cole. A brigade review participated in by three regiments of regulars with the 192nd held in honor of the governor. Following this he addressed the men in the Liberty Theatre.

The athletic meet held on Saturday, August 30th was in charge of the regimental chaplain, Capt. Marshall, president of Connecticut College. A well arranged program provided much interest to the spectators and every one was happy when it was announced that the 192nd had won the cup against the whole camp in the open events. Governor Templeton presented the cups to the winning organizations before the brigade review.

Several swimming parties to Yorktown, a nearby beach were enjoyed by the entire regiment. Boxing bouts were held, the impromptu ones furnishing nearly as much interest as the more formal regimental affairs.

While in camp the members of the Battery B presented a handsome gold watch and chain to Lieut. Howard S. Ives of the 1st Battalion staff, formerly assigned to Battery B who left for Florida upon the termination of the camp where he is to engage in business at Cocoa.

Capt. William R. Dennison returned to Norwich with the Battery and left on Sunday for Camp Perry, Ohio, to join the Connecticut state rifle team of which he is a member. This team will compete in the national rifle and pistol matches to be held during the month.

HOLY NAME SOCIETY TO BE REPRESENTED

The president, Michael J. Murphy presided, at a special meeting of the Holy Name Society, held Sunday evening in the chapel of St. Patrick's Church, when Raymond G. LaFontaine addressed the assemblage. Mr. LaFontain is a student at the Catholic University, Washington, and spoke to the men regarding the coming convention of the national Holy Name society to be held in Washington this month. Mr. LaFontaine is preparing sketches of the four branches of the society in Norwich and its suburbs, which will be incorporated in a big special edition which a Washington paper is to put out Sunday Sept. 21st, in compliment to the 100,000 or more Holy Name men who will be in Washington for the exercises.

The Norwich society voted unanimously to cooperate with Mr. LaFontaine in the project to have the Norwich parish and the city and town well represented.

QUILTS AND SHAWLS IN EXHIBIT AT WINDHAM

A number from Norwich attended the annual exhibition of patchwork quilts copied from old designs under the auspices of the Windham Industries which opened Thursday afternoon at Windham for a three days' session, closing Saturday. The weather proved ideal and there was a large attendance, people going from Norwich, New London, Hartford, Danielson and other nearby towns as well as from Rhode Island. The quilts made by members of the association were done by hand and the patterns included the old designs of Jacob's Ladder, log cabin, rose, lover's twirl, goose flight and others. There was also a fine display of old shawls loaned by friends. Some shawls were of embroidered silk, others of paisley and cashmere designs. Gingerbread and coffee were provided each afternoon, members of the W. I. taking turns at serving.

BISHOP NILAN URGES DEFENSE DAY OBSERVANCE

Yesterday in the Roman Catholic church was the 13th Sunday after Pentecost. The epistle read in all the masses was Galatians III. 16-22 and the gospel was Luke XVIII. 11-19, the account of the cleansing of the ten lepers. At the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. Myles P. Galvin preached on the nine ungrateful lepers.

To all the pastors of the diocese has come the following circular letter from the Right Reverend Bishop:

"President Coolidge has designated Friday, September 12th, as national defense day. His official declaration invites all loyal citizens to participate in a demonstration which will show the strength of our national resources in time of war. His edict affects all organizations, both military and civilian.

"The Catholics of this state are as intensely interested in this movement as they are in all things which affect our national welfare. As a religious body, we hope and pray that the fields of the great nations of the world will never again be made desolate with the terrible ravages of war. The maintenance of world peace should be a cherished ideal dear to the hearts of all Christian people. The spirit of Christ and His teachings should be the guiding principles which will ultimately save all nations from those misunderstandings which precipitate destruction.

"The human element is still strong in the diplomatic councils of the world. We, therefore, must utilize human ingenuity to frustrate the difficulties which may arise from this source. Consequently, while beseeching God Almighty to bestow the blessings of universal peace upon the world, we should co-operate, in all things, with the leaders of the national government to promote peace for the world and national security for our own country.

"This is the inspiration of national defense day. The Hierachy and the people of the Catholic church in this country have always been loyal supporters of the government in every national crisis, and their loyalty is just as strong in peace as it was in war. We, therefore, request the Catholic people of this state to cooperate with the various local committees in the activities outlined by the governor to make this day a success in every detail. The spirit of peace, national security and welfare will be enhanced by this action and the lofty ideals of our democracy maintained without blemish.

"Yours sincerely,
"JOHN J. NILAN,
"Bishop of Hartford."

HEALTH OFFICER RESIGNS DR. GRAY APPOINTED

Dr. E. J. Brophy, who has been town health officer for the last two years, has presented his resignation to county health officer Hibberd R. Norman, who has appointed Dr. Harrison Gray to fill the vacancy.

Dr. Brophy tendered his resignation in the following communication to Mr. Norman:

Mr. Hibberd R. Norman,
County Health Officer:
My dear Mr. Norman:

I am hereby tendering you my resignation as town health officer to take effect as soon as you can arrange to appoint my successor.

You will recall that I accepted the position from you nearly two years ago, with the understanding that I would resign if I found the work calling for more time than I could afford to give it. My private practice and other duties have now reached the stage where I can no longer give sufficient time to the work of town health officer.

I thank you for the honor you conferred upon me and for your splendid assistance and cooperation during my term of service.

Also I extend my gratitude to the advisory committee associated with me in the school work, Mr. W. K. Tingley, Mr. A. H. Chase and Mr. E. J. Graham.

The nurses and physicians have done their work conscientiously and thoroughly among the school children and I feel that I can make a report of progress.

Yours Sincerely,
EDWARD J. BROPHY, M. D.

Dr. E. J. Brophy,
Norwich, Conn.,
Dear Doctor:

It is with great regret that I accept your resignation as town health officer. If I could persuade you to remain I would spare no pains to do so. Both personally and officially I thank you very much for the time and effort you have given to the office.

Yours truly,
HIBBERD R. NORMAN

Voice of the Shepherd

"They know not the voice of strangers."—(John 10:5.)

So attainments in knowledge advance thro' the years.
New discoveries, inventions, beckoning light as a star
Shining brightly—at first affright man with fears—
Fresh revealings of Science ancient theories mock.
But the Good Shepherd's still at the Head of His Flock.

Opinions once cherished no longer hold sway,
What shone as essentials are eclipse from men's view
Wisest old-time philosophy passes away—
Souls sincere in old faiths, suffer 'neath the shock—

Every brazen-toned hireling the sheep will forsake,
They scatter before him—they know not his voice—
Spreading terror and wounds—but hearts still rejoice,
For though strikes and contentions Faith's doors may unlock,
Hark! The Shepherd's clear voice, as the Head of His Flock

Although shrinking and timid, afield,
Souls who follow the Shepherd passed into life
Out of death"—as by promise revealed,
And "no condemnation" can know the strife—
Who hath placed the Good Shepherd as the Head of His Flock

"Be of Good Cheer." O Soul! close where He leads Mind not voices discordant that raise alarm—
In rich pastures verdant, hungry hearts with fears—
He still feeds;
Hear ye Him" Overtones of His none can mock—
Voice of Love! The Good Shepherd at the Head of His Flock

To The World Fivers

Control of Nature's careless strength
From sun to earth,
Has been a cherished human aim
Since, ages past, the first blind fear of man had birth
In prayer to heaven's orb of flame.

Exemplars of this struggle and its large success,
You masters of these winged machines
Have vanquished Nature's roughest moods, mid sternest stress
Depending but on human means.

Contrivances of iron, wood and steel, man schemed,
Your vehicles of flight had stayed
Inanimate and purposeless except dreamed
And willed their world-wide sky parade
Magellans of the air, your native courage cheers
The will of yours that made dreams facts

KALEIDOSCOPE

According to Collier's, 80 per cent of the voters cast ballots in 1896, in 1900, 73 per cent; in 1908, 66 per cent; in 1912, 62 per cent; in 1920, less than 50 per cent.

A heavy blast fired in the Pontano stone quarries, one of the largest workings in central Pennsylvania, turned the quarry into a lake overnight. The charge blew a hole in the bottom of the rock and struck a spring, which in 24 hours made a lake approximately 400 feet long, 100 feet in width and from five to seventy feet in depth. R. W. Stone, assistant state geologist, expressed the opinion that the lagoon is permanent.

A notice dated London, 1695, read: "Several persons of quality were affronted by persons who rode in hackney carriages, wearing masks, etc. Complaint thereof being made to the lord justices, an order was made that no hackney carriage be permitted to go into said Hyde park." That ban, which extended more than 229 years, has been lifted and taxicabs will now be allowed to use the roads in Hyde park for getting to and from other parts of London.

What is to be declared the hottest flame known to man has been produced by artificial means in experiments held to study the form of atoms. An electric blast, lasting for only a small part of a second occurring on a charged wire, seemed to explode, creating heat so intense that it could not be measured, although estimates put it as high as 50,000 degrees. Pictures taken as the explosions occur are expected to aid astronomers in solving the causes for different kinds of light thrown off by many of the planets.

MORE FOR GASOLINE THAN FOR DAILY BREAD

Connecticut automobile owners are spending more money this year for gasoline than for their daily bread. A gallon of "gas" is being bought nearly as often as a pound of meat, and the gasoline consumption is increasing rapidly.

Based on figures given out by the state motor vehicle department, about $14,708,000 was paid for taxable gasoline bought at roadside stations in Connecticut in the eight months of this year up to the beginning of the present month. This amount practically equals the total finances put at the disposal of the state highway department by the General Assembly every two years for highway construction, maintenance and repairs. In other words, motorists spend considerably more for the fuel they use to propel their automobiles than they contribute through the state treasury for the upkeep of the highways they ride upon.

Over 66,000,000 gallons of taxable gasoline were bought at Connecticut pumps during the period covered, enough to take the average automobile around the world about 25,000 times, and the total amount paid for it was sufficient to buy one-fourth the registered automobiles at the average rate at which they are taxed by Connecticut municipalities.

There is an automobile in the state for practically every federal income taxpayer. Gasoline consumption in January was 6,224,000 gallons, in February 4,647,000 gallons, in March 6,140,000 gallons, in April 7,997,000 gallons, in May 9,849,000 gallons, in June 10,400,000 gallons, in July 10,609,000 gallons and in August 11,006,000 gallons.

Domestic consumption of gasoline throughout the United States reached 6,685,035,280 gallons last year, an increase of approximately 1,313,000,000 gallons over the previous year. The excess of the supply over the demand at the end of 1923 was reported by the United States Bureau of Mines to be 379,909,863 gallons.

Advance Showing of the Lovely Coats and Frocks for Autumn

Wraps and Coats still cling to the slender silhouette, but this does not mean that they are not entirely new and smart. There's a clever sleeve treatment which is decidedly new—there's the slightly loose upper section—there are new methods of applying the touches of ornamentation, which distinguish them as the smartest of many seasons. Frocks, too, slenderizing in effect break their long lines with a bit of a cape, a new sleeve, or a suspicion of a flare concealed somewhere in the skirt. The new fabrics, too, are lovely—rich satin finished effects, ribbed weaves and soft wools and flannels.

SPECTACULAR SCENE AS ARMY PLANES FLEW OVER NEW YORK

Hundreds of Thousands of Persons Were on Roofs as the World-Girdling Aviators, Escorted by a Dozen Planes From Mitchel Field, Flew Down the Heart of the City—Traffic Was Halted Everywhere, Factory Whistles Were Blown, Sirens of Harbor Crafts Were Screeching and Automobile Horns Created a Din in Welcome the History-Making Aviators—Military Honors Await the Fliers in Washington.

New York, Sept. 8.—Sophisticated New York stared open-mouthed for a brief time this afternoon while the United States army world-girdling aviators, escorted by a dozen airplanes from Mitchel Field, flew down the heart of the city toward their landing place on the Long Island flying field.

Stirred by the sight of the machines flying majestically in squadron formation far above the skyscrapers and pinnacles countless thousands, voiceless for a moment, broke into hearty cheers. Hoarse factory whistles, the sound sirens of harbor craft, automobile horns and other noise making devices added to the din, which was reminiscent of the excitement on Armistice day.

Traffic was stopped everywhere. Streamers of ticker tape poured forth from the buss offices downtown and bankers and brokers struggled with office boys for vantage points in the windows. Hundreds of thousands of persons were on roofs, porches, parks and sidewalks.

Down the center of Manhattan Island over the Polo Grounds, Columbus Circle, Times Square, 59th and Madison avenues, Union square and on past the Singer and Metropolitan towers and the Flatiron building the fliers sped on their Magellanic journey.

At the Polo Grounds 25,000 persons had gathered to see the Dodgers and Giants play, and 25,000 baseball fans unanimously put aside world series interests and disregarded the batting averages while they craned their necks.

Thousands of children, released after the first day of the fall term, rushed from their classes to the streets, dancing along the line of the marching aviators, scurrying across the paths of automobiles, and all the newspaper staffs officers refused to interview an young American who was not in a mood to pay tribute.

Over the Battery scarce room could be found for the hundreds of thousands of persons who had come to see the fliers. The tall office and bank climbing flagpoles overlooking the harbor were waved with streamers.

The conclusion of the month's journey for the pilots of Lieutenants Smith and Nelson in the following Chance Vought biplanes, the Boston and the Seattle, and the Navy-built Douglas cruiser, the Chicago, was marked by a splendid ovation. For five minutes the thousands in the financial district there turned eastward toward Mitchel Field.

HOW SOUTHERN CONN. WELCOMED THE AVIATORS

New Haven, Sept. 8.—Southern Connecticut gave a noisy welcome to the world flight aviators today as they passed over this state on route from Boston to Mitchel field, L. I. Bank presidents and clerks, business men and employes cast away all thoughts of staid conservatism as they rushed for vantage points from which to scan the heavens and thousands of school children rioted to the din as the air Magicians swept majestically over the state.

The airmen passed over Providence, R. I., at 12.47 and 40 minutes later they were receiving the welcome of factory, steamboat and fire whistles in New London, passing over that city at 1.27. New London was especially interested in one of the aviators, Lieutenant Leslie P. Arnold, mechanician for Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith. It was Lieutenant Arnold's 'home town" and a good share of the noise was in his honor. Previous to the flight, from Boston, friends of the naval airman had wired him, requesting that he use his influence to persuade his commander to fly over the city.

The airmen reached Madison at 1.55 and passed over New Haven at 8.10. Roofs were black with people in this city and factories warned in advance that the aviators were approaching let loose a deafening roar from their whistles. School children were permitted to leave their classrooms and business was at a standstill as the fliers passed. New Haven also was interested in Lieutenant Arnold as his mother is a resident of the Westville section of this city. Passing over this section of Connecticut the airmen followed the tracks of the New Haven railroad about a half mile inland from the edge of Long Island sound. It appeared from the formation of the airmen as they passed, this city that the world fliers had become separated from the escorting planes but cities nearer New York reported that the fliers came out of the north in "V" formation, the planes of Lieutenants Smith and Nelson in the hollow of the wedge.

The planes passed Milford at 2.19 and reached Bridgeport at 2.22 where again they received a noisy welcome from factory whistles. Norwalk was reached at 2.36 and soon afterwards the planes turned to the sound towards New York city and their objectives, Mitchel field, L. I.

MILITARY HONORS AWAIT WORLD FLIERS IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 8.— Preparations to receive the army world fliers on their arrival in Washington tomorrow were given something of a national character today when General Pershing issued personal orders directing that troops in the Washington district be prepared at their posts at the time the air squadron circles over the city and that suitable military honors be paid.

Many cities have brought pressure on the war department to have the world fliers routed so that honors could be paid them as they completed the flight to Seattle. Since it was inadvisable to protract the strain upon either the fliers or their machines unnecessarily, however, a direct route westward from Washington will be followed.

President Coolidge tonight planned to be at Bolling field in the outskirts of the city when the world fliers land. He was understood to be very anxious to witness their arrival if the time of their arrival would permit him to do so. In any event, Secretary Weeks, other cabinet officers and high officials of the government are scheduled to meet the squadron.

A national salute of 48 guns, the highest honors paid in the American military service, will be roared out by field guns as the fliers separate from the escorting squadron and swing by overhead, bound for Arlington. National cemetery to pay their own tribute at the tomb of America's unknown hero before they pass on to their landing at Bolling field.

The national salute will be repeated by the guns at Fort Myer, adjoining the cemetery as the fliers pass that point, and it will be amid the thunder of cannon that they let fall upon the tomb the flowers they will bring with them from New York.

Around the tomb on the terrace of the memorial amphitheatre a troop of cavalry will be stationed as a guard of honor, and at all the other posts in the district where army forces are stationed, the troops will be in line as the machines pass above them.

In accordance with the ruling approved and desired by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, flight commander, the ceremonies of reception to the fliers after they set foot on land at Bolling field will not be protracted nor calculated to delay the re-surgence of the westward flight the following day or to add in any way to the long strain already endured.

When the world fliers make their landing they will be greeted informally by government officials assembled at the field and then go to luncheon with their comrades of the air service at the field mess. Later in the day they will pay their respects to Secretary Weeks.

General Pershing had hoped to be present on their arrival to greet them, and his plans for the week kept today free for that purpose in the expectation that the fliers would reach Washington today. An unavoidable engagement in New York, however, will prevent his having any personal share in the reception tomorrow.

Major General Patrick, chief of the air service, who has been present in person at the reception accorded the fliers in New England and New York also will share in the honors paid to them here.

The crews of the world circling ships will be as guests at dinner tomorrow night, and unless some unforeseen circumstance prevents, the ships will be off again Wednesday morning to McCook field, Dayton, Ohio, on the first stage of the 3,000 miles lap to Seattle.

POLITICAL CRISIS HAS DEVELOPED IN CHILE

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 8.—(By The A. P.)—Tense excitement and expection prevailed here today in political circles and there was a great deal of speculation about the probable reception by congress this afternoon of the new cabinet.

A reunion of naval officers at Valparaiso last night adopted the motto, "The People Demand a Clean Administration Without Politics," and drew up resolutions aligning the army and navy in a solid front against the politicians.

The political crisis in Chile, according to previous dispatches from Santiago, was animated early last week by the demand of army officers for the constitution of a non-political ministry and other reforms. The military and naval officers maintained they were expressing the consensus of opinion throughout the republic and were not heading a military movement for the replacement of the government.

Last Friday night the cabinet resigned, and was reconstituted with General Luis Altamarino at its head, later that night. During that day political demonstrations were held in various parts of the city and stock market operations were suspended.

The events leading to the reorganization of the government began when a number of army officers voiced their disapproval of a bill granting salaries to the legislators while parliament failed to approve measures of benefit to the army and the working class.

President Alessandri thereupon asked the officers to submit a written statement of the reforms they requested. The president and both chambers of parliament, in special session, accepted the written petition and the cabinet resigned.

A delayed message from Santiago, received today, asserted that there had been a rumor Friday that the military committee had demanded the resignation of the president and the dissolution of congress.

None but persons essential to the conduct of the court, relatives of the accused boys, and of Robert Franks, and newspapermen, will be permitted within the courtroom Wednesday morning.

1,100 Marines Are To Land in Shanghai

To Take Up Defense Positions on the Boundaries of the International Settlement

Shanghai, Sept. 9.—(3 a. m.—(By the A. P.)—Eleven hundred marines from foreign warships this morning were ordered to land in Shanghai at 4 a. m., and take up defensive positions on the boundaries of the international settlement.

The order for the landing of the marines followed a new assault in the railway sector directly west of the city, bringing the fighting nearer than it had been before in a week of fighting between troops of the rival Tuchuns, of Kiangs and Chekiang.

At the same time the volunteer corps was ordered to mobilize at 6 a. m.

RIFLE FIRE INCREASING IN OUTSKIRTS OF SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Sept. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Artillery and rifle fire, growing stronger, minute by minute, was heard late tonight in the Jessfield district on the western outskirts of the city. No official indication as to the source of the firing was available.

It was suggested that the attacking Kiangsu forces, which have been held at Twangtu, on the Shanghai-Nanking railroad for nearly a week by the soldiers of Lu Yung-Hsiang might have left the railroad and sent a force down the waterways from Soochow in junks and barges.

Another suggestion was that the attackers might have turned the flank of the Chekiang forces at Kiying, and preceded down the waterways toward this city, with the idea of starting a direct onslaught against the Kiangnan arsenal at Lungwha, the headquarters of General Lu.

Headquarters of General Lu Yung-Hsiang, commander of the Chekiang forces admitted that the Kiangsu army had launched a heavy night attack along the railway.

The troops making the attack, it was asserted, were from the Province of Honn, and were ordered to the fighting front by Wu Pei-fu, military director for the Peking government.

If this report be true, it marks the first open participation by Wu Pei-fu, who recently was reported to be preparing to take part in the Civil war.

Chekiang headquarters claimed that the Honanese troops, despite the weight of their attack, were thrown back on Hwangtu, the point at which the battle started.

Official circles in the international settlement do not expect any difficulty, but whatever happens, plan to be prepared to deal with either advancing or retreating soldiery.

Belligerents on both sides have been warned that armed forces will not be permitted to cross the settlement boundaries. Prohibition also has been imposed on any armed activity in the Whangpoo river (the main harbor of Shanghai), where 22 foreign warships are anchored.

DISARMAMENT COMMISSION IN SESSION IN GENEVA

Geneva, Sept. 8.—(By The A. P.)—With business-like directness, the disarmament commission of the league assembly began this afternoon its examination of all question and all material touching the mutual plan of guarantees and assistance between states and the general problem of disarmament. The commission decided at the outset that these two subjects could not be intelligently treated without also discussing obligatory arbitration.

Hence, compulsory arbitration, which now is regarded as the main foundation stone of all the projects to outlaw war, becomes an integral part of th ediscussion of disarmament, the final goal of which is the convocation of an international conference at Geneva for the reduction of armaments in all countries.

A new angle was given the debate today when the Swedish foreign minister, Baron Von Wurtenberg, introduced a resolution in the assembly concerning the codification of international law, a subject which has long been of special interest to American jurists.

In a wide sense, the Swedish suggestion supplements the immediate programme of the assembly of studying certain articles of the league covenant with a view of redrafting, and of examining the compulsory arbitration clause of the world court of justice with the hope of rendering it more precise, and thus more acceptable to the great powers.

The Swedish proposal recommends that all members of the league inform the council as to what subjects and topics of international law may be usefully examined, with the object of their incorporation in international conventions to be concluded through th emachinery of the League of Nations, and that invitations to forward suggestions should be addressed all the world's most authoritative organizations which have been devoting themselves to the development of international law. This naturally includes American law associations.

SENT THREATENING LETTER TO THE PRINCE OF WALES

Williamstown, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Marcus J. Geroy was arrested in his home here today, charged with sending the Prince of Wales an alleged threatening letter received by the British their last Thursday. Sheriff Vincent, who made the arrest, said Geroy admitted writing the missive.

Sheriff Vincent added that Geroy denied threatening to kill the royal visitor, but said he "had no use for the British empire and would just as soon see it wiped out."

Geroy was arrested as he was leaving his home to take up residence in northern Michigan.

TROUBLE OVER ROAD REPAIR WORK IN MADISON

Madison, Sept. 8.—The controversy over road repair work, which has held the center of the stage here for several weeks, reached the courts today when an application for an injunction to prevent First Selectman C. H. Meigs, from proceeding with road repairs was refused by Judge F. M. Peasley in the superior court. The judge took occasion to comment on the first selectman's attitude by declaring that he should work with his associates instead of around them.

On August 23, a town meeting voted to place the repair of the roads in the hands of Selectman Meigs but provided no appropriation. The two other selectmen, Peter Christianson and C. A. Theis, dissatisfied with the decision, overruled Meigs' orders. Then the county commissioners were called into the controversy on the ground htat the roads were going from bad to worse.

Another special town meeting was called and again it was voted to permit Meigs to do the repairing. It having been reported that the county commissioners had found the roads in bad shape. While Selectman Meigs had a large gang of men at work on the roads, the other two selectmen, last Tuesday, paid all of the bills contracted for by Meigs and declared they would pay no more bills contracted for by the first selectman. Meigs kept his men at work, however, and two taxpayers, E. G. Holbrook and Paul G. Watrous retained counsel and all appeared before Judge Peasley today. The court was asked to issue an injunction to prevent First Selectman Meigs from doing any more repairing. Attorneys appeared for the first selectman.

Third Selectman Theis testified as to the condition of the roads and Miss Sophie Emily Brown and John W. Sanford, county commissioners, testified that they had received a petition from Madison concerning the highways.

Judge Peasley in passing on the case said that First Selectman Meigs might show his associates a little more consideration. On the other hand, he said that Meigs was not working any irreparable injury upon his colleagues and he could not see why the court should interfere.

PROTEST THE REMOVAL OF MILITIA FROM HERRIN

Marion, Ills., Sept. 8 (By the A. P.)—Vigorous protest against the proposed removal tomorrow of the state militia from Herrin was made this afternoon by Acting Sheriff Randall Parks in a telegram sent to Adjutant General Carlos E. Black of the Illinois National Guard. His message was the result of the announcement at Herrin this afternoon by Captain Harold M. Bigelow, in command of the detachment of troops here, that the troops would be withdrawn tomorrow.

"I cannot agree that there is not justification for keeping the troops at Herrin," Acting Sheriff Parks said. "For as soon as the troops leave, trouble will start again. Fever is very high, especially in Herrin. In my opinion what is needed here is martial law for an indefinite time in Herrin."

MAINE RETAINS PLACE IN LIST OF REPUBLICAN STATES

William R. Pattangall, Democratic Nominee For Governor Concedes Defeat by Ralph O. Brewster, Republican—Returns From 515 Precincts Out of 633 Give Brewster 104,534 Votes, Pattangall 69,714—For United States Senator Fernald Republican, Led Redman, Democrat 101,692 to 61,627.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 8.—William R. Pattangall, democrat, tonight admitted defeat in today's Maine gubernatorial election in which he was opposed by Ralph O. Brewster, republican. Brewster, who was accorded Ku Klux Klan indorsement in the republican primaries, had a wide lead in early unofficial returns.

Portland, Me., Sept. 8.—An apparently safe lead for Ralph O. Brewster, republican, for governor, was shown in returns from today's election from 515 precincts out of 633 in the state, which gave Brewster 104,534 votes to 69,714 for William R. Pattangall, democrat. Pattangall late tonight conceded Brewster's election.

In the same precincts U. S. Senator Bert M. Fernald, republican, seeking re-election, had 101,692 votes to 61,627 for Fulton J. Redman, democrat. These returns included ten of the twenty cities of the state but did not include Portland, the largest city.

Pattangall made the K. K. K. the leading issue of his campaign for governor. Because Brewster had the Klan endorsement in his primary campaign which resulted in his nomination on a recount after the official count had shown Frank G. Farrington nominated by a narrow margin, the democrats asserted that Brewster represented the klan. Brewster, who had previously denied that he had sought klan support, made no references to the klan in his election campaign and his speeches dealt largely with state issues, but republican speakers sent into the state by the national committee [illegible] dorsement of the Klan [illegible] tration was invoked.

In those precincts the total vote cast for governor was 174,248 as against 166,341 in the election four years ago.

NATURAL DEATH ENDS LIFE OF ADVENTURE

Boston, Sept. 8.—Alexander Cross an Englishman whom 35 years of adventure had carried him around the world, was found dead today from natural causes in the doorway of a house on Beacon Hill. He was born in England 53 years ago. For 25 years he was in the British customs service in China.

At the outbreak of the World war he took passage on a Japanese liner for India, the nearest point to get into the game. En route, the German raider Wolf halted his ship and took him off. There followed more than sixx months of scouring the seas on German raiders, preying on English shipping and dodging all others.

Finally his captors landed him in Denmark. From there Cross made his way to England. He was commissioned a captain, and because of his long Oriental experience, given command of 10,000 Chinese coolies laboring behind the lines.

His health broken by his war work, he came to Boston at the end of the war and was engaged by Dr. Leroy R. Grandon, surgeon and professor at the Harvard Medical school, to care for his private library at his home. At his lodging house in Arlington, Mass., where he lived with his wife, Margaret, now in Canada, no one knew of the adventurous past of Cross. They knew him as a mild mannered gentleman broken in his health.

Only Dr. Grandon, who had given the library Sinecure, was able to tell the police today of the life of the man they found dead. Dr. Grandon recently was identified as the husband of the mysterious "Margery", psychic whose seances were considered by the committee on award of the $2,500 prize offered for proof of communication with the spirit world.

POLITICAL CALLERS KEEP COOLIDGE BUSY AT DESK

Washington, Sept. 8.—A long list of callers for discussion of government and political questions today kept President Coolidge busy at his desk, and late in the afternoon he announced the reappointment of David J. Lewis, of Maryland, democratic member of the tariff commission.

Considerable interest had been shown in the tariff commission vacancy in view of the split on the commission over the sugar duty. Mr. Lewis is understood to have been one of those signing the majority report of the commission favoring a reduction in the sugar duty. Final action on the sugar report is up to the president, but in view of the complicated situation he is said to have asked for further data from the commission and other government agencies.

Reports on the political situation were presented to Mr. Coolidge by Senator Moses, chairman of the senate republican campaign committee, Senator Sterling of South Dakota, and Rhinelander Waldo, former police commissioner of New York. Frank A. Munsey, newspaper publisher, was a luncheon guest at the White House. Senator Moses, who has just returned from national committee headquarters in Chicago, advised that the campaign attack be centered on Senator La Follette, independent candidate.

WADHAMS NOT CANDIDATE FOR REP. NOMINATION FOR GOV.

Torrington, Conn., Sept. 8.—John M. Wadhams late this afternoon in reply to an inquiry which the Register has repeatedly addressed to him during the past few days as to whether or not he was a candidate for the nomination for governor, made a statement that he was not a candidate. His statement follows:

"Sir: Replying to your inquiry regarding my name being presented to the state convention to be held in New Haven this week, I will say that, although many of my friends in different parts of the state have expressed a desire to support my nomination for governor, and while I deeply appreciate the honor of this consideration, I do not believe such action would be for the best interests of my native state of the republican party.

"Therefore, I am not a candidate for this office.

Very truly yours,

J. M. WADHAMS.

TAXI MEN EXPRESS VIEWS AT ALDERMEN'S MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Sept. 8.—At the September meeting of the board of aldermen, Monday evening, Acting Mayor George W. Hickey presiding, the spectators' gallery was filled with jitney drivers, interested in one clause of a list of newly drawn up traffic ordinances which call for a time limit of 15 minutes on a section of Main street monopolized by the jitney men for the past few years. The taxi owners were represented by Attorney William A. King who asked to have the two hours' time limit under suggestion in the ordinances apply to all of Main street, including the section in question, to allow the jitneurs an opportunity to remain on their old standing grounds. It was pointed out that fixing a 15-minute limit in order to remove taxis from between North and Church streets on the main thoroughfare followed upon several complaints. A number of the jitney men expressed their views on the matter.

The outstanding features of the new ordinances include going back to parallel parking on Main street, the two-hour parking limit and the making of North, Church, Temple and Center streets one-way streets, with parking on both sides.

The complaints of a trio of Quarry street residents against the use of that street for a junk yard by Morris Spector were heard by the board and referred to the police committee with power.

Alderman William E. Jackson introduced a resolution requesting the city clerk to procure a certified copy of the conviction of City Sheriff Thomas J. Buck ordering the retirement of a $75,000 water bond was adopted. Upon motion of Alderman James J. Lee it was voted to purchase two mushroom traffic signals to be erected on Main street.

The session adjourned at 9.50 o'clock.

Time's Wonderful Story of the CADILLAC

Virtually all of the V-Type Eight-Cylinder Cadillac cars delivered in the United States in the last ten years are still in service

Advanced as it is in engineering refinements, the New Cadillac V-63 is nevertheless the logical outgrowth of a decade of eight-cylinder manufacture.

For ten years, its makers have concentrated on the development of this V-Type eight-cylinder motor car; building it better and better with each passing year; improving, refining and perfecting it; bringing it to a higher and ever higher state of leadership.

And Time, meanwhile, has been telling a wonderful story of the Cadillac.

Official state license records reveal that virtually 100% of the V-Type eight-cylinder Cadillacs delivered in the last ten years are steadfastly paying returns to their owners.

What this enviable and almost perfect record means to prospective purchasers of the Cadillac is so obvious as scarcely to require discussion. The fine result of a policy of "Doing One Thing Well," it constitutes proof rather than mere promise of quality.

It speaks of a degree of dependability, long life, economy and resale value which manifestly sets the standard for the industry.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Thomas Bradford said Monday that he has a tentative list of candidates for the citizens' ticket, which will have a caucus the coming week-end and that this list will be presented to the caucus for consideration. Mr. Bradford has prepared the list merely by way of suggestion and says that it is, of course, subject to any such revision as the caucus may see fit to make. It is Mr. Bradford's purpose to place as strong and appealing a ticket as possible in the field this year. It is not likely that there will be many changes in the list of republican and democratic tickets from what they have been in recent years. At least no such changes are indicated up to the present time.

Monday afternoon at 4.30 there was a service at St. James' church for Albert Leon Tibeault, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tibeault of North Maple street. The child died Saturday. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The past Saturday and Sunday were important days in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Greene of Peace Harbor, 147 Main street. Saturday was the 50th anniversary of their marriage. Sunday the 56th anniversary of Mr. Greene's union with the church at Westminster.

The wedding anniversary was observed in a quiet way, with nearly all the children with them. Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Greene came from Hartford. James A. Greene came from Fort Wayne, Indiana. His family was unable to be present. George M. Greene and Mrs. Greene and their three children were present from Belmont, Mass., and Mary E. Greene from Cambridge. Another daughter, Alice L., has been making her home with her parents for the past two years. Mr. and Mrs. William Greene of Jersey City and another son, Edward Greene, of Mitchel Field, L. I., were unable to come. Sunday morning attended a communion service at Westminster, where 76 years before Mr. Greene had become a member of the church. It was a memorable anniversary for the members of the family and especially noteworthy in the fact that Mr. Greene is a remarkable man as lives in Eastern Connecticut, will within a few days celebrate his 95th birthday.

Another adjournment of two weeks was taken in the town court Monday in the Collett bus case. This is the case in which an express bus service between Providence and Hartford, via Danielson, was suspended, after it had been in operation for a few days, the past month, because of an alleged violation of certain section of the motor vehicle laws of the state. Several counts are involved in the case, which is of special interest to those who involves, individuals who operate the motor vehicles in the state to operate a bus line as a part of a route for which a franchise has already been granted, though the franchise is not in the present possession of the Connecticut.

Excavating and grading for the reconstruction of nearly four miles of the highway through the town of Killingly is now under way. This work includes several pieces of road improvement, including the northeastern Connecticut end of the job, at Bishop's crossing, a steam shovel is at work. The present material is mostly macadam, but under the terms of heavy travel, as appears as the work develops, it is to be replaced by heavy concrete. It is understood there will become a part of the South Plainfield from the Rhode Island line and that numbers of miles in the highway now in process of construction under the development plan will be completed this year. The work on the highway has required down the past few late winter and early spring seasons. The contractor has a little more than two months in which to push the work, as the highway department requires the laying of concrete roads by contractors after a certain date in the season.

Danielson people did not see the total lunar eclipse Monday for the very good reason that they could not be seen from this vicinity. Their course was Boston took them over Providence on the way to New London.

PUTNAM

Five of the seven cases on the city court docket were disposed of Monday morning by Judge Geissler. Domenic Verrastil, of Waterbury, pleaded guilty to reckless driving, in Putnam, on Labor day. State Policeman George Gardiner, testified that he had a call to investigate an accident at the corner near the Grove street cemetery and found that the defendant had been driving so fast that he could not make the sharp turn and as a result ran his car over op the left side of the highway and into an approaching car. It was stated that the damage was not great and no one was hurt. Verrastil said he was unfamiliar with the road as it was the first time he had been over it. He said that he was driving from 15 to 18 miles an hour and only pleaded guilty because he was over on the wrong side of the road. A fine of $25 and with costs taxed at $13.14 was imposed and paid.

After making an investigation of case of Alphonse Leduc of Arctic, R. I., arrested last week for driving his car while under the influence of liquor, the prosecutor amended the complaint to reckless driving and the accused pleaded guilty and paid a fine and costs, amounting to $39.14.

The other three cases were simple drunks but the offenders all had previous court records. In the case of Pat St. George of Putnam, Judge Geissler said: "You get drunk every Saturday night, don't you?" and Pat admitted that he did. The judge told Pat that he knew him and knew his gang and saw them frequently hanging around Mansfield's Corner. "I know you can't stop it," said Judge Geissler, "but I am going to give you a chance, not to stop drinking but to keep off the street when drunk. If you will promise me that if you want to get drunk again you will go home, lock yourself in your room and stay there, you can drink a barrel if you want to, but keep off the street: I will give you 30 days in jail and suspend the sentence and put you in charge of the probation officer." Pat allowed that hereafter he would have his drunks in private and left the court room.

Sportsmen predict a large number of partridge and pheasants when the season opens. The shooting of cock pheasants affords good sport, also provides a delectable dish for the huntsman's table. While the birds are large and afford a good mark, when started they lie close in the swale and it takes persistance on the part of the huntsman to make them leave cover.

Harry Johnson of this village was placed under arrest Sunday by Central Village, by State Trooper Williams of Danielson Barracks, for violation of the road laws. Although the car that collided with Mr. Johnson had the right of way, it is a complicated affair. Mr. Johnson was at the corner, where the accident happened and was going at the rate of 10 miles and had started to turn the corner when the other car hit him. Mr. Johnson and some in the other car were shaken considerably but no one was serious injured. Both cars were damaged slightly. Mr. Johnson will appear in court Wednesday at 10 a. m.

JEWETT CITY

People of Jewett City were interested in the account of Dan Morgan's clambake as told in Monday's Bulletin, especially the part about "King Fred" at the bake.

A friend gives the information to how Fred Gilbert baked his way to fame at a recent clambake, held at Beach pond. Charles Barber, who knows to the fraction of a second, just when the bake is ready to be opened, and Lloyd Congdon, who knows everything else about "Klams" superintended the bake. Mr. Gilbert was allowed to look over and learn. The next thing anyone heard from him he was baking clams for his neighbors. At the Mermaids' clambake, held at Beach Pond last Sunday "King Fred" was very conveniently detained, until the bake was all packed. Those present at the Mermaids' bake, included, Mr. and Mrs. John Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Field, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Herris, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber and son Joel, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Congdon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. The little lad of 5 was wrapped in blankets, then placed in a clothes basket, and was taken to an automobile. Improvement has been steady, with the physician's attention necessary every day. A very brave little chap, is the name he has justly won. His terrible experience has neither soured his temper, or caused him to give unnecessary trouble to those who have been his nurses.

Jewett City missed seeing the Magellans of the air by only a few miles. Irving Thornton figured the time all right and kept strict watch from his home on the top of Taylor hill. The fliers passed over the Shore route to New London, and, when nearest, were 30 miles southeast of the town, shortly after noon.

UNABLE TO EXPLAIN CAUSE OF DEATH OF JOSEPH READY

Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 8.—Police were unable to explain the death of Joseph Deady, 22 years old, of Quincy, Mass., who died without regaining consciousness three hours after he was found 20 feet from a road on the outskirts of Portsmouth yesterday. Only slight bruises about the chest were found on his body. He had been last seen at 8.15 the previous night by a Portsmouth girl with whom he was acquainted. No autopsy was ordered and the medical referee, in the absence of other evidence, pronounced death due to cerebral hemorrhage.

CUTE LITTLE CURLS FOR NEXT YEAR'S HAIR STYLES

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 8—Bobbed hair for sport occasions while the same hair made into more elaborate coiffures by means of braids and cute little curls promise to be the edict for next year's hair styles.

The style will be definitely determined at the convention of the National Hair Dressers Association in session here tomorrow following a competition to be held in connection with the convention. Many of the delegates are in favor of the "glorified bob" for next year. This means that "switches" will be employed to add to the tresses. Masses of little curls will also be pressed on, it is predicted.

I LOST 50 POUNDS in 2 Months

This Easy Way!

In Paris I learned a secret for which millionaires have paid thousands. Let me tell it to you FREE OF CHARGE!

If you are one of many who has tried everything to reduce, without success—if you are suffering from a weak heart, high blood pressure, tired feeling, shortness of breath, all due to obesity, AT LAST YOU CAN BE RELIEVED. If your figure is such that you are embarrassed to appear in public with your husband or your smart-looking slender friends, you can now entertain new hopes. Perhaps it is your bust, your thighs or you arms that you want to reduce, or may be only one or two rolls of fat have lately appeared? Whatever your case may be, if you want to reduce only certain parts of your body, or if you are 10 pounds too heavy or 100 pounds, you owe it to yourself to investigate this new discovery WHICH DOES AWAY WITH WEAKENING DIETS, ABSURD CREAMS, TIRESOME EXERCISES, REDUCING GARMENTS.

From experience, I know how many worthless things you have tried in the past and in the effort to help you regain slenderness without being again disappointed, I have decided to give out the secret which relieved me of 50 pounds of ugly rolls of fat and made me feel like a new woman. Simply go to any good druggist, ask for a package of SAN-GRI-NA tablets (remember the name, and do not accept any substitute). SAN-GRI-NA is the preparation of a French physician and the ONLY THING I ever found to reduce my weight—my case was an obstinate one, and I had tried everything known to reduce, without success. It is the first time SAN-GRI-NA is offered to the American public as up to now it had been used in private practice, where enormous prices have been paid for it. UNTIL YOU TRY IT, YOU CANNOT SAY THAT YOUR FAT CANNOT BE REMOVED. Take 2 small tablets before each meal and watch your fat disappear. Remember that SAN-GRI-NA is GUARANTEED ABSOLUTELY HARMLESS, AND IS SOLD WITH A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE. It cannot harm you in any way; on the contrary, the moment you start taking it you will feel yourself filled with new and energy.

THE NEW HAVEN CONVENTION.

With tonight's session there opens the state convention of the republicans for the purpose of naming the ticket to be placed before the voters of the state next November.

Delegates from the towns and senatorial districts of the state have been named and it is to be presumed their selection has been based upon their qualifications for making such selections as will be for the best interests of this commonwealth. There are responsibilities resting upon the delegates to the convention which are not to be regarded lightly. They are the representatives of their fellow citizens for their respective towns. They are relied upon to display such judgment in the choice of candidates that will result in giving the voters of Connecticut a chance to cast their ballots for men of the highest integrity, men of unquestioned ability and men of such business qualifications as will call for their election.

There are possibilities of contests, but such should be regarded solely as the means of getting a majority expression and once that has been obtained it should be accepted as the action of the convention and support be accorded the winner quite as if there had been no contest.

It is to this convention that the republicans of the state look with confidence that the best interests of the commonwealth will be kept uppermost in their minds as selections are made. It is from this convention that a state ticket is expected that will be successful next November, a ticket that will not only be victorious but that will be a credit to the state and the party it represents.

Under republican administration nationalwise and statewise excellent results have been obtained. Connecticut strongly desires that it should be continued and there are reasons for believing that the New Haven convention will place in nomination [illegible] to hold office for the [illegible]rs. Its duty is to [illegible] possible ticket for state government.

THE REPUBLICAN'S CENTURY.

Newspapers come and go. Some are destined to long and useful careers, others to short and hectic existences. There are also those which have struggled through the years only to be merged or bought up and put out of existence in their old age.

Not many are there which carry on o the century mark and maintain a vigorous hold upon the communities which they serve. Yet that is the point which the Springfield Republican has gained and there are reasons for extending congratulations to such a worthwhile newspaper on its anniversary.

The Republican has been a newspaper of high ideals, of an editorial policy that was sincere and clearly expressed and whose service to the community has been immeasurable. Its age covers a period of extensive changes. Conditions not only in the newspaper business, but in all lines of activity, bear little resemblance to those of the days when the Republican was first published. It has had the benefit of that influence and guidance from such masters as the Bowles family has provided for a greater part of its century. It was started after other papers in its neighborhood and in this state were published, and which are still in existence, and it has gained not only a high standing in its community, its own and neighboring states, but its editorial expressions have come in for national and international attention.

It has been a century for the Republican that must be regarded as having fulfilled the ambitions of the founder, and the second century gives promise of being no less noteworthy in its service and accomplishments.

MAKING A REAL TEST.

When Dr. Meiklejohn undertook to make over Amherst he encountered opposition. He was desirous of going over the head of the trustees and establish an institution in keeping with his views regardless of the views of those who were entrusted with the responsibility of making and maintaining the Amherst policies. The result was that Dr. Meiklejohn resigned, and under the circumstances as long as he was unwilling to serve as president of that institution under the requirements of the institution that was the logical thing for him to do.

Now Dr. Meiklejohn is out for the establishment of a new college, one that will be in accord with his views, display a liberality in connection with teaching that may be regarded as bordering on the radical and not be under such restrictions as Amherst and similar other institutions.

This indicates that Dr. Meiklejohn has not undergone any change in his ideas. Likewise the fact that he is [illegible] to establish a new college is inference that he has not o find one that he can according to his own ideas. the case he is resorting to the proper course in setting out to establish a new one. He has let it be known that he will require three million dollars for his project and it should be possible for him to raise that if he can persuade those with available funds that his idea of a college is needed and ought to be provided in order to furnish the proper education for the youth of the present day.

When Dr. Meiklejohn seeks funds he will be able to discover how great a hold his idea has made upon those who are interested in education, and when he gets it established he will be able to ascertain how large a proportion of the people there are who lean to such a view and seek to have it developed through the coming generations. Instead of boring from within and insisting upon upsetting established institutions to suit his views Dr. Mieklejohn properly decided to get out and put the merits of his ideas to a real test.

GETTING RESPECT FOR LAWS.

Getting respect for regulations is bringing to the front the old truism that a law amounts to nothing unless it is enforced. There are even plenty of occasions when enforcement doesn't carry the lesson that it should to others who are in need of it.

In spite of the many arrests for failing to respect the beacons placed in the streets, and particularly at bad corners, there are those who fail to "Keep to the right." Norwich has collected a considerable sum in fines for this disregard of traffic regulations, and there are communities where sums considerably in excess of the cost of buying and installing such beacons have been collected from those who are not disposed to obey.

Much the same attitude is to be found in regard to the parking restrictions. It isn't a vicious habit but it is unquestionably borne of carelessness. It gets to the point where if one person continues to do it others follow suit and before long the regulations are valueless.

In the city of Washington the persistency of the all day parkers has been such that it has become necessary to impose fines of $10 in such cases. It is too big a license to pay with the prospects of frequent repetitions. It is perhaps a larger fine than the act would seem to warrant, but its purpose is to bring respect for the regulations and the fact that it is doing so indicates its justification. It is for the same purpose, in addition to making the highways safer, that the Massachusetts registrar of motor vehicles has so persistently sought the imposition of jail sentences instead of fines for those driving while intoxicated.

BAD BLUNDER PREVENTED.

What must be regarded as a bad break at a critical moment was that which Berlin was about to make and which it was prevented from doing, only through through the timely but to be expected advice on the part of the British and French premiers.

Germany seems to have figured that it ought to be compensated for doing something to aid itself. It was told to Premiers MacDonald and Herriot that the nationalists' assistance in the ratification of the Dawes plan and the London agreement had been obtained through the promise that there would be a repudiation of the war responsibility of Germany which was admitted in the treaty of Versailles. Such a statement had been made in Germany and it was about to be proclaimed to the world when the premiers were made aware of it and promptly put a stop to it.

It can be imagined what such a statement would have meant at any time, but particularly now when the adjustment of the European situation and reparations is about to be accomplished. Perhaps Germany felt that it could repudiate that part of the treaty quite the same as it treated Belgian neutrality, and succeeding in that it could be expected that there would be a complete wiping out of the treaty in time. Just how it figured that the allied nations would accept any such declaration is difficult to understand in view of the opposition which it is known had to be overcome in order to give Germany the benefit of the Dawes plan.

Nothing could have done more toward throwing a monkey wrench into the machinery of better conditions in Europe than this statement, and no worse time could have been selected. Fortunate was it that the German premier took the British and French premiers into his confidence before issuing any such proclamation. Germany has had a hard enough time trying to convince other nations that it would keep its promises and fulfill its obligations without resorting to any such stupid course as that. Berlin needs to have a "Stop, Look and Listen" sign conspicuously placed.

HOPELESS CASE

"Did you have a good time?" politely inquired the family of the pretty flapper who had returned from her evening out to find them recklessly sitting up over mah jongg instead of slumbering, as folks of their age rightfully should have been doing.

"Horrid!" sniffed the flapper frowning hard. "It was rainy and I ruined my new satin slippers getting from the car to the front door—and the tulle on this new dress is a sight and utterly limp—and the curl I got this morning is all out of my hair already——"

"What an expensive evening!" sympathized the visiting uncle interestedly. "I had no idea girls were such fragile propositions these days! Why don't you wear clothes that have some strength and endurance so that you could concentrate on having a good time and forget them?

"When I was hitching up my nag to the high buggy and rushing the girls nothing like this ever happened! If it was winter time the girl wore a knitted nubia on her head, pink or blue or white, with little crystal beads sewed all over to glitter like icicles. And nothing ever happened to her hair. She had kept it up on kid curlers all day and it was so frizzy only death and destruction would have had any effect.

"And, of course, she wore her winter dress. I presume you don't know about that. Years ago every girl or woman had a best winter dress made in the fall out of stout woolen material with a lace collar around the high neck and she wore that dress to church, tea parties concerts, weddings, funerals and trips to town.

"The next year she turned it, what ever process that might be, made it over and used it for second best—when relatives came to supper or her beau called or something like that. The third year it was handed down to her younger sister. I think after that they made rugs of it with a crochet hook.

"Folks always were pointing to rugs and saying, 'See, that blue was Martha's wedding dress and the brown was Aunt Sarah's the year she was married. The black was Henry's old broadcloth he wore for fifteen years and that pretty pink was the little Hotchkiss girl's who visited here.' It really was better than the photograph album for steady entertainment.

"If the horse ran away and pitched the girl into a snowbank or mud puddle it didn't hurt the dress at all. When she got home she just scrubbed the spots with yellow soap and it came out as good as new. Neither was her footgear injured, because she never stirred out of the house to go to an entertainment without donning high overshoes or rubbers over her stout buttoned boots.

"I note that when you come down attired for an evening out, Tashmania, you clasp close to your chest with one hand some sort of a filmy wrap that floats away from you like Queen Louise of Prussia's scarf and reveals your bare neck. It really does cover your spinal column, but beyond that does not work for its living that I can see.

"I tell you that when my old girls joined me at the hitching block they were buttoned up to the ear and down to the toes in mother's best coat because it was warmer than theirs. Usually mother's coat weighed about fifteen pounds and was of chinchilla cloth, which was never known to become disintegrated in the slightest—short of having a dynamite bomb set off beneath it. It had been in the family for twelve years and was treated with great respect and it was a privilege to be allowed to wear it.

"In fact, when a young lady of that period emerged from her home to be escorted anywhere she was a package guaranteed proof against sartorial injury from the elements, accidental and general wear and tear and caused her escort not the slightest worry in that respect. Hence his mind was quite free to ponder on her charms, beauty and desirability and that is why every girl got married so young——"

"But don't you think, Uncle Whoosis," the pretty flapper suggested beguiling ly, "that I'm lots more interesting to look at dressed this way instead of that way?"

"Oh, run along!" said the visiting uncle with a sigh. "And don't sob on my shoulder again, because I see you are quite hopeless! Hey—I'll take that file! Mah jong!"—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George W. P. Hunt, who is seeking nomination for a fifth term as governor of Arizona in today's primaries, was the first governor of that state after its admission to the union. Mr. Hunt has been a rancher-man, merchant, mine owner, and cattlist. He entered politics in 1893, when he sat in the territorial legislature. He presided over the Constitutional convention of 1910, and was influential in giving the product of that body's labors some of its more original features. As governor he has revealed many sympathies with the people that often are hidden by executives in high political office, and has stood for a humanitarian conception of statecraft, penology, and industrial management. He has been especially prominent in his championship of newer theories of penology, and has served as president of the Anti-Capital Punishment Association of the United States.

Stories That Recall Others

The Ants and Fleas.

Six-year-old Ruth had two aunts who held a very real place in her affections. When she accompanied mother to a reunion she found herself possessed of many new aunts—nice, but not the same. The first she received with surprise, the second graciously, the third stoically, the fourth, well to help things on a bit mother explained:

"Ruthie has lots of aunts."

"Oh, yes, I——" agreed, "the ants are my aunts and the uncles are as thick as fleas."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Auto Driving and Insurance.

Mr. Editor: The heat of public indignation will presently weld our opinions into a practical scheme tending to minimize the increasing number of absolutely needless automobile accdents. We are pretty nearly fed up on accounts of traxedies made possible by drink or drug-crazed automobile drivers. With the highways filling up with machines and the manufacturers working feverishly to swell the volume, we have to watch out continuously or take a bump for our own carelessness. The inherent hazard of a self propelled machine weighing a ton or more, shooting 40 and about is quite hazardous enough for the average citizen but when this same machine is being guided by one whose brain is so confused that he couldn't stand up outside of the car he sets in, their disaster is almost certain to follow. The sad part of it is, that this same fool generally comes out unscarred, while the ambulance takes some child, woman, or family head to the hospital, or nearest undertaker.

There are those who are advocating a sort of moral check-up by the insurance companies and hoping to see the day when, unless an applicant for a driver's license can show an insurance policy issued by a reputable company, he can't get a license. To those who are familiar with the ability of such insurance corporations to select their business, such a hindrance appears feasible. It certainly would help if it were utilized. But the insurance companies don't want to assume the custody of the public morals and in justice to them, these companies should not be so required. The system they use for their own protection is just as easily adaptable to use by the state. A committee from each locality to pass upon the moral hazard in connection with applicants for drivers' licenses, or the use of a retail credit reporting system would secure good results. The time should come when insurance will be granted to those who secure licenses and it should not be that only those who can secure insurance should be licensed to drive.

The Pachaug Fair Association.

Mr. Editor: Will you kindly allow me space in your paper to say, we note the items in Jewett City news regarding the Pachaug Fair association being an incorporated body. This was no news to the members of Pachaug grange, as all knew that much, but what we don't know is, how the association came to be so incorporated without a vote of the grange to allow the promoters of the association the use of the name of the grange. The association was formed from members of the grange as any other order might be, but not in the name of the grange unless it was so voted by the grange. Hence the name grange in connection with the association is superfluous. The Pachaug Grange and the Pachaug Fair association are two distinct organizations. Not one penny from the proceeds of the Pachaug Fair association benefits the grange in any way or ever has.

Thomas Tried Many Vocations

When Augustus Thomas was a boy, he spoke pieces in school on Friday afternoons. It was then predicted that he would be a great orator. Out in the world he tried many callings, and often was a public speaker, but his great success came when he wrote rather than declaimed.

Born in St. Louis, he attended the public schools, where he achieved forensic renown and won a host of admirers. At 16 he became a reporter on a St. Louis newspaper, then developed skill as a cartoonist and illustrated his own articles.

Still having the desire to be a public speaker, he studied law two years, then gave up the profession in order to work in the freight department of a railroad. There he joined the union and often addressed the labor gatherings.

Politicians prescribed a career for him, and had him installed as a page in the 41st congress. Returning from Washington, he became editor and proprietor of a newspaper in Kansas City, but it died in infancy. Next he was a candidate for the Missouri legislature, and was defeated.

Once more a writer, he dramatized Francis Hodgson Burnett's story, Edith's Burglar. It proved a success, and he went to New York, where he wrote Alabama. In Missouri, Arizona and many other plays that were popular.

Acting as understudy during productions of his plays, he made only a passing impression, but as a dramatist he was honored by leading organizations of the country.

Continuing in politics he became a member of the Democratic national committee, and was offered the ministry to Belgium by President Wilson, but declined that he might continue his writing.

Then he was chosen executive chairman of the Producing Managers' Assn., and today, at 65, is arbiter of the theater. But he still is a writer and continues to pen plays that are successful.

Tomorrow—Comiskey, The Vacant Lot Pitcher.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

THE WAHABIS

"The Wahabis who are attacking the new Arabian kingdoms, represent the movement in Mohammedanism back to the fundamentals of that religion as taught by its founder," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "They are not peaceful conservatives, however, but believe in carrying their way back to simplicity with dripping swords."

Junius B. Wood in a communication to the National Geographic Society describes these fiery crusaders as follows:

The dangerous factors of Arabia, more ominous than veiled intrigues of European powers, are the Wahabis. Thorugh the centuries they rise and fall. Under their shrewd young sheik, Ab el-Aziz es-Saud, they again are casting threatening shadows across the borders of the British protected kingdoms.

The Wahabis are the oft-pictured zealots of the faith who invite death in order more quickly to enter Paradise, so fanatically religious that they include all other Moslems not of their particular sect among the unbelievers unworthy of life.

The desert land of Nejd, in the center of Arabia, with its capital at Riad, some 400 miles across the burning sands from Ojair, on the Persian Gulf, its only port, is the home of the Wahabis.

For foreigners, or even Arabs who are not of the sect, have seen the capital. There Es-Saud, a man in the early 30's, rules like a despot, though his aged father still is alive. In turn he is dominated by the fanaticism which gives the tribe its strength. His inclination to play the modern game of world politics is limited by the bitter prejudices of his followers.

An alliance with Es-Saud can make him only less of a menace, for his assistance is entirely negative. Except for the Hedjaz, Yemen, and a few other provinces along the coast, he controls all of the Arabia Peninsula.

By the 19th century the Wahabis sect was sufficiently strong to threaten the Turkish Empire, and, under orders of the Sultan, the powerful Mohammed Ali of Egypt placed his son at the head of an expedition which defeated them and sent the leaders to Constantinople to be executed. Its latest rise is one of the post-war developments.

Since Es-Saud defeated his ancient rival, Abdullah Ibn Mitah, and practically exterminated his army in 1921, the Wahabis have been flushed with victory. Yemen, on the south, is strong, and their forays have been directed against the Sheriffian kingdoms on the three other sides.

The Wahabis follow the true teachings of Mohamed—to shun alcohol, adultery, lying, forgery, and fraud. In addition they believe that a spendthrift is abhorred by God, which causes them to despise rich decorations in the mosques—priceless rugs, gold, silver and jewels—and to prohibit smoking, the recreation of every Arab.

They believe that graves should be plain, and that women should not attend funerals because they weep; forbid the wearing of jewelry; and enforce other Puritanical customs. Those who do not do likewise deserve death.

Contrary to the orthodox Mohammedan sects, which contend that no teachers have arisen in the last 1,000 years capable of interpreting the Koran, the Wahabis hold that each believer may interpret it according to his conscience and take the consequences. This leoeralism, however, does not go to the extent of permitting any interpretations contrary to their dogmas.

When the powers of Europe were selecting the rulers for Arabia, Es-Saud had not crushed Ibn Mitah. The two were counterirritants. Both fell into the category of those who might be controlled by an annual subsidy.

Countless rulers, from tribal sheiks upward in rank, are receiving such subsidies, either from Great Britain or France or adroitly from both. Es-Saud probably receives the largest salary, $25,000 a month, with an additional New Year's present of $100,000. He explains to his followers that this is a tribute from the infidels.

The explanation was sufficient as long as Ibn Mitah was a factor in the day's fighting. With him disposed of, other objectives were necessary for the sanguinary enthusiasm. That enthusiasm also sounds a sympathetic chord among Arabs of other creeds, looking upon the Wahabis as a possible means of giving them independence and freedom. Es-Saud, with his $400,000 a year subsidy, cradle his followers add several times that amount to Great Britain's expenses for protecting its proteges from him.

A Little Talk on Thrift

KEEPING A BUDGET

"Saving money, for the young unmarried man, in many cases molds his character by self-denial of things he does not need, improves his health by eliminating dissipation and encouraging regular hours of sleep, improves the quality of his work by putting him in a better physical position and lessening the number of distracting outside interests and influences."

The above is a portion of a letter recently written by a young man in explanation of his reasons for practicing thrift. Until quite recently his salary had been $2,200 a year and his savings have amounted to $100 a month. At the end of the year he was asked for a statement regarding why he was willing to submit to such rigid self-discipline. His letter comprised a sermon on the value of prudent habits.

He stated that he was able to make a large saving by keeping a budget. He did not feel that his habits implied stinginess or rightfulness, but he realized that his success in life depended on his ability to save money now. He said he had observed that few successes in the business world are permanent unless the man had learned to save money, and that he did not believe he ever would amount to much if he did not learn to master himself in the matter of personal expenditures. He displayed a deep appreciation of thrift values when he called attention to the fact that it was not alone the money he was saving that would benefit him in after years, but that to a still greater degree benefits would ensue from the strength of character which he was attaining. By practicing thrift and thus eliminating dissipation he was able to turn his spare time to good advantage by reading the best books and otherwise fitting himself for the great work which it is his ambition to accomplish.

These are truths that should be kept in mind by all young men today who are willing to deny themselves certain passing pleasures in order to improve their morals and their health and save money. Those who adhere to these practices will tomorrow rule the destinies of the business world and the nation.—American Society for Thrift.

Wheat Seed Treated

Wheat seed was treated for smut last year by more than 37,400 farmers following the methods shown them by their county agricultural extension agents, according to reports to the United States department of agriculture. About 53,000 wheat growers demonstrated results obtained from planting selected seed, while these and other methods of producing a better grade product more economically were practiced on more than 94,300 farms.

More farmers adopted improved practices in marketing their products in 1923 than in any other single phase of farm activity in which better methods established by experience and experiment were demonstrated by cooperative agricultural extension workers. The number of farmers adopting improved marketing methods through the influence of extension work during the year, according to reports to the United States department of agriculture, was 939,290.

The planning, preparation, an serving of wholesome and attractive meals from products readily available on the farm was a 4-H club activity in which over 16,500 farm girls enrolled in 1923; according to reports to the United States department of agriculture, and carried to completion the work outlined for the year. Greater use of milk and milk products and of fruits and vegetables, and more varied use of seasonal foods are some features of the improved methods of meal preparation demonstrated by these young homemakers under the direction of cooperative extension workers.

Lightning is the chief cause of this country's forest fires. One series of thunderstorms a few years ago started forty-eight fires in a single forest in six days. Next in order to lightning as an agency of forest destruction are careless campers.

MRS. ADAMS SAYS SHE OWES LIFE TO TANLAC

Friends Had Given Her Up Because Nothing Seemed to Remedy Stomach Trouble.

"If ever a medicine saved anybody's life Tanlac surely saved mine," is the striking statement of Mrs. Anna Adams, 137 New Bridge St., Merrick, Mass.

Mrs. Adams, now seventy-five, is one of those grand old ladies who become more charming with the passing time. She is not only the idol of fourteen children, twenty-seven grandchildren and a number of great-grandchildren, but is beloved by all who know her.

"From a woman of average weight and strength, stomach trouble brought me down to almost a skeleton. My relatives and neighbors thought my days were about over, and I was looking for the end myself. One day I asked one of the family to let me try a bottle of Tanlac and I have almost worshipped Tanlac ever since. My weight has increased from 115 to 165 pounds, and I am feeling fine, all due to a few bottles of Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Visiting Around

"Cock-a-doodle do.
The Old Mare lost her shoe.
Henny Jenny's done her best
To fill with eggs her comfy nest.
I woke the sun at early morn
To ripen all the yellow corn."

sang Cocky Doodles at the Big Farmyard as Little Jack Rabbit Jack pecked through the fence. Only a few yards off, in his comfortable wooden bungalow, lay Old Sic'em, the Farmer's dog. Lazily opening his eyes he turned them toward the bunny boy.

"Well, well, well," he softly barked, coming out so he could shake himself in the warm sunlight, "how's my little friend today?"

"Just as happy as yesterday, but I'm not sure of tomorrow," answered the truthful little rabbit.

"Do what Mother says and every day in the week you'll be happy," replied the old dog, with a wag of his tail.

"I do try but sometimes I forget," admitted the bunny boy.

"Tie a pink string around your finger. That will make you remember," laughed the old dog. "The chain on my collar never lets me forget that I can't go visiting."

"Don't you get fidgetty?" asked the kind-hearted little rabbit offering him a yellow lollypop.

"Often," answered the old dog. "Then the Kind Farmer takes me to the village for a run. When I get back I'm tired and don't mind being tied up. Oh, I'm used to it."

"Sic'em, want to go to the village?" all of a sudden asked a voice, and there stood the Kind Farmer himself in the kitchen door.

Hopping behind the cow-shed, the little rabbit waited until Betsey, the old gray mare, was hitched up to the buggy. Then, clicking his tongue on his teeth, the Kind Farmer drove down the road, followed by the old dog.

"So long," he barked to the bunny boy.

"I'll be back in time for tea,
If you wish you can wait till then for me."

But Little Jack Rabbit had other things to do. Oh, my yes. He couldn't stay in one spot long. No, indeed. Danny Fox might happen by or Old Man Weasel stroll along, so away he hopped to the Shady Forest where the birds sang and Billy Breeze whistled among the tree tops. By and by, after a while, not so very long, he saw Grandmother Magpie. Her sharp eyes had spied him long before he had caught a glimpse of her. Dear me, I wonder why disagreeable people are so apt to see us first. Perhaps it's because we are not thinking of them

"Where are you going?" asked Old Mother Mischief, as she is often called by the Little People of the Sunny Meadow.

"Nowhere in particular," answered the truthful little bunny, wishing he did have an errand that would hurry him along.

"How's your Ma?" asked the troublesome old blackbird, pulling up her black silk mitts. "Is she ironing?"

"Yes, she always irons on Tuesdays," replied the little rabbit, still keeping on his way, only a trifle slower, you know.

"Think I'll make her a call," said Grandmother Magpie, and off she flew into the next story.

COMMON COUNCIL REJECTS OFFERS OF EASTERN CONNECTICUT POWER CO.

The court of common council at its September meeting Monday evening in the council chamber rejected the two proposals made to the city's gas and electric plant on North Main street, or to sell electricity to the city. The rejection of the power company's offer followed a recommendation of the special council committee appointed some time ago to investigate the offer. The council committee in their report stated that the power company's offer was much too low and that the value of the plant is well over $2,000,000. Regarding the power company's proposal to sell the city electricity the committee is of the opinion that the proposed contract would result in a loss if entered into by the city.

Petitions Received

With all members or the council present the meeting was called to order at 7.30 o'clock, standard time, by Mayor Milo R. Waters. The minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading, according to the usual procedure. Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From James Ibbison for an electric light at or near his house on Whittington avenue, referred to the police commissioners.

From J. O'Connell to have a tree removed from in front of No. 69 Pearl street, as the tree obstructs the driveway to the garage. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

From Mrs. Catherine F. Malone for an electric light on Summit Street, referred to the police commissioners.

From Mrs. A. J. Sylvia to have a tree removed at No. 69 Pearl street as its obstructs the entrance to a garage which she is to build. Referred to the public works committee and tree warden with power.

From E. J. and Marie Ouillette for permission to connect their premises at No. 10 Gilmour street with the public sewer in Fourth street. Referred to the public works committee. The latter committee later in the meeting reported that they had investigated the matter and recommended the petition be granted. The recommendation was adopted.

From Emil O. Zahn for permission to connect his property on Gilmour street with the public sewer on Fourth street. Same procedure as preceding petition, the petition being granted.

From Levi R. Gordon to have a tree trimmed in front of No. 30 11th St., referred to public works committee and tree warden with power.

From A. Lacavera to have a tree removed in front of No. 30 11th St., referred to public works committee and tree warden with power.

Special Committee Reports

The next matter taken up was the report of the special council committee on the two proposals made by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company to purchase the city's power plant or to sell electricity to the city.

The committee's report was as follows:

Your committee appointed to investigate and report on two propositions made to the mayor and court of common council by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company under date of March 28, 1924, and revised under date of April 5th, 1924, by The Eastern Connecticut Power Company, beg leave to report that they have investigated the propositions, calling into conference the board of gas and electrical commissioners of the city and representatives of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company at many meetings held by the committee; that in your committee's opinion it is not for the best interests of the city to accept either of the propositions of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company for the following reasons:

The proposition of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company to purchase the plant of the gas and electrical department of the city: In the opinion of your committee there is no question that the price offered by the power company is much too low. The value of the plant is in your committee's opinion well over $2,000,000 and we feel that substantially more than $2,000,000 could be obtained for it if put up for sale in the open market.

The proposition of the Eastern Connecticut Power Company to sell the city electricity under a contract submitted by the power company; from a full investigation made of this proposed contract your committee believes that it would result in a loss if entered into by the city. A copy of the report made to your committee by the board of gas and electrical commissioners of the city under date of August 6, 1924, is filed with this report and your committee believes that it fully states reasons sufficient for rejection of the proposed contract.

Your committee therefore recommends the adoption of the following reslution:

Resolved: That the two propositions made to the mayor and court of common council of the city of Norwich by the Eastern Connecticut Power Company under date of March 28, 1924, and revised under date of April 5, 1924, be rejected by the city of Norwich and that the clerk of this body notify said Eastern Connecticut Power company of the adoption of this resolution.

Respectfully submitted:
MILO R. WATERS,
HENRY GEBRATH,
EDWARD CROOKS,
WILLIAM H. ALDRICH
A. G. LILLIBRIDGE,
Committee.

The report was accepted and the resolution was adopted, thus rejecting the two propositions made by the power company.

The monthly reports of the street commissioner and city treasurer were received and accepted.

The fire commissioners through Alderman Edward Crooks reported they had refused to issue a permit to Arthur H. Lathrop to erect a frame garage on Shetucket street. Alderman Crooks stated that Mrs. A. H. Lathrop was present at the meeting and suggested that she be given an opportunity to explain the situation. Mrs. Lathrop explained the construction of the garage which would have two brick sides and two wooden sides. After some discussion of the matter the report was referred back to the fire commissioners at Alderman Crooks' suggestion.

For Stony Brook Improvement

The board of water commissioners submitted the contract and specifications for the raising of Stony Brook reservoir dam and they were approved by the council. The council then appropriated and authorized the borrowing of a sum not to exceed $60,000 (appropriated at the recent city meeting) to provide for the improvements at Stony Brook reservoir.

Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney, reporting for the police commissioners, stated that in response to petitions a light had been placed at the corner of Boswell avenue and Russell road, one at the corner of Bushnell road and Boswell avenue and one midway between Boswell avenue and Hadley avenue on Bushnell road. The report was accepted.

A communication from P. J. Casey thanking the mayor and the council for the prompt attention to his petition for the trimming of a tree was received, read and placed on file.

Alderman Henry Gebrath, reporting for the public works committee recommended the acceptance of Carver avenue from Whittington avenue to the top of the hill as a public highway when the proper deeds, etc., are submitted. The recommendation was adopted.

The resignation of Abraham Siegal as a member of the regular police force was read by the city clerk. The resignation which becomes effective immediately was accepted upon motion of Alderman Sweeney. No reason for the resignation was stated. Mr. Siegal was appointed to the regular force at the last council meeting.

The council then received and referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel a claim for damages, from John Lapu, 8, made through his father Michael Lapu of No. 12 Sherman street. The claim is for personal injury received by John Lapu March 23, 1924, when he was hit by the deputy fire chief's car.

A bill from T. J. Kelly for services rendered the G. and E. commission was referred to the finance committee and corporation counsel.

New Policeman Appointed

Alderman Sweeney stated that through the resignation of Abraham Siegal there was a vacancy on the regular police force to be filled. He said the police commissioners recommended the first man on the supernumerary list, Fred Shea. The vote was taken by ballot and resulted as follows:

Total ballots cast, 13; necessary for choice 7; Patrick F. Shahan 10; Fred Shea 3.

Patrick F. Shahan who has been a member of the supernumerary force for several years was declared appointed a member of the regular force.

After the various department bills had been approved Alderman Crooks offered a motion that the mayor, police commissioners and corporation counsel be appointed a committee to draw up a proposed amendment to the city power revising that section governing the appointment of members of the police force. The motion was adopted. While no explanation for the motion was given it is understood that the motion has for its object the drawing up of a charter amendment giving the board of police commissioners the same power of appointments to the force as the board of fire commissioners has in the appointment of city firemen.

The bills approved follow:

Water department $4,770.54; fire $9,512.53; police $5,357.50; park $1,-014.36; recreation $1,135; public works department, permanent street improvement, $17,934.83; regular $14,410.31; cemetery department $933.60; Gas and Electric $46,044.28; finance $22,734.69.

The council adjourned about 8 o'clock, S. T.

KRUCK—In Norwich, Sept. 8, 1924, William Adam Kruck, aged 30 years. Notice of funeral hereafter.

TO SHOW PATRIOTISM ON DEFENSE DAY

Battery B, 192nd Artillery, C. N. G., is making plans for national defense day, to be observed Sept. 12th, when the active and reserve forces of the United States are to be mobilized. One feature of their programme will be recruiting the battery to full war strength for one day only. To this end the officers of the battery are circulating the following defense day "association" papers:

"We the undersigned, being of military age, and believing in the principle of national preparedness and believing that our services are due our country in case of emergency, hereby voluntarily associate ourselves with Battery B, 192nd F. A., C. N. G., for this day only, thus showing our appreciation of the work being done in the cause of national defense by the national guard component of the army of the United States."

Signing this paper does not in any way obligate those whose names appear. It is not an enlistment in the battery but simply signifies that those who sign it would be willing to answer the country's call if the "emergency" were a real war emergency.

FALSE FIRE ALARM FROM SMITH AVENUE BOX

One false alarm was included in the four calls for the firemen Monday. It came just after 6 in the evening from Box 612 on Smith avenue near the Greeneville bridge and efforts to discover who pulled the box were unfruitful although one clue was followed up that for a time seemed promising.

About 6:50 there was a still alarm for a fire on the roof of 16 Broadway, a building owned by Harry M. Land and occupied by the Martin house. A shingle on the roof was on fire. It looked as if the blaze had been started by a cigarette probably thrown from a window in an adjoining building.

At 8.05 in the morning there was a call to the home of Dr. L. F. LaPierre for a fire in the doctor's automobile caused by a short circuit. One tank of chemical extinguished the blaze.

In the afternoon at 2:45 there was a call to West Main street in front of the Max Gordon corporation building where the automobile of Samuel Goldberg was on fire. The gasoline tank had been filled, some of the liquid had leaked out and a match thrown by a passerby had set it on fire. The flames spread up to the luggage carrier on the machine and were extinguished with chemical.

BROADWAY BY NIGHT AT PALACE THEATRE

A snappy musical revue was shown at the Palace Theatre Monday, matinee and night, when Joe Wilton appeared in "Broadway By Night" with a company and a chorus that provided two acts of music, mirth and melody.

A beauty congress that deserved the title made up the chorus and had its natural qualifications enhanced by numerous and dazzling changes of costume for its clever and pretty dance numbers that included as features the awakening of the Nymphs, Oriental Fantasy and the Hawaiian Lullabye with Miss Billie Farran.

Mildred Cecil was good to look at and sang well. Lillian Shepard danced her way to numerous encores and Helene Roda's sweet voice was a favorite. Bob Bennett and Phil Fletcher, jazz hounds, Jack Cameron and Leo Lee, clever singers and Bob Capron, an elongated dancer added materially to the life and movement of the production and the pleasure that it gave to those who were there to see and hear.

RENAULT GETS JUDGES' DECISION OVER GODFREY IN LISTLESS BOUT

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—Jack Renault, of Canada, tonight won the judges' decision over George Godfrey, Philadelphia negro heavyweight, in a ten-round bout marked by much clinching at the Philadelphia National baseball park. Renault weighed 200 pounds and Godfrey 215.

It was the Canadian's second victory over Godfrey, he having stopped the negro in the 11th round about a year ago. Renault said he hoped his next fight would be with the winner of the Willis-Firpo match at Jersey City Thursday night.

In the early rounds Renault clinched repeatedly and seemed to tire under the continuous body punches of the negro, who did most of the leading. Godfrey scored the only knockdown of the bout in the first round with a blow to the stomach. From then until the seventh there were but few effective blows landed by either man and the crowd frequently called for more action.

Renault sent a hard right to Godfrey's stomach at close quarters at the opening of the seventh and followed with rights and lefts to the body. Godfrey also landed a number of hard blows to the body and rushed the Canadian to the ropes. Renault jarred the negro with a right to the jaw at the bell.

Godfrey had Renault bleeding from the mouth in the eighth, but the Canadian exchanged blow for blow and landed two stiff rights to the body at the close of the round.

Benny Bass knocked out Al Markie with a right punch to the jaw in the third round of the first preliminary. Bass weighed 122 and Markie 121. Both are from Philadelphia.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, was given an enthusiastic reception as he stepped into the ring to referee the second bound between Joe Lynch of New York and Pete Sarmiento, Philippine Islands.

Sarmiento forced the fighting throughout the ten rounds and won the unanimous decision of the judges. A right to the jaw staggered Lynch in the third round and then in the next the Filipino drew blood from his lips. Lynch claimed to have been hit low in the sixth, but Referee Dempsey ignored the claim. The former bantamweight champion rallied in the final round, landing several times to Sarmiento's stomach and head. His blows, however, appeared to lack steam and failed to slow up his opponent.

In the semi-final George "K. O." Chaney, of Baltimore, knocked out Danny Kramer, of Philadelphia, after 22 seconds of fighting in the first round. After staggering the Philadelphian twice, Chaney sent him to the floor for the count with a left swing to the jaw. Kramer appeared groggy when he was helped from the ring several minutes later by his seconds. The Baltimore fighter had an advantage of 10 pounds. His weight being announced as 135 and Kramer's as 125.

DODGERS BEAT GIANTS; NOW HALF GAME FROM TOP

New York, Sept. 8—Brooklyn defeated New York today, 7 to 2, in a ... battle before close to 40,000 ... fans and moved back to within half a game of ... and league leaders. ... Vance, twirling for the Robins, ... his thirteenth straight trip ... while his southpaw opponent, ... crew under fire after seven ... hard but pulled himself bad holes with the ... defense work by the ... 's homer, scoring ... him in the fifth, gave Brooklyn a lead it never relinquished. ... played all the fire and dash that has carried them through the greatest winning streak any club as had this season. Brooklyn outplayed and outgeneralled McGraw's champions.

Superior work in the field and timely hitting behind Vance's great twirling, carried them to victory.

Deberry's home run drive against the upper left field Grand Stand, with Griffith on base, gave the Robins their Winning margin in the fifth inning.

Besides, Deberry, who had a perday at bat, the Robins assault was led by High, who had a brace of booming tripies, and the veteran Zach Wheat with a single and double.

Vance held the Giants to six hits and added six strike out victims to his long list. He was hit hard, however, in the third and fourth, when the Giants scored their only runs, chiefly through Jackson's triple and Young's double, and had narrow escapes from further damage in the fifth and sixth innings.

Gowdy doubled to start the fifth, but a double play engineered by Stock, nipped a budduding rally. Score:

JOHNSON EASILY BEATS ATHLETICS; SCORE 8 TO 4

Philadelphia, Sept. 8.—The Washington Senators opened a brief series in Philadelphia today by sending the Athletics down to an 8 to 4 defeat. The veteran Walter Johnson worked easily behind the lead his teammates piled up in the opening innings and was never in serious trouble. Hauser and "Bing" Miller solved him for home run blows but the bases were clear on both occasions and the blows did little damage. Score:

RUTH'S 44TH HOMER WINS GAME FOR YANKEES

Boston, Sept. 8.—Babe Ruth's 44th home run of the year, with Dugan on third base in the eighth inning, went into the middle of the center field bleachers and gave the Yankees a 3 to 0 victory over Boston today. Bush, twirling for New York, held the Red Sox to two hits. Ruth's clout was made off Fullerton.

CHASE TO TAKE FIRPO CASE TO PRESIDENT TODAY

New York, Sept. 8.—President Coolidge will receive the evidence of Canon William S. Chase, upon which he bases his demand for the deportation of Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, tomorrow. Three days hence Firpo is scheduled to meet Harry Wills. Announcement that Canon Chase had obtained an appointment at the White House was made today by his attorney, Bernard H. Sandler.

Tomorrow, also, if Mr. Sandler's information is correct, fire from another quarter will be directed against the heavyweight bout. Representatives of the New York Jersey state council of churches, the Hudson County Sunday school association, the Hudson Women's Christian Union and members of the special prize fight committee of the Clergymen's Community club of Jersey City were in conference with Mr. Sandler today and reviewed all the evidence contained by Mr. Chase. It was said that steps to prevent the bout would be taken not later than tomorrow.

All the allegations against Firpo are based upon his alleged relations with Miss Blanca Lourdes Picart, a passenger on the steamer which brought the Argentine to America early in the year.

"The president can revoke bail," Mr. Sandler said, "and if bail is revoked Firpo can be confined on Ellis Island until the hearing. The commission of immigration must approve Mr. Curran's act in permitting bail of $1,000, as Firpo was arrested on a departmental warrant. Bail is not mandatory, but discretionary, and the president may order it revoked through Secretary of Labor Davis.

"If Mr. Rickard is sincere in his desire to clean up boxing as baseball and motion pictures have been cleaned up, then I would suggest that he call off the fight until Firpo's fate is settled. If the boxer is cleared, the fight could go on".

WILLS CONFIDENT OF BEATING THE ARGENTINE

Southampton, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Expressing complete confidence in the result of his match with Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, at Boyle's thirty acres, Jersey City, Thursday night, Harry Wills closed his training campaign today and prepared to leave for New York tomorrow.

Wills is familiar with Firpo's style of fighting, having seen the Argentine in three of his big fights, including the hectic battle with Jack Dempsey. The negro, believing that the battle will be brief, said today he would fight Firpo at the latter's own game, endeavoring to batter him into submission as quickly as possible.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Captain New York Giants

With a runner on a first base and a slow man at bat, the batter hits to the first baseman.

How should the first baseman make the play?

In a situation of this kind with a slow runner at the bat, the first baseman should throw the ball to second base first. It is necessary that he make a fast and accurate throw and then hustle back to first base, in order to take the return throw from second to complete the double play. On such a play, the shortstop should cover second.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE AT BULKELEY STARTS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 8.—Active football practice at Bulkeley High school was deferred one day, and will not begin until Tuesday afternoon instead of this afternoon as was originally planned. However, soon after school was dismissed promptly after the noon whistle, prospective candidates for the eleven assembled before Headmaster Homer K. Underwood in the school assembly. Head Master Underwood in turn introduced the new Bulkeley athletic coach, William R. Canty.

Coach Canty explained the intricacies of the great outdoor sport and in turn asked all those who would try out for the team to cooperate with him. Coach Canty emphasized the word cooperate, for, he added that little or nothing could be accomplished if the team members did not cooperate with him. About sixty-five prospective candidates attended the meeting which was an enthusiastic one indeed.

Before Coach Canty was formally introduced to the gathering, Head Master Underwood explained that Mr. Canty was the selection of the trustees and himself and was the suitable man for the open position which was made possible through the detreminatation of Robert T. Aldrich to enter the insurance field. The eligibility of the players was also discussed and it was announced that all the present candidates were eligible for the team, but at the end of the first two weeks in October, the standing of the players in the lessons would either cause him to be declared ineligible if he did not meet the grade demanded of him. This point was especially stressed by Head Master Underwood, and he added that this rule would be enforced more rigidly this season than ever before.

For the first time in the history of Bulkeley school, a football team will be completely outfitted by the school. While this will not aply to the entire squad, yet the varsity men will receive their togs from the school. This is welcome news to many of the first string players, and those who were kept out of football because they were unable to purchase the necessary equipment.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Thomas Hinds, of Goshen, N. Y., veteran Grand Circuit driver, received fatal injuries late today when Bonnie Del the horse he was driving, collided with Tommy Murphy's Clyde the Great, at the quarter-mile turn in the second head of the New York State Fair. Physicians who rushed to Hinds' aid after the accident declared his skull was fractured and he died as he was being lifted into an ambulance.

West Ends Want Games

The West Ends of Willimantic are without a game for this coming Saturday and Sunday September 13 and 14th and they would like to hear from any fast team in and around Norwich.Out of town games wanted. Games wanted especially with Duwells, Voluntown, Batic, J. B. Martin, Taftville, Moosup and teams of like calibre. Address Mgr. H. Heller, 947 Main street Willimantic, Conn., or Tel. 236-5.

Fournier Slightly Injured

New York, Sept. 8.—Jacques Fournier, slugging first sacker of the Brooklyn Robins, pulled a "Charley Horse" in his leg in fielding an infield hit by Terry of the Giants in the fifth inning of today's game at the Polo grounds and was forced to retire.

The mishap was said not to be serious, however, and Fournier may return to theline-up tomorrow.

Sullivan Selected as Referee

New York, Sept. 8.—Danny Sullivan, of Newark, has been named referee of the Wills-Firpo heavyweight bout by the New Jersey boxing commission, it was learned tonight. Sullivan has officiated at numerous championship battles and is reputed to be unusually efficient in making fighters hustle while in the ring.

FIRST GAME OF INTERNATIONAL POLO MATCHES WILL BE PLAYED TODAY

New York, Sept 8.—(By The A. P.)—The opening skirmish for International Polo honors between the United States and Great Britain, postponed from last Saturday because of wet grounds, is slated to take place tomorrow afternoon at the Meadowbrook club Westbury, Long Island.

Unless the weather again upsets plans for the start of the series for the Historic International challenge cup, the game will begin at 4 o'clock with a colorful crowd of 40,000, including the Prince of Wales, as the background for one of the most picturesque of sport spectacles. The second game is scheduled for next Saturday and a third, which will be played regardless of the outcome of the other two, probably will take place September 17.

America's "big four" will ride into the fray tomorrow an even stronger favorite than before last week's postponement. Instead of benefiting by the few days' delay the British combination suffered fresh misfortune when its star and Captain, Louis L. Lacey, Anglo-Argentine back contracted shingles and will be out of the opening line-up. This mishap, the climax of a series that has followed the Britisherg, necessitated an eleventh hour shift in the invaders' line-up and further reduced their prospects of victory.

Against the powerful Yankee four captained by Devereug Milburn, veteran of five International campaigns, the Britts will put forward a makeshift combination composed of Majors Kirkwood, Phills-Hornby, Hurndall and Atkinson. Lacey's place at back, where he was expected to bear the brunt of the British attack and defense, has been taken by Atkinson, with Phipps-Hornsby moving in at No. 2 to replace Hurndall, now at his old place at No. 3, where he will be acting captain.

Lacey's illness followed a previous injury to his shoulder which had kept him out of practice for about two weeks. He may be in condition to play the second game, it was said today. But if so it is doubtful whether he will be able to attain the form which made him the most feared of the challenging forces.

Supporters of the British cause, however, are not altogether discouraged. They recall that ten years ago, when called little chance, they scored a startling upset by taking two straight games and breaking the reign of America's famous original "big four," led by Harry Payne Whitney.

The opposing line-ups:

America	Position	Great Britain
J. Watson Webb	No. 1	Major T. W. Kirkwood
Thomas Hitchcock, Jr.	No. 2	Major G. Phippa-Hornby
Malcolm Stevenson	No. 3	Major F. B. Hurndal (Capt.)
Devereux Milburn (Capt.)	Back	Major E. G. Atkinson

GOLDSTEIN RETAINS TITLE IN SLASHING BOUT WITH RYAN

Long Island City, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Abe Goldstein, world's bantamweight champion successfully defended his title in a furious 15-round match tonight against Tommy Ryan, of McKeesport, Pa., at the Queensboro A. C. The challenger narrowly escaped a knockout in the 13th round.

Goldstein had a wide margin on his opponent after the seventh round, previou to this the titleholder fought more of a defense fight, working under wraps and concealing the attack that later carried him to a sweeping victory.

In the thirteenth round Goldstein, working from long range, swung his battery of rights and lefts into action and drove the reeling Ryan about the ring, punch drunk and on the verge of a knockout. Again in the 15th round it looked like the shades for Ryan but he gamely mustered enough resistance to weather the storm and remain upright until the bell.

Goldstein tonight looked far better than he did against Charlie Ledoux the French flash, when the two met at the Velodrome earlier in the summer. Naturally a strong defensive fighter, Goldstein appeared tonight as though he could force Ryan to carry all of the fight to him but after the seventh he threw off the shackles of reserve that had punctuated his fighting up to this point and with a two-fisted attack bore into in fighting Ryan and almost swept him off his feet by the furiousness of his attack.

But Ryan was game. A shorter reach than his opponent and a far shorter body handicapped Ryan to some extent but despite this he waded into the champion, endeavoring to get inside and score from close range, but Goldstein had other plans and from his distant position he jabbed Ryan into submission and then crossed his terrific right which all but knocked the McKeesport boy for the count. Goldstein weighed 116 3-4 and Ryan scaled 117.

VILLA-GENERO FIGHT TO BE STAGED ON SEPT 23

New York, Sept. 8.—The Pancho Villa-Frankie Genaro flyweight title match, originally scheduled for the Nostrand A. C. in Brooklyn last Thursday night, but postponed when Genaro developed a sudden illness, will be held Tuesday, Sept. 23, the State Athletic commission decided today. The flyweights will fight 15 rounds to a decision.

TWENTY-FIVE REPORT FOR FOOTBALL AT CHAPMAN TECH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept 8. — With the opening of the school today, Chapman Technical High gridiron warriors donned their mole skins, for the first time this season, although a week has already been in preliminary training. The week which began a day after Labor Day and which terminated Saturday, showed that the majority of the early candidates were not seasoned players, but instead consisted mostly of freshmen, and other upper classmen with ambitious hopes to get the jump on their more seasoned school mates for the various positions.

Even of the green hands at football there were a comparatively small number. Not more than fourteen reported in any one day last week to Coach Weaver, but with the opening of school today and with sounding of the first real gong for gridiron practice, about twenty-five answered the call. Of this number all were not completely fitted out in football togs, for practice was of the elimentary nature only. Kicking the ball and callisthenic exercises occupied the undivided attention of the Tech mentor.

Of the regulars from last season, only Captain Martin, left half back Brown full back Kannenberg and Ernie Hicks reported. Bernie Hewitt and Courbois were in their street cloths and did not take any part in the afternoon's practice. However, Hewitt is expected to report either Tuesday or Wednesday, while it will be a week before Courbois will don his togs for he is not back at the institution as yet. If these players persist in holding back a week before they report for practice it will mean that little will be accomplished this week. Outside of Captain Martin at guard, the entire line at Tech is gone with only the backfield remaining intact, that is if both Hewitt and Cour bois join the squad.

The Tech schedule is not complete as yet, but part of it will be announced within a week's time.

SHIP AND ENGINE TEAM WINS INDUSTRIAL TITLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 8.—The New London Ship and Engine is sitting pretty on the top of the Industrial league after this evening's outcome with the Connecticut Power team and are out there to stay. It was the deciding contest of the league and now that the final winner is definitely decided, the league may abandon the remainder of the schedule and have its affairs wind up with this game. The final outcome of this evenings game was 5 to 1 in the ship worker's favor, and even though the game went but four innings, it was called a full victory for the Ship and Engine.

It is most probable that a meeting of the league managers will be called in a day or two, for the purpose of deciding whether the league should finish its schedule. This evening's collection, which goes towards defraying the expenses of the league, was not taken up. There were few fans who viewed the game, for they no longer cherish the idea of witnessing a five inning game in the cool evenings. And some times it is lucky that the games go le innings, for darkness descends rapidly upon the field.

Toolin twirled the Ship and Engine to its final game, while Chappell opposed him for the Connecticut Power. There was little good playing by either team, and but half of the Power team were attired in baseball uniforms.

MURPHY HAS BIG DAY AT SYRACUSE

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Tommy Murphy, Syracuse reinsman and leading money winner for the season among the Grand Circuit drivers, made his 1924 debut before his fellow townsmen today with a victory as driver of Hope Frisco, the favorite in the 2:10 trot, the opening number of the circuit program at the New York state fair.

Hope Frisco won the first two heats in easy fashion and was second in the third, losing ground because of a "break" at the half-mile post.

Murphy was bruised and badly shaken up in an accident during the second heat of the 2:05 pace, which proved fatal to Tommy Hinds. Despite his experience, Murphy returned to the track for the third heat, with the permission of the judges, and drove his Clyde the Great home a heat winner although honors in the race went to Walter Sterling, winner of the first two heats.

The 2:09 was the closest race of the day, honors going to Hal N. C. A. driven by Martin.

Logical, driven by Hutler, was outstanding in the 2:10 pace and won each heat by a length or more.

New York, Sept. 8.—With the question of the holding of the fight still in doubt, Luis Angel Firpo and Harry Wills went on with their training today for their bout at Boyle's thirty Acres Thursday night.

The "Wild Bull" shadow boxed for fifteen minutes then went four rounds with his sparring partners, Jack Townsend and Bill Tate, taking on Townsend for the first two sessions and winding up the afternoon's work with Tate.

Firpo worked in close in the bout with Tate and gave the Giant negro plenty to do to avoid punishment at close quarters. Tate used the Wills style of boxing in the clinches, holding with one hand and hitting on the break.

REVENUE CUTTER BRINGS TO N. LONDON G-173, WITH 100 CASES OF LIQUOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 8.—Revenue cutter Walter Q. Gresham, in passing through Block Island sound this morning came upon the G-173 of New Haven, Captain Robert Benson, Hotel Avon, also of New Haven, laden with liquor. After a chase in which three shots were fired from the deck of the cutter the rum-runner was stopped and taken in charge by the crew of the cutter.

The Gresham had reached a point about 12 miles off Montauk Point when the New Haven craft was sighted leaving one of the ships at anchor off Rum Row. The cutter did not increase its speed until the G-173 had reached the three mile limit. Then the Gresham was speeded, but the cutter could not overhaul the rum-runner. Finally the order was given to fire two blank shots across the bow of the G-173 in the hopes that the rum-runner would be brought to a stop, but the warning did not cause the master of the craft to slow down.

An order was then given to send a load of shrapnel after the booze-laden boat and when Benson heard the leaden missiles flying through the air he wisely brought his craft to a stop. It was boarded by an officer of the cutter and the nature of the cargo being revealed the craft was taken in tow and brought to this port. The G-173 was moored at the pier of the United States Coast Guard academy and the cargo of 100 cases of King's liquor was transferred to the sub-cellar of the customs house.

Late this afternoon Benson was brought before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich and was held for trial for violation of the prohibition laws in bonds of $5,000. The G-173 and Benson have been apprehended before in the rum-running traffic.

Patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital Sunday and today were Stanley Boreda 1114 Winthrop street and Mrs. W. D. Smith, Hotel Mohican.

Wilmont Chappell Greene, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Greene, of Mystic, died at the private hospital, following a brief illness with pneumonia.

Thomas Murphy, of New London and Benjamin Bogue, Stonington, convicted of burglary at the recent session of the superior court at Norwich were taken up to the state reformatory at Cheshire, by Sheriff Sidney A. Brown.

D. O. Dutton of Norwich, is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. A. Davis, 26 Williams street.

The fall term of Connecticut college will open Sept. 24. It is anticipated that 175 students will enroll and if this number prove correct the registration the coming term will be close to 475.

Mrs. Curtis Gager, of Groton, is entertaining Mrs. William V. Armstrong and son, from Brooklyn, N. Y.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Falvey, 19 Clover court, of the marriage July 24, of their daughter, Margaret Falvey and Christian H. Funk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Funk, United States Coast Guard academy. Mr. and Mrs. Funk have taken up their residence in Philadelphia.

Peter Peterson, of 159 Willetts avenue, former public service operator, now following his vocation as a painter, will be in the police court tomorrow morning, charged with violation of the automobile law in operating his automobile under the influence of liquor.

Peterson, loaded up with strong drink, late this afternoon, and while attempting to operate his machine through Pequot avenue, the car climbed the curbing and crashed against a wooden fence, smashing it and damaging his machine. Continuing through Pequot avenue, Peterson drove the car to Howard street and then to Hamilton street. In attempting to guide the machine across the highway bridge on the latter street the car collided with the bridge, wrecking the automobile. A resident of Hamilton street had observed Peterson's condition and had telephoned to the police station. Motorcycle officer William Babcock located Peterson and the wrecked car on Hamilton street. Peterson was arrested and hooked up and the car was towed to a garage.

A dog was killed late this afternoon by an automobile. Michael J. Hallisey, 197 Vauxhall street, in operating his car through Williams street, corner of Main street, struck a roaming animal and killed it.

The case of Floyd Mitchell, proprietor of a pool room and club house, 115 Atlantic street, charged with conducting a gaming resort and the charge of frequenting a gambling house lodged against James Wigg colored, New York, were nolled in the police court this morning because of a sudden lapse of memory on the part of Wigg. Sunday morning Wigg claimed to have been relieved of $200 in a crap game at the Mitchell place and all because "loaded dice" were used. Wigg made known this fact at the police station and later both Mitchell and Wigg were arrested. When the case was called in court this forenoon Wigg declared that he had not visited the Mitchell club and that he had no knowledge of his acts of the night before, declaring that he had taken two drinks of liquor and that his mind was an entire blank as to the happenings of the two nights previous. There being no testimony at hand to convict Mitchell or Wigg, Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin asked for a nolle and the request was granted.

Jason Thomas, of 21 Moore court, this morning complained to the police because of the practice of Daniel DeLong and George Yates, also residents of the court, because of the acts of the latter in causing a clothesline to be stretched in front of the Thomas residences.

New Londoners had a splendid view of the world fliers this noon when they passed over the city about 1.30 on the way from Boston to New Haven, whence they went on to Mitchel Field, Long Island. The planes were preceded by six flying planes in V formation with a single plane far to the westward. The planes of the men who had circled the world were in the same formation as the escort that preceded them, the Chicago, with Lieut. Smith in the lead. Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, who resided here a number of years on Post Hill and who was employed at the Ship and Engine company works, is the mechanic of the Chicago, so New Londoners had more than the usual interest in the planes and their occupants. The flying machines were at an altitude of about 1,000 feet as they went over the city directly, their bodies shining in the sunlight. The Boston II and the New Orleans flanked the Chicago on either side. The whistles of all the steam craft in the harbor and the locomotives and the whistles of the factories announced the coming of the fliers and brought out the people who had a fine view of the famed aircraft.

Edward Soltz, operating an automobile with a Jersey license, was fined $3 in the police court this morning, because he did not have his license with him when he was in a mix-up that called attention to him.

William E. Parmelee was fined $5 for failing to obey the signal of Policeman Selinitzky who was acting as traffic officer at Bank and Howard street Saturday evening, Parmelee running past the officer and failing to stop until he was called on to do so. Emil Meyer, a Hartford driver, Edward W. Griswold of Groton, Walter Thompson and Patsy Vitro of this city were before the court for violating the traffic ordinances, but judgment was suspended in each case.

William Metzermacher was charged with failure to support his wife. He was reported as providing for her now by the probation officer so the case was continued for a couple of months.

Frank Dawson of Jersey City is held here on a charge of non-support of his wife and children. He will be taken to New Jersey tonight or tomorrow.

The funeral of Oscar Edgecomb was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 6 Williams street, and was attended by a large gathering of mourners, among whom was a delegation of members of the Jibboom club. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Burial was in the family plot in Cedar Grove cemetery.

An automobile operated by Mrs. L. Henry Saxton, 327 Broadway, Norwich struck George Tilton, 32 Golden street, this afternoon, corner of Huntington and Church streets. Tilton sustained abrasions of the nose and right leg and lacerations of the left hand. He is now a patient at Lawrence hospital. Tilton was crossing the highway at the intersecting streets and was struck with considerable force and hurled to the ground. He was given assistance by pedestrians and as he was in need of medical attention he was transferred at once to the hospital.

The fall term of the public schools opened today with a large number of pupils in attendance.

The fire department was called out early this morning to subdue a blaze in the grocery store of Joseph Belgrad, 28 Montauk avenue. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals and without much damage resulting. The fire was discovered about 5.30 o'clock when a lively blaze attracted a pedestrian. The flame was located among a quantity of matches behind a counter and gave indication of destroying the building. An alarm was sent in from Box 47, in front of Nameaug school and with the arrival of the firemen one tank of chemical was sufficient to extinguish the blaze.

An automobile owned and operated by Joseph S. Collins, 84 Howard street, struck and killed a dog on Main street this morning.

The police believe that they have rounded together another gang of youthful burglars as a result of the break Sunday afternoon at the store of the Alling Rubber company, 163 State street. This afternoon two youths were arrested charged with the break and some of the plunder taken from the store was recovered. This forenoon Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh were assigned to the case and their investigation resulted in the two youths being suspected. A questioning of the youngsters resulted in their admitting their part of the break and the recovering of a sweater, several referee's whistles, boxing gloves, baseballs and baseball gloves.

STONINGTON

There were four cases in the Stonington town court Monday morning. A Pawtucket young man charged with stealing goods from the store of Louis Rosenberg. Clothing to the value of $600 had been stolen from the store. The youth under arrest had only $5 worth of this. He was fined $15 and the costs of court.

John B. Coughlin was charged with reckless driving on the Stonington road. He injured another man named Austin. The two had settled the matter between themselves so Coughlin's case was nolled without costs.

Maurice Wein was charged with operating an automobile recklessly at the Elm street crossing on August 31. He collided with a machine from Providence on that morning and was ordered to appear in court by Officer Stanton of the state highway police. It developed that young Wein was at the time operating an automobile with Connecticut registration with a Rhode Island license and that charge was brought against him instead of the original one. Judge Wilcox fined him $5 and costs, which he paid. As Maurice Wein was under 21, Max Wein acted as guardian.

In the state vs. Tony Gentile of Paucatuck, Gentile was in collision with a man named Lahn in Westerly August 27th. It was brought out that Lahn was as much to blame as was Gentile. The case was nolled, without costs.

Hundreds lined the shores and streets Monday afternoon to watch the world fliers pass over the town at 1.45 p. m. The whistle at the Atwood Machine Co. was blown as soon as the fliers were sighted so that the townspeople knew when to look for the birdmen. They flew almost directly over the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway tracks, on the north side of the borough. They were flying very high and it was impossible to get a good look at them without field glasses. They appeared only as specks in the sky but could easily be distinguished.

COLCHESTER

A bulletin has been issued, "Why Don't You Bring Your Little Baby to the Well Child Conference?" The conference is to be held Thursday, Sept. 11, in Grange hall from 2 to 4 p. m. The children really enjoy it. My little girl was a bit afraid at first, but when she found that the doctor was not going to hurt her, but was just looking into her eyes, nose, ears and throat to see if they were all right, it was just like play. When the nurse put her on the scales, that was a new experience and she was a little bit afraid but now that is real fun, so she looks forward each month to the Conference. While many mothers have responded to this conference, there are many others who should be receiving the benefit of this thorough physical examination. Children should gain normally each month. By bringing the child to the Well Child Conference it is possible to keep a record of the gain and find out almost at once if any physical defect has developed. Such cases are referred to the family physician and mothers already realize the value of having these corrected at once.

WESTERLY

The three round-the-world aeroplanes, with seven accompanying planes, passed by (not over) Westerly at about 1.20 Monday afternoon, so far to the northward that to the average observer they appeared little more than specks in the sky.

From the most advantageous lookout, at the top of Hinckley Hill, in Pawcatuck, the whirr of the propellers of the approaching air fleet could be heard some time before the outline of the airships could be seen. It was just before the ringing strokes of the Elm street school bell ceased that the first faint whirr could be detected. The planes appeared away to the northeast and to the northward of the hills beyond Ashaway. Like a double flock of wild geese they appeared, growing larger and larger, and then it seemed that a turn was made toward Norwich, possibly as the city of New London was sighted in the clear atmosphere, the sun having emerged from clouds in the sky at the time. As one watched the formation, a plane was seen to loop away to the left of the V formation, traveling rapidly and passing nearer to Westerly than the other planes and then to swing in on the rear of the V to pass above it and to overtake the other planes with its superior speed.

A number of fans who were listening in on their radio sets at the time of the passing of the fleet report that they distinctly heard the radio man in the fleet say that the fleet was at that time six miles north of Watch Hill Point. Later they report that he stated that he might be "lost" for a moment as his plane was circling back and this was borne out by the course of the plane, as it was to the northward of Westerly. Later, the radio man said that the fleet was at the source of the Thames river and would soon be in New London. Many Westerly people were disappointed in not seeing the air visitors as they did not anticipate a course so far to the north. Just as the Elm street school bell began ringing "the last bell" the faint sound of the whirring propellers was lost to the ear.

The death of Howard Stillman Crandall, 56, occurred Sunday afternoon at his home, 20 Chestnut street. He had been in ill health for the past few years, but was planning a three months' automobile trip when he sustained a shock.

He was born in Galesburg, Ill., July 28, 1868, the son of Amasa and Amelia Wilcox Crandall. He came to Westerly when a boy.

He was a licensed electrician and for a time conducted a store for electrical supplies at the corner of Union and Broad streets and for the past few years he has had a shop on Rocker street.

He received his electrical training at the plant of the General Electric company in Schenectady, N. Y. and later worked for the Westinghouse company at Pittsburgh. He also spent several years as superintendent of the armature spool and insulating department of the Canadian Electric company.

Mr. Crandall was deeply interested in genealogy and was compiling the Crandall genealogy at the time of his death. The work was practically completed and the book was soon to be published.

Besides his wife, Caroline Brewer Crandall, he is survived by a son, Raymond Utter Crandall, of Providence, and three grandchildren.

Saturday morning at the Immaculate Conception church Miss Vincenzina Capalbo and Pasquale Gabriele, both of Westerly, were united in marriage by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. riage by Rev. Henry Bruno, S. M. ceremony was celebrated by Rev. Daniel F. Sullivan, S. M. The bride was attended by Miss Molly Gabriele, a sister of the groom. Carmine Vederito was best man. Misses Annie Vederito and Rosina Alciere were the flower girls. The wedding marches and interludes were played by Mrs. Frank Ahern, the organist.

Following the ceremony at the church, a breakfast was served at the groom's home on the Red Quarry road. A reception for relatives and friends was held in the afternoon and dancing was enjoyed on an out-of-door platform. Mr. Gabriele is a Westerly taxi driver.

Angelo Terranova, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Terranova, of 66 Oak street, was struck by an automobile driven by Thomas Sculco of 14 Dayton street, near the High street bridge during the noon hour Monday. The child was attended by Dr. M. H. Scanlon and an examination showed that there were slight cuts and bruises about the face and on the chest.

Patrolman George H. Champlin learned that the boy was returning home from the Pleasant street school when the accident happened. The boy ran from the High street bridge across to Oak street in front of the Sculco machine. It is said that one of the rear wheels of the car passed over the boy.

WESTERLY TROLLEY ROAD SOLD TO A JUNK FIRM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Sept. 8.—The Westerly town council and the Westerly highway committee met together on Monday morning, in the council chamber of the Westerly town hall to consider the question of the junking of the Shore Line electric road, when the matter was practically placed in the hands of the Westerly highway committee. Receiver Robert W. Perkins of Norwich, of the Shore Line, has notified the town of Westerly that the road had been sold to a junk firm. Inasmuch as the electric system is in the hands of a receiver, the ability of the company to carry out its charter requirements of replacing the torn up roadbed as good as at the time the rails are removed is uncertain.

Under these conditions it will be necessary sometime, when the rails are taken up, for the town itself to bear the greater expense in replacing these roads. At present it would be a calamity to allow these rails to be taken out, as the town has no money to put into temporary or permanent road construction on these streets, and should not have to do some of this work for several years.

C. W. Campbell, acting for the town council, suggested that the rails on these streets, which the town does not want to repair immediately, be left in the ground and become the property of the town, to be sold at some future time when the town might want to rebuild these streets. He suggested that a cash payment be made to the town to help in the reconstruction of these roads.

It was pointed out that outside of the places where the town will ask to have the rails left in the road, the only protection the town will have will be that given in the franchise, which says that the roads will be left in as good condition as at present.

It was also decided that the council would pass any vote that might be necessary to delegate the authority to the highway commission to have full authority in representing the town in protecting its interests.

MAKING INVESTIGATION OF MOHEGAN HILL ACCIDENT

State police from the Groton barracks are investigating the accident Sunday evening on Mohegan hill in which two motorcyclists were slightly injured. Ignatius Zukowski and Frank Wasscuk of Norwich, who were on the motorcycle, were thrown from the vehicle when it collided with a car operated by M. J. Schooman of Center street, New London. The injuries to the men were cuts and bruises for which they were treated at the Backus Hospital. State police still have the matter under investigation.

Flowers at Tubercular Pavilion

A hidden bit of beauty little suspected by those who travel the main highway past the Norwich state hospital is presented by the flowers at the tubercular pavilion among "The Pines." Persons having occasion to visit patients at the pavilion comment with enthusiasm at the lovely sight made by the collection of salvia, cannas, dahlias, petunias, balsam, marigolds, gladiola and zinnia.

At the residence of Mrs. K. M. Penhallow, in Uncasville, the former Charles L. Hubbard estate, the hedge of hydrangeas is coming into bloom and never was more beautiful or prolific.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

GOVERNOR'S DAY TODAY OPENS KINGSTON FAIR

Kingston fair this year will open in where the ordinary fair leaves off, that is to say, instead of working up gradually to a high scale of excitement and enthusiasms, the officials of this year's state exhibit plan to burst out the first day into all the glory of Rhode Island's greatest enterprise at its best.

Tuesday it opens with Governor's Day with Hon. Frederick A. Wallis, commissioner of correction, as the chief speaker.

Commissioner Wallis first came to national fame as commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, where his vigorous clean up campaign and his "master of quality and quantity" in our immigrants was introduced. He certainly did better conditions there and his policies still prevail.

He is by all standards and qualifications a man of brilliant character and an orator of exceptional power. He never fails to win his hearers, he has honored Kingston Fair by accepting the invitation to speak. At the conclusion of his masterful talk, Rhode Island folks will then witness the best exhibits of agricul- seen at a fair. The rounds will be ng displays, of her. Races every day, an y long list of entries has been ived. New England favorites conspicuously dot the list, and many promising new-comers are slated to give the present record holders a speedy rub. In horse racing as in any other sport surprising upsets are not uncommon and it is not out of the way to expect an unheard of entry walk away with the track laurels.

Something new in vaudeville entertainment has been secured. Barney Demaree and his trained horses is the headliner, this troupe featuring Jessie Lee Nichols and his society horse show and circus was one of Ringling Bros.' greatest acts, until the popularity of this troupe requires they make a circuit of their own. The remarkable almost human behavior of these horses is truly amazing and the clown mule furnishes the necessary comedy to make the act a complete success.

An added feature by no means one bit less interesting than the horse show is Fred Kerslake's trained pigs, hitherto thought to be incapable of training. This act is truly a novelty in the east. Twice daily these free acts will perform for Kingston fair enthusiasts.

The horse show comprises all the best pure bloods in the east. Every breed name and class is represented by a long list of competitors.

From one end of the grounds to the other, every available space has been utilized to make the 50th anniversary of Kingston fair a big success.

Broad Theater

Colleen Moore once again corrals all honors as the perfect flapper of the screen.

This time the dainty First National star wins the jazz age sweepstakes in a photodrama entitled The Perfect Flapper, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and Wednesday.

The little lady of Flaming Youth and Painted People simply "runs away" with the material given her and it is not saying too much to predict that her characterization of Tommie Lou Pember, the modern girl who wondered: What kind of a girl must I be to be the kind of a girl the boys want me to be, as something that will go down in motion picture history with her interpretation of Pat Fenris in Flaming Youth.

In Flaming Youth and Lilies of the Field, John Francis Dillon gave promise of still greater things directorially. He fulfills our faith in him in the Perfect Flapper. It has moments of magnificent drama and scenes of extraordinary depth and feeling.

The cast is of exceptional merit and has been perfectly selected. Frank Mayo, Sydney Chaplin, Lydia Knott and Charles Wellesley are able supports.

Reveal True Character.

The taste of beauty and the relish of what is decent, just and amiable perfects the character of the gentleman and the philosopher.—Shaftesbury.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

A new show of vaudeville and pictures began a three day run at the Broadway theater yesterday.

Music, song, dance, comedy, novelty made up an exceptional program of Keith Vaudeville.

The first American tour of the foremost manipulator of marionettes in Europe is first on the program. Alphonso and Co., offer A Novelty in Figures.

Anthony, the wizard whistler and accordeonist, brings forth great harmony from two distinct sources which scores highly.

Ina Dell and Co. presented a comedy skit entitled Calling on Sister. Some clever bits of characterization is also presented.

Sammy Weston and Tommy Schram The Funsters' are two young men who offer an act comprised of wholesome comedy songs and dances put over in a different way.

Southland closes the bill. It is a singing quintette presenting A Cycle of Favorite Songs. Their harmony singing is unusually effective. The act is well staged.

Betty Compson, who has the stellar role in the Selznick picture, White Shadows, which began a three days' engagement at the broadway theater yesterday, does a clever piece of acting in the roles of the twin sisters, Nancy and Georgina Brent. Altho physically, perfect replicas of each other, the girls are totally unlike in character and disposition, and it must have been no easy task for Miss Compson to bring out the attributes of each in so telling a manner. It is another proof—if one were needed after Miss Compson's splendid performance in Woman to Woman—of the unusual actorial ability of this popular screen star.

Strand Theater

If there are any doubting Thomasses, who are still of the opinion that Gloria Swanson is merely a fashion plate, we did them rush right over to the Strand theater where her latest Paramount picture, Manhandled began a three days' run yesterday. We absolutely guarantee that all doubts as to her histrionic ability will vanish, when they see Gloria combining mimicry, broad comedy, tears and pathos in one of the best character delineations she has yet brought to the screen.

Manhandled which was adapted by Frank Tuttle from the Saturday Evening Post story by Arthur Stringer, gives Miss Swanson a wide range of possibilities, and to her credit it must be said that she makes the most of them. In this simple, human story, she plays the part of a shop girl, who starts life in a New York department store.

The picture was directed by Allan Dwan, who has surrounded Miss Swanson with an excellent cast, headed by Tom Moore, who gives one of the greatest performances of his career as the hard-working mechanic, whose honest love wins Gloria in the end.

All in all, Manhandled is one of the most sensational pictures that we have seen in many a day.

Larry Semon appeared in a new comedy riot, Lightning Love and a Kinograms completed this exceptional fine program.

Palace Theater

Wesley Barry is one screen star who never has been compelled to resort to a "double" for any of the numerous perilous stunts the scenario writers have laid out for him.

Had he not been a regular boy, he might have found difficulty in meeting the swimming test, one of the features of George Washington, Jr., the Warner Bros., photoplay which opens at the Palace theater today.

The swimming pool scenes are among the most elaborate of the George Washington, Jr., production, several bathing girls and expert swimmers having been utilized to make the water regatta true to life. Barry was very much at home in these scenes. As a mere youngster, like all normal boys, he was a frequent visitor to the Ol' Swimmin' Hole, and took to water like a duck.

Supporting Barry in George Washington, Jr., are Gertrude Olmstead, Charles Conklin, Otis Harlan and Leon Bary, and the offering is said to out-thrill any previous pictures in which the youthful star was featured.

Short Subjects, Pathe News and Our Gang in their latest and funniest two reel comedy Sunday Calm.

BRISK RALLY IN MARKET

New York, Sept. 8—Short covering operations brought about a brisk rally in the latter part of today's stock market after one week of steadily declining prices. The morning selling which carried a number of issues down 1 to 3 points, reflected the closing out of weakened marginal accounts and uneasiness over the outcome of the Maine election.

Confidence was resorted later when it became evident that there was a scarcity in the floating supply of many issues, which apparently had been oversold. The recovery continued through the late trading, despite the efforts of bear traders to unsettle the list by attacking Allied Chemical, National Enameling, American Sumatra Tobacco Pfd. and other vulnerable specialties. Closing prices of most of the popular industrials showed net gains ranging from small fractions to two points.

New low prices for the year were established by Union Bag and Paper, Park and Tilford, Standard Plate Glass, Underwood Typewriter, Cluett-Peabody preferred, National Enameling, American Sumatra Tobacco preferred and Chandler Motors. New 1924 highs were registered by Jewel Tea preferred, Utah Securities and Pittsburgh and West Virginia preferred.

One of the features of the session was the increased demand for the oil shares. Marland stood out with a gain of 2 points at 34 1-2 while Cosden, Atlantic Refining, Colorado Fuel, Houston, Mexican Seaboard Oil and the certificates, Standard Oil of California, and Tidewater moved up 1 to 3 points.

United States Steel common closed 1-2 point higher at 106 5-8 after touching a new low on the movement at 105 3-8. Baldwin and American Can showed net gains of about 1 point each.

Motors were irregular by good buying developed in Maxwell "A" which closed nearly two points higher. American Bosch Magneto broke 4 points on two sales. American Woolen developed good buying support for the first time since the announcement of the omission of the dividend, closing 1 5-8 higher at 53 7-8. Sugar stocks responded to the higher commodity prices. Among the other popular industrials to record net gains of a point or more were U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Rubber, American Hide and Leather preferred, American Water Works, International Paper, Sears Roebuck and Woolworth.

Rails fluctuated within more narrow limits, good buying being noted in Rock Island common, Nickel Plate, St. Louis Southwestern and Missouri Pacific, all up a point or so. Lackawanna closed 3-4 lower at 141 after having fluctuated between 139 1-8 and 142 1-2.

Call money dropped back to two per cent. on the stock exchange that rate holding throughout the session. Time money and commercial paper rates held steady in quiet trading.

Foreign exchanges opened firm and then turned reactionary again under the pressure of grain and cotton bills. Demand sterling ruled about a cent lower around $4.42 1-2, and French francs were quoted just under 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Sept. 8—Bond prices fluctuated unevenly in today's apathetic trading which was marked by an absence of speculative interest. Demand for certain high-grade railroad issues imparted a firm tone to this list in the early dealings which were counteracted by selling of other liens later in the day. Liberty Bonds scored moderate improvement, following the announcement of the treasury's offering of $250,000,000 one year certificates on a 2 3-4 per cent. basis, an unusually low interest rate for this maturity. While the rate was the same as that for the $150,000,000 offering made last June, the certificates sold at that time ran only for six months.

Foreign obligations continued to display a hesitant tone. Austrian 7s dropped a point and most of the French Municipal issues followed the Seine 7s lower. The new Belgian 6 1-2s, however, established a new high record in crossing 95. The bonds were offered last week at 94.

In the industrial group gains of a point or so in Wilson First 6s, Virginia-Carolina 7 1-2s and U. S. Rubber 8s were offset by losses in Wickwire Spencer Steel 7s, Kelly-Springfield and Fisk Rubber 8s and Sinclair Consolidated Oil 6 1-2s.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Sept. 8—Unfavorable weather conditions in Canada as well as in Europe and Argentine led to higher prices today for wheat. Closing quotations in the wheat market here were firm at 1-4 to 7-8c net gain, with December 1.27 5-8 to 1.27 3-4 and May 1.34.

Corn finished at 1-4c decline to 1-2c advance, oats 3-8 to 5-8c off and provisions varying from 5c set back to a rise of 10c.

Unexpected firmness of wheat quotations at Liverpool helped to start the market upward here from the outset especially as the Liverpool strength was associated with crop damage complaints from Canada, unseasonable cold and rain in Europe, and with drought and rain in Argentina. At first, however, export demand lacked volume, and this fact operated as something of a weight on values. Subsequently, export business became sufficiently energetic to offset hedging sales of new wheat and with further advices of injury by frost in Canada the Chicago market showed a renewed upward swing.

Wheat closed at virtually the day's top figures here, influenced in particular bya bulge in prices at Winnipeg. Previous sellers in Chicago were active purchasers just before business ended.

Wet, cold weather furnished some strength to the corn market but was largely offset by increased offerings. On the other hand frost was predicted for tonight over parts of the northwest, and the visible supply decreased 175,000 bushels.

Oats were depressed as a result of increasing stocks.

Provisions averaged higher owing to absence of selling.

CURB MARKET

New York, Sept. 8—Reactionary price tendencies characterized the opening of the new week in the curb market, but an irregular recovery was under way at the close. The rally was led by the oil shares which moved up in sympathy with the strength of those issues on the "big board."

Prairie Oil and Gas, Humble, Magnolia Petroleum and Standard Oil of Nebraska closed 1 to 3 points higher. Standard Oil of Indiana, Gulf of Pennsylvania, Vacuum and Woodley improved fractionally, buying of the last named being based on a report that the company had offered a premium of 15 cents a barrel on its oil.

The industrials showed a curious mixture of gains and losses. National Tea advanced 3 1-2 points on a small turnover. Glen Alden coal climbed 1 3-8 but Lehigh Valley Coal certificate the most active issue, lost ground. Duz, which was admitted to trading last week, dropped two points to 22 1-2 and then rallied to 23 3-4. American Foreign Power certificates dropped one point to 32.

Speculative interest in the mining group was confined to three or four Penny issues, Jib Consolidated showing an gain of five points on reports that net profits for the last quarter exceeded $200,000.

TWO HOLD-UP MEN GET MONEY FROM JEWETT CITY WOMAN STOREKEPPER

(Special to the Bulletin)

Jewett City, Sept. 8—Two men in a bright new Star touring car pulled off a daylight holdup this afternoon at the store of Mrs. Rose Behnke and escaped without the registration number of their machine being secured, but it is believed the description of the car that she was able to give may lead to its identification.

Mrs. Behnke was alone in the store at the upper end of Mechanic street when the two men drove up and stopped about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Entering the store, one of the men held a revolver to the woman's head and demanded money. Mrs. Behnke had between $20 and $30 in the pocket of her dress, which she took out and held tightly clenched in her hand, refusing to give it up although one of the men said he would shoot her. The man grabbed her wrist, giving it a violent wrench, and then struck her several blows on the arm with the butt of the gun. She fainted and fell to the floor and knew no more. When she revived the robbers and her money were gone and the doors of the store were locked. She got out the rear of the store and men who were passing hurried to notify police Officer Henry Viegarde when she told them of the robbery.

After hearing Mrs. Behnke's story, the officer notified Chief Linton of Norwich and the police of New London and Hartford.

A man coming to Jewett City reported having passed a car corresponding to the description of the robber's machine in Greeneville about 5:30 o'clock. Mrs. Behnke told the officer that the car was new and bright; the numbers she could not tell.

People living in the vicinity of the store stated that they saw the car passing on Mechanic street several times earlier in the afternoon.

Officer Viegarde telephoned the state motor vehicle department at Hartford and will be furnished at once with all the information available on new Star car registrations. The state police were also on the job this evening.

The woman's arm is badly bruised and discolored and there may be broken bones as a result of the wrenching and the heavy blows from the pistol.

The Girl Who Bared Her Soul

When Elizabeth promised to be Robert's wife, she did not know to what lengths of treacherous fury a woman will go who is eaten with envy and jealousy. In her inexperience of life, she was to learn that while the mills of the gods grind slowly, they grind exceeding fine—and that her courage and honor would have to meet tests that few women can meet and emerge strong and unscathed.

"In Forever After," Elizabeth bares her soul with fearless frankness. It is a gripping story—yet it is only one of the many remarkable features in October True Story, now on sale at all newsstands.

SONS OF REVOLUTION SENATOR ROGERS' GUESTS

Members of the board of governors of the Connecticut Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and delegates from the Nathan Hale branch of New London and the Israel Putnam branch of Norwich, were guests of State Senator and Mrs. Ernest E. Rogers at a luncheon given Saturday afternoon at their beautiful Pequot avenue home in New London. Close to 70 persons sat down to a splendid luncheon served at the Rogers home at 1 o'clock and remained for the business and social session which followed.

The meeting was held on Saturday, due to its being the anniversary of the burning of New London by the British during the Revolution, the anniversary of the battle of the Marne and the anniversary of the birth of Lafayette, who last visited New London in 1824.

Senator and Mrs. Rogers proved themselves to be delightful entertainers and in addition to providing a bountiful repast, entertained their guests in an exceedingly pleasing manner.

The Connecticut Society of Sons of the American Revolution, by formal vote, went on record as endorsing the Defense day idea. Senator Rogers, who is serving his second term as president of the state society, will officiate as chief marshal of the Defense day parade to be held in New London.

H. Wales Lines of Meriden was the guest of honor at the business meeting which followed the luncheon, and his address was followed by brief talks by Capt. Carey Congdon, president of the Nathan Hale branch; Charles E. Chandler, president of the Israel Putnam branch; Charles H. Bangs of Boston, vice president general of New England.

The addresses were followed by the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by Secretary F. A. Doolittle of Bridgeport, and the reading of reports of C. G. Stone, treasurer, of Hartford; F. Clarence Bissell, registrar, of Hartford; Leverett Belknap, necrologist, of Hartford; H. H. White, past president, of Hartford, and C. H. Wickham of the board of managers, of Hartford.

The following applications for membership were approved: Clark Belden, Hartford; Albert Lanpher Johnson, Derby; Harold Clifton Milford, of Bridgeport. Donald Goodrich North, New Haven; Lewis Worthington Phelps, Andover; and Irving Sterling Tinker, New Haven.

SHORT LOBSTER CHARGE DISMISSED IN COURT

Antone Piavo and Joseph Sylvia, both of Stonington, who are in the lobster business in that town, were presented in town court at Groton, on Monday, following their arrest by Fish and Game Warden Christopher Culver of New London for having in their possession, short lobsters. The accused were represented by Attorney Benjamin H. Hewitt of Mystic.

Upon statement of the facts concerning the case, Prosecuting Attorney Warren B. Burgoyne recommended a nolle upon payment of officers' costs. The counsel for the defense objected to the terms offered by the court when it was learned that the licenses of the lobstermen would have to be surrendered. The case was then, upon recommendation of the prosecuting attorney, put on trial. Piavo had in his possession three short lobsters and Silvia had two. The lobsters were produced in court and measured. It was found that all but one of the lobsters scraped the iron and one of them had a broken tip. In view of the small percentage of lobsters that were in question and the fact that the accused were never brought up on that charge before, coupled with the nearness of the size of the lobsters to legal dimensions, Judge Costello dismissed the case.

POETRY

Inspiration

If with light head erect I sing,
Though all the Muses lend their force
From my poor love of anything
The verse is weak and shallow at its source.

But if with bended neck I grope
Listening behind me for my wit,
With faith superior to hope,
More anxious to keep back than forward it—

Making my soul accomplice there
Unto the flame my heart hath lit,
Then will the verse forever wear—
Time can not bend the line which God has writ.

I hearing get, who had but ears,
And sight, who had but eyes before;
I moments live, who lived but years,
And truth discern, who knew but learning's lore.

Now chiefly is my natal hour,
And only now my prime of life;
Of manhood's strength it is the flower,
'Tis peace's end, and war's beginning strife.

It comes in summer's broadest noon,
By a gray wall, or some chance place,
Unseasoning time, insulting June,
And vexing day with its presuming face.

I will not doubt the love untold,
Which not my worth nor want hath bought,
Which wooed me young, and woos me old,
And to this evening hath me brought —Henry David Thoreau

The Ticket Agent

Like any merchant in a store
Who sells things by the pound or score

He deals with scarce perfunctory glance
Small pass-keys to the world's Romance

He takes dull money, turns and hands
The roadways to far distant lands

Bright shining rail and fenceless sea
Are partners to his wizardry

He calls off names as if they were
Just names to cause no heart to stir.

For listening you'll hear him say
"—and then to Aden and Bombay"

Or "—Frisco first and then to Nome,
Across the Rocky Mountains—Home—"

And never catch of voice to tell
He knows the lure or feels the spell.

Like any salesman in a store,
He sells but tickets—nothing more.

And casual as any clerk
He deals in dreams, and calls it work

G. O. P. STATE CONVENTION TO MAKE NOMINATIONS TODAY

State Ticket Will be Selected and Seven Presidential Electors Chosen — Congressman Merritt, in Keynote Speech Cited the Absurdity in the Lafollette Platform of the Proposals to Increase Wages of Railway Labor and at the Same Time Decrease Freight Rates—Mr. Merritt's Discussion of State Affairs Was Based on the Record of the Last Legislature—Anti Klan Plank Introduced by Mrs. H. H. Townsend of New Haven.

New Haven, Sept. 9.—The republican state convention which tomorrow will nominate a state ticket and seven presidential electors on the ticket headed by Coolidge and Dawes opened in Music hall tonight with Schuyler Merritt, congressman from the fourth district, as temporary chairman. The address of Mr. Merritt, the first he has ever given before a party state convention, was regarded by those who heard it as a keynote one on state issues, whereas that given by Lieutenant Governor Hiram Bingham at the spring convention was hailed at the time as containing the keynote to the party in the state or national affairs.

Mr. Merritt said that the republican national platform "complimented the democrats as a strong and careful statement of constitutional principles adapted to present day conditions and consistent with the party record, and as to the candidates upon it, he asked "where could you find two men more fully in accord with the party history and platform, or either of whom would be a better exponent of a progressive-conservative than Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes."

Mr. Merritt in reviewing the record of the republican party dealt at some length of the tariff policy saying that the results of this policy have been a development in all fields of human activity unexampled in history, and a distribution of the rewards of industry more general and more equitable than the world has ever seen.

On the tariff issue and the position of the democrats regarding it Mr. Merritt said that "the democratic donkey seems not capable of grasping as proved by long experience and as he has continued year after year to exhibit in his platform fallacies he has received from his masters, the southern [illegible] years and years ago."

Mr. Merritt in reference to the [illegible] The people of Connecticut [illegible] be fooled by any [illegible] given out by the [illegible] he has ornamented [illegible] an attractive head, his [illegible] as much as usual—plain

Congressman Merritt said he had [illegible] comment on the so-[illegible] party" because he hoped [illegible] of the country such [illegible] If any considerable part of the electorate of New England is prepared to lean towards socialism, the abolition of private and destruction of the constitution and of personal liberty then I miss my guess," he said. "The radical LaFollette platform is full of absurdities such as proposals to increase wages of railway labor and at the same time decrease freight rates. But the crowning absurdity of the whole movement is the general claim that it is to enable the people to govern themselves. As a basis of this popular government LaFollette nominated himself, writes his own platform, selects his own running mate and makes a test of all adherents whether or not they will take orders from LaFollette. This is quite in accordance with his record in Wisconsin. Here is popular government with a vengence. I think the people of the United States will recognize Lenin and Trotzky even if they call themselves by some other name, hoping they will smell the sweeter."

Mr. Merritt's discussion of state affairs was based on the record of the last legislature.

The hall was well filled with delegates when at 8 p. m. (standard) State Chairman J. H. Roraback introduced Congressman Merritt. On the platform in an upholstered chair was former Governor Marcus H. Holcomb. Beside him were several women members of the state central committee. The gallery was also well filled with women and men in spite of the pouring rain outside.

The committee on arrangements had made the hall more comfortable for delegates than usual, and it was also attractively decorated. The platform had been carpeted, something unexperienced by a political convention in a public hall. On the wall behind the speakers' desk was one of the largest flags in the state. The gallery rail was hidden under blue and white drapery and the side walls were partly covered by smaller flags. Banners swung from the gallery supports. Pictures of President Coolidge were affixed to the gallery and on the speaker's desk was one of Coolidge and Dawes.

As soon as Mr. Merritt had concluded Judge A. W. Creedon, of Hartford, and Clarence G. Willard, of New Haven, were named as convention clerks on motion of A. C. Baldwin of Derby. Senatorial districts having selected members of committees on permanent organization, rules, credentials and resolutions, and each named a vice president, these lists were read as follows:

Announcement as to meeting places of committee was made and the convention recessed until 10 o'clock (standard) tomorrow morning.

The temporary chairman's address required fifty-five minutes and it was concluded amid applause.

The rules committee was presided over by Harvey P. Bissell, of Ridgefield, collector of the port, and Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham was clerk.

Mr. Averill of Branford offered this proposed rule:

"Whenever senatorial or probate convention shall fail to make a nomination within the time prescribed by law for nomination members of the state central committee of the county within which such senatorial or probate district is located shall make such nomination within five days."

Major L. M. Ulman asked what condition exists which prompted the proposed rule. Mr. Averill cited that in two senatorial districts deadlocks impend between candidates and a deadlock impends in one probate district over a nomination of judge. He said that the conditions are such that the party may lose th edistricts through the democrats alone making nominations.

When the convention delegates dispersed after the first session there was still much uncertainty as to the likely choice for lieutenant governor. On the surface the indications were that Senator John H. Trumbull would be nominated but it was claimed by many that John M. Wadhams' name would be presented, possibly by Walter Holcomb, of Torrington. Mr. Wadhams' fortunes were said to be in the hands of Senator John N. Brooks, of Torrington.

Some of the delegates expressed belief that there would be a fight on the convention floor over second place.

For treasurer, Senator Rogers, of New London, was regarded as leading the field with an understanding that Mr. Wadhams did not want that office even if h edid not get second place. Tolland county was anxious to offer the name of Perley B. Leonard, of Vernon, for treasurer, but it was said that Major John Buckley, of Union was devoting his energies to Mr. Wadhams' candidacy for second place. Mr. Warhams is a convention delegate and was in the gathering at the Taft tonight as was Senator Trumbull.

Few names were mentioned for presidential electors and the choice of these is likely to be more or less spontaneous after the state ticket is made up.

Everyone seemed to be in agreement that Colonel Bingham would be nominated for governor, and Secretary of State Pailotti and Comptroller Salmon re-nominated.

An innovation in the resolutions committee meeting was the choice of a sub-committee of seven to first consider various planks placed before the whole committee.

Besides L. M. Keith, of the 28th senatorial district, permanent chairman, and M. C. Isbell, clerk, the subcommittees were.

Omar W. Platt, A. M. Brown, H. R. Jones, J. F. Baker, Mrs. W. K. Mix, Mrs. R. L. Jones and J. S. Tracy.

After Chairman Keith had read the general preliminary platform, a call was made for the suggestion of planks.

Mrs. H. Knox Smith, president of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, responded with the several planks which represent the platform of the organization of which she is head. The planks she suggested were on the child labor amendment, jury service for women, equal rights for women, a fifty hour week, nine hours a day for women in industry, more adequate provision for mental defectives, creation of taxation commission, greater economy in state government, economy in institutional administration, a programme of child welfare and strict enforcement of laws.

Before she gave up th efloor Mrs. Cmith inquired as to the powers invested in the committee of seven. Believing at first that the sub-committee had been granted absolute power, she indignantly asked:

"Then we have signed away our rights?" She was reassured by Chairman Keith who denied that the group of seven members had the power to throw out planks without receiving the sanction of the entire committee.

Every member of the resolutions committee eagerly awaited the introduction of the anti-klan plank.

Planes Delayed By Head Winds

Washington, Sept. 9.—Wearied by an all day buck against head winds and fog delays, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, commanding the army world flight, brought his air cruiser Chicago to a safe landing at Bolling field here today to receive a cordial greeting from President Coolidge and the members of the cabinet.

Boston II., substitute for the Boston, wrecked off Iceland, came in also with Lieutenant Wade piloting, but the New Orleans went down within thirty miles of Washington, just this side of Baltimore, with stripped timing gears, and her pilot, Lieutenant Nelson, came on as a passenger in an escort plane.

A forced landing for the whole squadron of world cruisers and escort marred the flight from New York, the fliers with Major General Patrick, chief of the air service, leading the escorting squadron, ran into the fog just after they crossed the Susquehanna river, and at Aberdeen, the army proving ground in Maryland, were signalled down to refill fuel tanks emptied in the long grind against a steady south wind that ranged from 35 to 45 miles an hour.

It was this that started the delays which kept President and Mrs. Coolidge and members of the cabinet and their wives waiting four hours or more in the rain at Bolling field. Under better conditions, the planes would have landed before noon, but against the wind that cut them down to a 50-mile ground speed or less and with the fog for an hour or so at Aberdeen, they did not put in an appearance until nearly 3 p. m.

LA GUARDIA CONDEMNS ACTS OF PROHIBITION AGENTS

New York, Sept. 9.—"Armed with the revised statutes of the United States under one arm and who's who in social and political circles under the other, the prohibition agents go forward to make a raid," said Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, former republican, who is seeking re-election on the LaFollette-Wheeler ticket, in an address today at a luncheon of the All-Parties Progressive league, a women's political organization.

"Recently one made a mistake," he continued, "and took seventy cases of liquor from the home of a family which had proper political and social connections with the result that, instead of the usual hearing to determine the legal possession of the liquor, it was returned within forty-eight hours with the apologies of the government and the dismissal of the agent."

Divisional Prohibition Chief R. Q. Merrick, informed of Mr. La Guardia's remarks, said they were "absolutely ridiculous." He asserted that undoubtedly the congressman referred to the raid on the home of Hugo D De Fritsch, following which the agent concerned, Robert Owens, was dismissed and the liquor returned.

Other speakers at the luncheon were Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, wife of the independent vice presidential candidate; Malcolm McAdoo, brother of William G. McAdoo, and Miss Margaret Vail, niece of the late President Wilson.

LEGAL CONTEST OVER SEIZURE OF RUM SHIP

Boston, Sept. 9.—All rights under the liquor treaty of America and Great Britain applying to the confiscation of the British schooner Frances and Louis, have been abandoned by the prosecution, Assistant United States Attorney Lawrence W. Curtis announced today when the government opened its case against the schooners owners in federal court. The vessel was seized 116 miles off the coast last July. The prosecutor said that the government would rely on other statutes and that if the seizure of the vessel is found legal under the other statutes relied on it would be automatically legal, under the treaty.

The Frances and Louise was seized after the capture of the motor boat Katherine B., which federal officials charged had been used to convey liquor for the schooner to shore. The defense claimed in earlier hearings that the schooner was more than an hour's steaming from shore, the distance specified in the British treaty as rendering vessels liable to seizure for liquor law violation.

THREATENING LETTERS IN THE LOEB-LEOPOLD CASE

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, announced today that he had received three anonymous letters similar to the many received by Judge John R. Caverly, threatening to blow up the jail if Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb are not sentenced to hand for the murder of Robert Franks.

Ordinarily, the sheriff said, he pays no attention to such letters but simply does his duty, and will do likewise in this case and take all precautions for the safety of all concerned when Judge Caverly gives his decision tomorrow.

The major portion of the county highway motorcycle police squad and an ample force of deputies will be on duty outside and inside the Criminal Court building, the sheriff said.

DIVIDEND OMITTED BY THE DANIEL BOONE WOOLEN MILLS

New York, Sept. 9.—Directors of the Daniel Boone woolen mills, meeting in Chicago, today, omitted the quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, due at this time.

The action of the directors further emphasized the depression in the textile industry, on which light was thrown last week by the commission of the American Woolen company's common dividend and readjustment of the capital structure of the Consolidated Textile Corporation.

Daniel Boone shares on the New York stock exchange today declined to a new low record at 10 1-2 closing at 11 1-8. Earlier in the year the stock sold at a high price of 32 1-4.

MAINE POLLED LARGEST VOTE IN ITS HISTORY

Portland, Me., Sept. 9—Maine republicans rolled up a plurality of 50,000 votes in the United States senatorial contest and a plurality of 36,000 in electing a republican governor, continued tabulation of unofficial returns from yesterday's election indicated today. Figures showed that Senator Bert M. Fernald had been re-elected with a total of 147,322 votes against 97,059 for his democratic opponent, Fulton J. Redman. In the contest for governor, State Senator Ralph Brewster, republican polled 143,[illegible] votes against a total of 107,908 William R. Pattangail, former state attorney general.

In commenting on the result of yesterday's balloting, Senator Fernald today asserted that President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes would carry Maine in November by 100,000 votes. Asserting that he saw in the vote a countrywide trend toward republicanism, he said:

"While I have been returned to the senate by about 40,000 it would not surprise me if the republican presidential and vice presidential candidates carried Maine by a larger margin than Harding did in 1920."

The vote cast yesterday was the largest polled in the history of Maine. The total vote for governor was 251,834 and for senator 244,281. The vote for governor exceeded by nearly 46,000 the high previous record established in the gubernatorial election four years ago.

The campaign was waged in large part by the democrats on the Ku Klux Klan issue as a result of the announced indorsement of Brewster by the Klan in the primary. Today Mr. Pattangail, defeated Democratic candidate in a statement asserted that the republican victory was a distinct triumph for the Ku Klux Klan.

WOULD EXPLAIN THE DAWES REPORT BY MOVING PICTURES

Berlin, Sept. 9—(By the A. P.)—A ten minute nightly instalment of the Dawes report as a prelude to movie programs is suggested by Captain Willy Meyer in an article appearing in Germania, the official organ of the clerical party. This writer urges the filming of the Dawes plan for educational purposes and believes that its numerous and complicated economic features could be reduced to popular terms on the screen.

Captain Meyer regrets the failure to film the Versailles treaty, and says the omission shoul dbe rectified by the reproduction of the Dawes report in an educational film, whereby economic truths could be brought before the eyes of all nations and the extent to which Germany is able to meet reparations set forth. He suggests that the government should support private initiative in such an enterprise.

Statement Made to the Stockholders by an Official Representative of the Conptroller of the Currency—Defalcation Was Made Possible by Laxity of Bank Officials—With Capital Stock of $150,000, Surplus $150,000, Stockholders Liable to 100 Per Cent Assessment, $40,000 Bond For Gilpatric and $260,000 Equity of the Embezzler's Estate Giving a Total of $750,000, Depositors Will Meet Little, if Any, Loss.

Putnam, Sept. 9.—Through the defalcations of Cashier G. Harold Gilpatric, the shortage of the First National Bank of Putnam totals $700,000. This statement was made at a meeting of the stockholders of the bank and others to the number of about 65 in Odd Fellows' hall by an official representative and personal friend of the comptroller of the currency tonight.

It was stated that the defalcations were accomplished in four ways: By taking securities left with the bank for safe keeping; by taking securities left as collateral for loans, by taking money left for deposits without crediting it on the books of the bank and by negotiating notes that had been paid and not taken away by the makers.

The representative of the comptroller who gave out this statement, which was met by silence on the part of those in attendance at the meeting, said that on the last day of August he had been called into the office of the comptroller of the currency at Washington, to whom he is a personal friend, and asked to go to Putnam as his representative in an unofficial capacity and investigate the closing of the First National Bank. He said he wished to make it clear that he had no official standing, but that he came to Putnam with letters of introduction to District Bank Examiner N. B. Bean and Receiver Charles H. Coffin, who were authorized by the comptroller to take him as representative into their confidence. He had spent four weeks with these officials investigating the affairs of the bank and then went back to Washington and made his report to the comptroller.

He said that he told the comptroller that the time had come when the directors of the bank, the stockholders and the citizens of the banking community should be told conditions at the bank. To this the comptroller agreed. He said the first consideration is to the depositors in the bank as they are the most carefully guarded. The next vitally interested are the stockholders, who put their money into the business. Then those interested in the formation of a new bank.

It was then that the speaker announced that the defalcations of Cashier Gilpatric amounted to $700,000, which, he said, meant that all of the capital stock of $150,000 and the surplus of $150,000 was absolutely wiped out. He said that the stockholders are liable to 100 per cent assessment, amounting to $150,000, salvaged from Gilpatric's bond as cashier, $40,000, and a possible realization of $150,000 more from assets of the bank. Gilpatric has turned over all his property to the receiver which represents equity of $260,000.

These assets total $750,000, the Washington banker pointed out, and would wipe out all of the bank's loss through the cashier's embezzlements, so that it looks as if in the end there would be very little loss, if any, to the depositors in the bank.

The problem that confronts the city is a national bank. This means the opening of the old bank or if this cannot be done, the organization of a new bank, which can take over all of the good assets of the old bank. He said he had some plans which might be perused and suggested that the stockholders' committee appoint a committee of three and the citizens' committee also appoint a committee of three to meet in executive session with him after the meeting.

Byron D. Bugbee, John P. Grosvenor and J. F. Carpenter were appointed as the committee of the stockholders and M. H. Geissler, A. Newton Vaughn and E. C. Rogers as members of the citizens' committee to attend the executive meeting to follow in the reception room of the Putnam Savings Bank.

The representative of the comptroller stated after the meeting that the delay in giving out the report had been occasioned by the concealed liabilities which had taken time to discover. The conditions in the bank had been made possible by two things —the laxity of the directors in not checking up the affairs of the bank and also in allowing the bank's cashier to engage in many business enterprises outside of the bank.

When asked if he believed that all of the liabilities of the bank had now been discovered, he said that he thought that they had. He would make no estimate of the actual defalcations and the so-called bad loans which make up the $700,000 as compared to the whole, nor was anything said as to how long the situation that finally had wrecked the bank had drifted, nor as to why or how it was covered up so long.

J. Richard Carpenter was chairman of the meeting and Daniel J. Byrne, treasurer of the Putnam Savings bank, was secretary.

In the audience were three of the bank's directors, John A. Dady, Silas M. Wheelock and Edward W. Mullan.

The citizens' committee also met this evening, but on account of the absence of over half of the committee little business was transacted. After the meeting adjourned Chairman M. H. Geissler, E. C. Rogers, Ralph C. Bradsford, A. McDonald Jr., and George L. Padgett attended the stockholders' meeting as had been previously been planned.

It became known today that Gilpatric had resigned as executor of the J. W. Cutler estate, an estate estimated as about $60,000. Under the will of Mr. Cutler in the event that Gilpatric should die or for any reason should become incapacitated or disqualified to serve, the Hartford Connecticut Trust company was named to succeed him as executor. His resignation as executor of the will of Mary Gardner, an estate appraised of about $80,000, has also been tendered. Neither resignation has been accepted as yet as no action has been made.

STATISTICS OF GOVERNMENT'S SEPTEMBER CROP REPORT

Washington, Sept. 9.—A decrease of 63,000,000 bushels in corn crop prospects and an increase of [illegible] bushels in the prospective wheat due to August conditions, were shown in the government's September crop report issued today.

Extremes of temperature and rainfall have been unfavorable to the crop, which was planted late and extremely irregular in stand and development, and has not been able to catch up with the season except in some sections where drought is opening the crop prematurely. Even with a long autumn, the crop will fall considerably below average.

The wheat crop is now placed at 837,000,000 bushels, saying wheat sowing benefitted during August by particularly favorable weather. The principal producing states [illegible] quality is excellent and the yields high. Oats also improved during August to the extent of 47,000,000 bushels with a crop of 1,488,000,000 forecast. That is 186,000,000 bushels larger than last year's crop. The generally cool season has been favorable, and large yields are expected in the important [illegible]

Dante, the most distinguished magician of Europe, who is making his 2nd annual tour under the management of Thurston, America's foremost conjuror and wonder worker will appear at the Palace theater for three days beginning Monday, Sept. 15th.

Dante is as popular in European capitals as Howard Thurston, America's foremost conjuror, is in this country and comes here under the special sponsorship of the latter. This mystery-creator of the old world is young in years but old in the knowledge and mystery of his craft. Such a deft craftsman is he that on the occasion of a recent visit to Pekin, China, he was able to absolutely mystify that subtle old conjurer, Ching Ling Foo. This is regarded as the acme of achievement—when a magician possesses the ability to baffle a fellow performer—particularly when he is one who has won the plaudits of the theater-going public all over the world.

Featured among his own and the Thurston-Kellar mysteries and illusions which Dante presents are, The Ghost Woman, psychic phenomena of the age. You may ask her any question that chance to come into your mind. She is proclaimed to be unequalled as an exponent of mental telepathy.

Reserved seats will go on sale Thursday, there will be a popular priced matinee on Wednesday.

Is circumstantial evidence to be trusted? Is it not often responsible for the working of grave injustices and untrue accusations against innocent persons? This idea is the nucleus around which is woven one of the season's dramatic motion picture successes named Innocence, in which Anna Q. Nilsson is featured. In this story two different people, both innocent, are accused of crimes against society—the woman of being unfaithful to her husband, the man of stealing property that does not belong to him. Both establish their innocence by making that same circumstantial evidence that convicted them a boomerang that frees them again. The brilliant cast also includes Earl Foxe, Wilfred Lucas, Marion Harlan, Freeman Wood, Lillian Langdon, William Scott, Jessie Arnold, and Vera Lewis. Edward J. Le Saint directed the production.

Breed Theater

Ever hear of a fashionable debutante party where the waiters were served by the guests?

This is the unusual situation that takes place in The Perfect Flapper, the First National picture starring Colleen Moore, which will be shown for the last time at the Breed theater today.

Tommie Lou Pember, member of a fashionable younger set, but herself a quiet, modest girl, finds that less than fifty of her four hundred invitations were accepted. The boisterous guests discover that they are outnumbered by the waiters; so the waiters are seated at the tables and waited upon by the guests who are dressed in gorgeous costumes.

The Perfect Flapper is said to be even a greater triumph for Colleen Moore than was Flaming Youth. It was directed by John Francis Dillon and contains an imposing array of stars in Miss Moore's support, including Sydney Chaplin, Frank Mayo, Phyllis Haver, Lydia Knott, Charles Wellesley and others.

Danielson, Sept. 9.—Another of the [illegible] motoring tragedies that mark the heavy travel over the Danielson-Providence highway sent one man to instant death and later resulted in the cremation of his body under the burning wreck, and the fatal injuring of his companion, at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning. The dead men were Frank Martin, who was instantly killed and his body terribly burned, [illegible] home in New Bedford, and Herbert L. Jones, 81 Maxfield street, Providence.

The accident happened at the foot of Dolly Cole hill, in Hopkins Mills, 11 miles east of here and the machine that figured in was one of the ponderous 6-ton Mack trucks owned by the Interstate Trucking company, with offices in Providence, Fall River, New Bedford and other cities. The truck was laden with bales of cotton consigned to the Goodyear Mills, Inc., of this town and was en route to that plant when the accident occurred.

There were no witnesses of the accident, insofar as could be learned during Tuesday, but there is much evidence to show how the accident happened. Tracks of the truck wheels as they left the traveled part of the highway to graze against the fence bordering the state road show that the big machine went out of control after coming down the long steep hill, one of the most dangerous in Rhode Island, eventually edged farther over until it began to tear down the fence and then struck the south abutment of the concrete bridge over Dolly Cole brook and plunged headlong into that stream, which at this particular season is but a shallow and lazy little lane of water flowing through a peaceful rural section.

The crash of the truck against the bridge abutment was terrific and attracted attention of people over a mile of distance. The driver was catapulted out of the cab and landed in a mass of debris ahead of the machine. His helper lay in the brook when first arrivals reached the spot.

Almost instantly the truck caught afire. The big gas tank of the truck had been torn loose and its contents released, much of the gas splashing onto the two victims and making them ready fuel for the flames. Indications were that the driver had been instantly killed. An ambulance later removed the helper to a hospital in Providence, to which city the driver's remains also were removed.

No worse wrecked motor truck has ever been seen in this vicinity. The crash fairly tore it to pieces and the fire completed the destruction. Only the rear wheels and tires appear to be of any value. The machine is simply junk.

The bales of Egyptian cotton, each weighing 750 pounds, must have hurtled through the air like baseballs. No one of them was nearer than 75 feet to the wrecked truck and the farthermost fling was 200 feet from the machine, this bale landing in the state highway. Out in the woodland, where all but a few bales of the lead landed trees have cotton clinging to their branches 20 feet above the ground, indicative of the manner in which the bales shot through the air.

When the truck hit the bridge, which was only slightly damaged, the platform body was sheared off and slid along the bridge cap for a ride of 100 feet up the highway.

There is every indication that the truck was coming down the hill at a terrific speed and that the driver could not hold it in the road as it hit the curve at the foot of the hill, at the bridge approach.

The cotton was not damaged in the wreck and a wrecking truck was sent out of New Bedford by the Interstate Trucking company during the afternoon to pick up the cotton and save it from being wet in an impending rainstorm.

Jones was the operator of the car and it is believed was allowing it to coast down the long hill just before the accident occurred. Jones died after being removed to Providence in an ambulance.

Where the missing Danielson Bulletins went Saturday morning was explained Tuesday, but too late to forward the papers. The big bundle had been put off at Taftville station, and there it remained until Tuesday morning.

PUTNAM

Mayor Chapdelaine has ordered out the Putnam fire department for annual inspection, as one of the features of National Defense Day Friday. Several organizations have signified their intention of taking part in the parade. Souvenirs will be sold on the streets to help defray the necessary expense incurred. The committee has arranged for two automobiles for the accommodation of the few remaining Civil war veterans. The Putnam Headquarters company of the 43rd Division will be in line; also it is expected the high school cadets, Boy Scouts and Guard of the C. A. C. Plans are under way to make the parade as long a one as possible.

Charles T. Thayer, employe of the S. N. E. Telephone company and superintendent of Putnam's fire alarm system, picked up the world fliers, Monday afternoon at Groton and followed them all the way to New York. Mr. Thayer says that he could get the broadcasting from the air as plainly as from any station. He heard the operator tell the listeners-in that they were over New London and that all traffic was stopped and the people looking upward. He then said to stand by and hear the roar of a Liberty motor when he opened his little door. This was also plainly heard in Putnam by Mr. Thayer. Others in the city may have picked up the airmen, but have not made it known.

School officials of the town of Woodstock are considering the advisability of reopening the school house in District 13, which has been closed for some years. Superintendent of Rural Schools R. D. McAllister and the school board recently held a meeting to discuss the matter. It was found that there are fourteen children of school age in the district at present. These have to be transported to another district and it is a considerable hardship and, in the winter months, time is lost because the bus can not get through. The parents of the children are very anxious to have the school reopened. The building, through disuse for over 25 years, is badly in need of repair. A clause in the warning for the town meeting will be inserted to bring the question before the taxpayers.

The ringing of the fire alarm last Friday evening and again Tuesday morning aroused considerable curiosity. Superintendent Thayer said that Friday evening during the storm some electric light wires burned and fell on Church street, crossing the wires with the fire alarm system. On Tuesday morning men working on the Putnam inn rolled up some canvas with which they had finished. This they tossed off the roof and the heavy bundle hit the fire alarm wires causing the bell to ring. Besides these soundings of the alarm the superintendent has had to ring a number of tests to see if the alarm was working right, after the interference.

From the Putnam inn on Union square, Main street, its whole length to Providence street, has undergone a transformation in the past two years changing the aspect of the street and shifting somewhat the business section. Beginning on the square the first noticeable change is the Putnam inn, now in process of enlargement and remodeling. When completed it will be a four story building with a front of pressed brick in terra cotta and brown.

On the same side of the street, less than a block away, the old wooden Bradley theatre building, formerly housing the Arcanum club on the second floor and stores below, has been torn down and the site is occupied by the beautiful new Putnam Savings bank.

On Union street, which intersects Main street about opposite the Savings bank, the former so-called Tatem block, purchased by the Salvation Army, has been completely transformed so that it looks like a new building with a completely changed front.

On the corner of Main and Front streets in the new First National Bank building on which considerably over $100,000 was spent in enlarging and remodeling.

On Canal street is also a relatively new block, occupied in part by the Putnam Buick Sales company, who also have recently completed a large fireproof garage in the rear, on Bundy street. This building covers a former unsightly spot not far from the bank of the Quinebaug river.

Passing northward another block to the corner of Buck street is the Kaminsky & Wolf building, a two story, brick structure which replaced two old houses.

It was not long ago that from the Donahue block northward, then known as Elm street, now changed to Main street, was one of the best residential sections of the city. Now it is dotted with small stores and business establishments, clear to Providence street.

The old stone mill, formerly a part of the Nightingale-Morse Manufacturing company, is the next location of drastic change. The mill, following its purchase by the Adams Manufacturing company of North Scituate, R. I., was remodeled and a large brick addition, extending to where the Quinebaug river makes a turn, was built last year.

The mill houses, now owned by private individuals, have been remodeled from their former sameness into cottages, each with its own individuality. In this section, also, several small stores have been opened.

In the advance of progress the business section has invaded the former residential section to the north and it is fast disappearing. Mercantile business is moving northward from Union square, the former center of the mercantile life of the city.

Professor and Mrs. Malcolm M. Willey left Tuesday for the House of Pines, Norton, Mass., where they will visit Professor Willey's mother. From there they will proceed to Hanover, N. H., where Professor Willey is a member of the faculty of Dartmouth.

Bans have been published for the marriage of Helika Auger and Miss Delia Duhamel. The wedding will take place in St. Mary's church, Monday morning, September 22. Following a wedding trip they will live in Putnam.

JEWETT CITY

Passers-by on North and East Main streets were stopping Tuesday to watch the steeplejacks at work on St. Mary's spire. Repairs are being made on the anchorages of the granite crosses at the angles of the bell deck. Sections of slate, and the roof drainage system will be replaced with new.

Judging from the fall bookings at Finn's theatre it will not be necessary to move from town to see the best of the topliners. The Hunchback of Notre Dame and Boy of Mine are among the closed contracts.

Miss Doris Bliss is ever from Schenectady, N. Y., at her grandfather's. She will continue her studies at the Norwich Free Academy.

A man stood in the borough streets Tuesday morning, watching the 730 children, as they passed along the walks on their way to Riverside and St. Mary's convent schools. Their general tidy, wideawake and cheerful appearance, was noteworthy.

A recent visiting school critic from the state board in Hartford was impressed with the interested attitude on the part of the instructors, evidenced by the respect and confidence he was able to note in the pupils. According to a statement made Tuesday by Supt. F. H. P. Clement, Griswold has six open public schools, besides Riverside, with a total of 750 pupils for the town. The eighth grade at Riverside has 50 children, which will doubtless require another teacher. The registration at St. Mary's concent school as reported Tuesday is 190.

Statements from the examining board of the Norwich Free Academy and the Plainfield high school, indicate the efficiency of Superintendent Clement of the public schools, and Rev. James J. Tyler, principal of St. Mary's convent, and their assistant teachers. From the graduating class of last year at St. Mary's convent Elizabeth McLaughlin and Helen McLaughlin will enter Norwich Free Academy, Claire Berard the Baltic Academy, Armaud Gilbert, Eileen Walsh, Joseph Ruszenas and Celia Liberty, the Plainfield High school. From the public schools members of last year's class to enter the Academy are Annie Williams, Arthur Shea, Eugene Carroll Jr., Frances Montgomery, Lauretta Alley, Lloyd Jarvis, Felix Kalko and Christine Marshall, Plainfield High. Helen Baldyga, Ralph Arnold, Hazel Johnson and Bessie Laliberty.

The following scores were shot on the Voluntown Rifle club range. John Bradford of Plainfield put up the best 50 shot score, and the best 10 shot score for the Edmond medal, 97 out of a possible 100 on the N. R. A. target.

There is to be a prize shoot at the Pachaug Grange fair. All lovers of the sport are privileged to come and prove their skill with the rifle.

Mrs. George Swanton of Norwich, was among those who attended the funeral services of Comrade Hugh McLaughlin at St. Mary's church Monday morning.

Miss Alice Brennan, R. N., the district nurse spent her vacatino in Providence, R. I., and Hampton Beach, N. H.

Misses May and Bessie Blake have returned from a three days' automobile trip from Boston over the Mohawk Trail, Albany and Jacob's Ladder.

Dr. G. H. Jennings last week took Lena Giebiewski, 8, to Seaside Sanitorium, Niantic. She has had a tubercular hip for a long time.

Game wardens are calling attention to Sec. 19 of the fish and game laws which requires every person receiving a license to hunt or trap, to make an annual report to the board of fisheries and game, in such form and at such time as may be requested, showing the number and kinds of birds and quadrupeds killed or trapped. As a result of the activity of Warden William R. Palmer, there has been an appreciable decrease in pot hunting and illegal fishing in Griswold. Mr. Palmer is ably backed by George S. Brown, president of the Ashland Fish and Game Protective association. Mr. Brown is interested in putting a stop to infractions of the game laws. Under the provision of the present close bird law, more quail and partridges have hatched successful broods in local woods and fields, than for a period of from 14 to 20 years. One man came upon a pheasant's nest this summer containing 16 eggs, which were probably incubated without disturbance, as they were in a secluded spot where human intrusion seemed unlikely.

Local sportsmen of the true sort would hail with delight a close season for the gray squirrel, becaming scarcer each year.

A committee from each of these organizations decided to adopt this method fo observing Defense Day in Jewett City.

The 1924 Worcester, Mass., public schools exhibit of home industries, gardening, cooking, sewing and handicraft, is to be held in Mechanics' hall, Worcester, Friday, Sept. 12, from 7.30 to 9 p. m., and Saturday, Sept. 13th, from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m., in competition for the David Hale Fanning prizes.

FASHION SHOW ATTENDED BY INTERESTED CROWD

Jewett City, Sept. 9.—The Fashion Review held in Finn Opera House on Tuesday evening, was well attended in spite of the rain. The frocks were displayed under the direction of Paul A. Brown, manager of the suit department of the Porteous & Mitchell store, Norwich. The stage was attractively set with ferns, dracaenas, palms, and a beautiful basket of marigolds, hydrangeas and phlox. In the center was an entrance booth draped in rose pink, representing a fashion book, the cover opening for each model. The Irene Castle gowns were exquisite, of beautiful materials embroidered in silver and iridescent beading. Fur or feather trimmings were used on many of the frocks. Straight lines predominated, and the dinner frocks were especially low-waisted. There is no set skirt length, the type of woman and her particular taste regulating the length.

School girls' dresses were among the exhibits, and small girls' frocks, charmeuse, satin crepe, satin, georgettes in delicate shades, many hand-embroidered and imported gowns were charmingly displayed by the models. Fur coats and coats of handsome materials of the latest styles were shown. It was noticeable that tris season cuffs are all right to the wrist.

The models were Misses Anna Brennan, Alice Johnson, Nonie Nagle, Justine Morrison, Hannah O'Donnell, Myrtle Buteau and Mrs. Edward Evelyn. Phyllis Brown showed the juniors' dresses and Carmalita Valentine the little misses' frocks. The stage settings were from Whiting's Greenhouses and Hourigan Bros.' store. Music was furnished during the evening by Daniel Driscoll, violin, Miss Mary Brennan, piano, and Joseph Farrell, drums. Miss Sadie Driscoll of Norwich sang two selections, Morning, by Oley Speaks, and My Star, by Charles Spross.

It's enough to make a man get his back up when he is asked to shoulder the responsibilities of others.

What Are They All Saying About "One-Shot"?

NOTABLE among the new features of the 1925 Cleveland Six is the "One-Shot" Lubrication System which eliminates all greasing of the chassis by hand.

To lubricate all moving chassis parts, you merely step on a plunger. You do not leave the driver's seat. You never have to use a grease gun or an oil can.

With this exclusive, patented feature, you are saved the frequent inconvenience of leaving your car for several hours for a thorough greasing.

The danger of neglected chassis lubrication will never bother you again.

Your car is always free from squeaks and rattles. For "One-Shot" can be used whether the car is standing still or moving.

See this famous feature of the lowest priced Cleveland Six!

Mileage Motor—Four-Wheel Brakes—Balloon Tires

THE GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT.

According to the report of the committee to the court of common council, and the approval thereof by that body, there is an unwillingness to accept either of the offers of the Eastern Connecticut Power company. The answer in the matter of sale is that enough money is not offered to warrant the council in submitting the proposition to the people. As to the question of purchase of power the decision is that it would mean a loss to the city in spite of the fact that the company has shown a saving of $35,000 a year, and figures from the gas and electrical commission on which part of the committee's decision was apparently based were admitted to be wrong.

The decision means that the users of electricity in Norwich must continue to pay the rates that are demanded by the gas and electrical department, in spite of the fact that the high cost of production is keeping them up at a point several cents a kilowatt above what they should be, and above what other communities are favored with which are purchasing instead of producing their electricity.

Norwich has been told that the plant is making a pleasing profit at the present time, but the fact was not mentioned that such a profit was obtained under rates which were out of all proportion to what they should be. Handsome profits are always available as long as those who pay are willing to stagger along under the high rates and the high taxes. Moving from the users of electricity such rates that a small plant produces encourages, in order to produce a profit which is all tied up in a plant that is too expensive to operate, may be good business, but it leaves Norwich in the position of not being able to handle all the demands that may be made upon the municipal plant and has resulted in several of the manufacturing plants installing their own power equipment in order to get satisfactory results.

The committee indicates that it does not oppose selling if a higher price could be obtained. At least it says the price offered is not sufficient in its opinion. Till that time comes it believes Norwich should stagger along under the high rates and refuse to take advantage of the cheaper electric current that is available, and take the chance of returning to those years of practically no profit which characterized the municipal plant during most of its existence.

The final decision as to whether the plant shall be sold rests with the citizens who own it. Does the council action correspond with the sentiment of the majority of the citizens?

THE MAINE RESULT.

Eyes have been centered upon the Maine election for the same reasons that they always are. This is the first state to furnish a test of the political attitude of the voters and it is regarded as an indication of the sentiment relative to the presidential election later on. As Maine goes, so goes the nation is a claim that has long been made. It has on many occasions proven to be a fairly correct barometer. There are times when it has not.

Local conditions within the state were the cause for much speculation as to the result this year. For that reason it was predicted that the contest relative to the governor would not reflect the Maine sentiment as truly as that for the United States senator.

From the election returns it is clear that Maine interest has been aroused. The large vote is encouraging but the large pluralities piled up by both R. O. Brewster, the republican candidate for governor, and United States Senator Fernald, up for reelection, were such as to show that Maine has lost none of its republican sentiment. It was a convincing endorsement of the administration and, by the return to the old time pluralities in that state, a demonstration of keen interest in republican principles.

Maine was expected to remain republican. It did so by a bigger vote than on some recent occasions, and this despite determined efforts to swing it to a democratic governor. Throughout the campaign the claim has been made that the klan issue in that state was greatly exaggerated. By the votes received by those alleged to have been getting klan support and those who were not that was apparently substantiated.

WRANGEL ISLAND.

Wrangel island hasn't been the cause of any trouble between nations, and just because of its name there is no assurance that it ever will be. As to what may develop over claims as to ownership time will reveal.

Wrangel at the last accounts appeared to have been anyone's property who desired it. It is in the arctic region, north of Siberia and with but few inhabitants. There are resources there such as territory in that clime might be expected to produce, and possibly some mineral wealth, but it offers little inducement to human beings.

In behalf of Canada Stefansson occupied the island but Canada has shown no interest in it, or of retaining it as Canadian territory. That attitude would indicate that anyone who desired to acquire it would meet with little or no objection from the neighbor to the north. Canada has made no use of what was done in its behalf by Stefansson.

Just what use it would be to any country has not been definitely determined, though it can be appreciated that there are uses to which some countries might put it that would not be of any value to others.

During the summer the schooner Herman left Nome, Alaska, for the purpose of laying claim to Wrangel island in the name of the United States. What success it has attained has not thus far been disclosed, and the only opposition manifested has come through a despatch based upon the statement of Colonel Broome, the British world flier, who announced that the Red October had left Kamchatka to claim the island for the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

If the Herman has not met with disaster it should have succeeded in its undertaking some time ago, and inasmuch as the Red October was bent upon a similar mission it is a case of which gets there first as to which wins. The soviet ship, as it is understood, goes not to defend soviet territory but to lay claim to it. Interest centers on whether the Herman and the Red October have met.

CONGRESSMAN MERRITT'S SPEECH.

In his address as temporary chairman of the republican state convention Congressman Merritt made a comprehensive and convincing statement of the accomplishments of the republicans in national and state affairs. His was not an oratorical effort, it was a case of dealing with facts and issues and he handled them admirably. Well did he direct attention to the accomplishments of the administration at Washington, the benefits derived from the policy of economy and efficiency, the results of the budget system and the refusal to tolerate extravagance.

There were points of the democratic platform that he handled without gloves, pointing out the fallacy of the claims, emphasizing the benefits of republican legislation upon the country and stressing the importance of facts rather than words. The absurdities of the democratic platform he showed are no more glaring than those of the so called third party, and probably not so dangerous.

The same regard for the cutting of expenses and the reduction of debt, without denying the necessary expenditures, were pointed out by Congressman Merritt in connection with the republican administration of the state as well as the nation. The record of both in this respect is one that cannot fail to appeal to the observing citizen and the one who regards the advantages gained, through reduced taxes as beneficial and worthy of being continued.

The address of Congressman Merritt is printed in full elsewhere in this issue of The Bulletin and is deserving of a careful reading.

POLLING THE VOTERS.

Straw votes are always resorted to in a presidential year, and there have been various means used already for sounding the sentiment of certain communities, certain gatherings and certain industries relative to the choice for president. The aim is to find out how the political wind is blowing.

Only a certain amount of confidence is attached to such methods. There are times when they indicate correctly how the public is thinking and there are times when they do not.

Something out of the ordinary is the method adopted by the Literary Digest in polling the country to ascertain the state of mind of the general public. By the circulation of 15,000,000 ballots throughout the country it reaches a larger part of the people, those of all classes and opinions, than is otherwise attempted. Because of the extensive appeal to the voters it creates greater confidence. Those to whom ballots are sent vote secretly. There is no signature, no condition and no obligation involved. Even the return postage is provided to encourage a response.

Much will depend upon the number who respond and how seriously they enter into it. The more, of course, the better. The referendum is arranged to also disclose what change in sentiment there may have been since the last election. Only a part of the ballots will ever be returned, possibly no more than a million or two, but it is certain that it furnishes the best pre-election poll for purposes of a political barometer, aside from the state elections in the various commonwealths. And it is an index in which much interest is always displayed, and one which is freely quoted.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Maine points the way.

Every day is defense day for some of the Chinese.

The man on the corner says: Those who fear political lightning are not overlooking the flash from Maine.

If China is full of reinforcements someone is likely to get hurt over there before the civil squabble is settled.

Since Venus has a heavy and unimpenetrable atmosphere it cannot be that she has heard of the peekaboo styles.

So much interest has been taken in the world flight that some new contest will have to be started as soon as that is ended.

It is a bit too early to start the annual exodus for Florida. A trip to the north pole may yet be desirable before Jack Frost shuts down for good.

There is close rivalry these days in the amount of interest shown in the coming election and the race for the pennants in the respective ball leagues.

None is more pleased than the aviators themselves that they are safely back from their trip around the world and in sight of the hop that will complete the circuit.

SCENIC SETTINGS

"Wouldn't it be nice," began the marcelled daughter with great carelessness, "to sort of jazz up this place of ours? I saw the loveliest gauze glass curtains today and we could use an imported blocked cretonne for overdrapes, and then a tapestry chair in the corner where that awful old leather thing—"

"That leather chair just nuts me!" said the harried father, reaching for another piece of toast.

"I hear that those gauze curtains don't wash well at all!" declared the practical mother, dropping three lumps of sugar in a coffee cup. "Besides, the curtains we have will last five years yet—"

"Oh," wailed the marcelled daughter, "that's not the idea! Why, if people kept everything they had till it wore out the world would look like a dodo!"

"And we'd all have more money than we now have!" said the harried father. "What's the grand idea anyhow, Patagonia? I never knew the old homestead meant anything to you beyond being a spot to hoff off from to something interesting outside! Why this intense interest in making it too good to use?"

"I know!" the disagreeable small brother giggled. "Her new beau is coming to tea next Sunday night—that Monterey Ostriche, who has the yellow car. 'We'd just love to have you come early and stay to tea,' she said to him last night."

"A person can't breathe in this house without somebody listening in!" protested the marcelled daughter. "Monty Ostriche comes from a wonderful family down south and they have everything lovely and I don't see why you should think I am trying to please him especially when I show a little natural interest in my own home. We need new portieres at the dining room door, too, and I saw the dalingest little foreign china birds we could hang up in these two windows and plant vines in them."

"You have been misinformed," the harried father broke in. "Somebody told you I had recently inherited a fortune and had plenty of money, but I assure you it is not so! If your house is comfortable it is a great mistake to attempt to change it! You never again feel quite at ease. When you come into the front door somebody shrieks at you to be sure you bring no mud in on to the new hall rug and of course you already have done so and stealthily try to sweep it up with the whiskbroom and hide the evidence of your crime under the hatrack. But the hospitable old hatrack no longer is there. Only a thin, skinny, long table against the wall bearing an art bowl with a mirror hung over it. No place for your hat and coat and no dark underpinnings to hide the mud. But this time your wife has appeared, seen the mud and you have been told just what a woman thinks of a man who does not appreciate her hardworking efforts to make his home a thing of beauty.

"He sneaks into the living room intending to hide himself behind a paper in his slouchy, comfortable old chair and all that greets his eyes is a tall backed thing from the count of Prunewhip's chateau, sold to pay the taxes, upholstered in precious material on which he is not allowed to sit for fear of wearing it out! I know what I am talking about because McGass over here tells me he hasn't dared sit down in his own house for three months since his wife renovated it. They just sort of walk around as though in a museum and admire things and then they spend the evening at the movies, to rest up."

"All this talk is propaganda," the marcelled daughter told him coldly. "You just don't want all the mess of having the floors done over—"

"Whatever it may be," her father told her in a do-or-die voice. "I am spending no wad of money turning my perfectly satisfactory home into a 5th avenue palace just to impress a young whippersnapper whom I don't particularly want for a son-in-law anyhow! If you are not sufficiently alluring yourself as a bait, take it from me he is not hard hit—"

"I'll make strawberry shortcake for dessert when he comes to tea," the practical mother said with great acumen. "With plenty of crushed berries and cream—and I don't think, Patagonia, he'll know whether our furnishings are new or back numberish!"

"Oh, boy!" the small brother cried in great anticipation. "That's the ticket! You've got him sure if he gets one of mother's shortcakes. Pat! There's some sense to that!"—Exchange.

Comiskey, The Vacant Lot Pitcher

As a boy, Charles Comiskey played baseball in vacant lots, saw games through knot holes, and dreamed of the time when he would be a great player—but his father thought that the lad should have different ambitions. While attending St. Ignatius college in Chicago, the city of his birth, and St. Mary's, in Kansas, he studied in classes and on the diamond. Then his father had him transferred to the Christian Brother's college at Prairie du Chien, Wis., where there was little baseball.

Back home again he drove a team for a brick concern. While hauling bricks to the new city hall, he saw the Libertys and Franklins clashing, deserted the wagon, and was just striking out the Franklins when his father, in search of the building materials, found him and let him continue the game, taking the load himself to the bricklayers. That night, at a family council, it was decided that Charles, now 17, should be a baseball player.

Pitching a 2 to 1 game for the Libertys, "Commy" was paid $3. Then he joined the Milwaukee Alerts and the next season won every game for the Elgin watch team. But the pay was small and he had to do odd jobs in winter.

Next hurling for the Dubuque, Ia., nine in the Northwest league, he received $50 a month and 20 per cent of his sales as train butcher on the Illinois Central railroad. The league's finances flattened and he became first baseman for the Dubuque Rabbits. In an exhibition game with St. Louis Browns, he played so brilliantly that he soon was with the Browns, at a salary of $80 a month.

As captain and manager of the Browns he made a success and at the end of the nine years was receiving $18,000 a year. He next headed the Chicago Brotherhood nine, then went back to St. Louis, and later managed the Cincinnati National league team and the St. Paul Western league club.

At 41 he became owner and manager of the Chicago White Sox which he made a great success. Today he is rich and is called the "Grand Old Roman" of the great American game.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William J. Harris, who is a candidate for renomination as United States senator in the Georgia primaries today, was chairman of the Federal Trade Commission when elected to the senate in 1917. Previously he had been prominent in business and politics in Georgia for many years. He was educated at the University of Georgia, which is situated at Athens. His first experience in life, following college, was at Cedartown, and from thence he went to Atlanta, where he rose to a position of importance as a capitalist and advisor. Called to Washington in 1913 to take charge of the United States Census Bureau, when its head was at odds with Congress and was resigning, Mr. Harris disclosed ability of an administrative sort that led later to his promotion to the trade commission and its chairmanship. As Senator he has stood for the progressive and distinctly American type of Southern business man.

MARS

With Mars closer to the earth last week by millions of miles than it has been since 1909, and closer by thousands of miles than for 200 years, the planet is being bombarded by hundreds of pairs of trained human eyes peering through the world's greatest telescopes. How effective these instruments are as measured especially by their effect on the image of the moon, our nearest neighbor in space, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The largest telescope in existence, the 101 inch instrument at Mt. Wilson observatory, California in effect brings the moon within 50 miles of the earth," continues the bulletin. "Even relatively minor details of the moon's surface can be made out, and the height of hills and mountains can be calculated with fair accuracy. Major features are so easily recognized that the mountains on the moon have been named. If a wreck the size of the ill-fated Titanic lay on the bottom of one of the dry moon ocean beds it would be visible through the Mt. Wilson instrument. Observations through this great telescope further emphasize what smaller instruments had proved: that the moon is a dry, atmospherless world, from which all life has long since departed. The present condition of the moon, so plainly shown by the telescopes, forecasts what probably will happen to the earth, unless a collision with another celestial body should substitute a sudden end for a lingering death.

"When powerful telescopes are turned from the earth's small satellite to its great sun their disclosures are no less enlightening. They show that from the sun the earth would appear as small as a period on a printed page. So tremendous are some of the chasms in the sun's surface which we call 'sun spots' that 25 or more globes the size of the earth would be required to fill them.

"Among other wonders which the great modern telescope make known are swarms of myriads of stars where the unaided eye can see but five or six hazy nebulae which seem mere wisps of radiant gas and which are solar systems in the making, and stars so far away that it requires 30,000 years for their light to reach the earth. The light of some of these is so faint that two years must be spent in photographing them. Though some of the nebulae appear great holes seemingly devoid of any matter.

"Of course modern astronomical telescopes have not definitely answered the question on which men's minds have long dwelt: 'Are other planets inhabited?' They have piled up additional facts in regard to these planets, however, which lead many of the foremost astronomers to believe that none of the other planets of our solar system is inhabited with the possible exception of Mars. It is in the hope of throwing more light on this absorbingly interesting question that the world's telescopes are being trained nightly this summer on our red neighbor."

Stories That Recall Others

Outwitted the Reaches.

All claims by psychologists for the powers of suggestion have been outdone by the results of an experiment tried by Aunt Madge, which is reported by a relative.

Although they are not the sort of guests who get their names in the papers, pestiferous reaches have a habit of visiting Aunt Madge's apartments in summer weather. She tried several kinds of exterminator and finally found a powder that was most effective. It came time for her vacation and before leaving for two weeks she decided to leave the can of powdered poison open on the kitchen table, where the starving roaches might feed on the deadly diet. Accordingly she opened a can and left the apartment for two weeks.

On returning home Aunt Madge examined the apartments closely and found the number of roaches much smaller. In her mind she was praising the powers of the exterminator. Imagine her surprise though when she observed he can she had left open on the kitchen table contained liquid stove polish.

Just What Did He Mean?

The real estate dealer had shown the two spinsters a score of houses and then some more, but none seemed to suit. Most of them were regarded too expensive. He knew they had plenty of money, but were loath to part with it. So he decided to teach them a lesson by showing them a cheap house.

They looked at each other after they had seen the house and one of them remarked icily, "What made you show us this pigpen?"

Her tone stung the tired real estate dealer, who retorted just as tartly "Oh, I beg your pardon, I had been told this was a chicken coup."

"In New York Now."

A well known citizen who was accustomed to observe the rules of safety as applied in Connecticut was motoring along Fifth avenue in New York at a sane rate of speed.

A traffic policeman stepped up to him and said rather impatiently, "Well, hurry up, hurry up; you're in New York now."

The more money a man has the more he is abused—and the less he cares.

JOYS OF MOTHERHOOD

Often Prevented by Female Trouble

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brings Joy to Homes by Removing Cause of Trouble

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"I was working after I got married and the young lady who worked next to me asked me if I had any intentions of having a child. I told her I would be the happiest woman on earth if I could become a mother, but I always had terrible cramps, backaches and headaches. She then told me of a woman she knows who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for the same troubles and it helped her greatly. I took about a half bottle and found that the following month I did not suffer any pain, so I kept on taking it. I have a wonderful baby boy six months old and he is as strong and fat as any one could wish a baby to be. I still take the Vegetable Compound regularly because I have looked fine all the time and felt fine and my mother told me that was the reason. I will be glad to have you publish my testimonial with my name and address."—Mrs. Edward Werbeck, 1824 Greene Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Free From Old Trouble

Auburn, Me.—"I suffered with inward weakness for ten years and had doctored all this long time but never got any help. One day I saw my sister and she told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I went and got me a bottle of it. I took two bottles and a half and I was just as free from my old troubles as I could be. I had only one child and I was afraid that I could never have any more, for I had been told that I never could have a living child for I was not strong enough to carry one. But they were mistaken and I had a nice baby boy and now I have five children. I can't praise your medicine enough. My youngest sister has taken it, too, and praises it."—Mrs. G. L. Wiswell, 43 Mechanics Row, Auburn, Maine.

These cases are similar to many others reported to us. It is well for women to carefully consider such statements and to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. It may bring great joy to your home.

Over 100,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

98 per cent of these replies are "Yes."

That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This goes to prove that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure-all—can and does do good work. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been a medicine for women. For sale by druggists everywhere.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Grandmother Magpie.

In her tiny kitchen,
Ironing the clothes,
Lady Love was standing
On her tippy-toes.

as Grandmother Magpie flew out of the last story into this one.

"I thought I'd find you home"

perching herself on the windowsill. "He was hopping along, doing nothing but whistling."

"Children should be kept busy," went on the old lady blackbird. "Was he on an errand for you?"

"No, he's out for a play the rest of the day," replied the little bunny mother.

"Idle boys make idle men," snapped Grandmother Magpie, pushing back her black bonnet. I don't know what Lady Love would have answered if, just at that moment, dear, kind Uncle Lucky, the old gentleman bunny, hadn't hopped up the little path through the bramble bushes.

"Well, I thought I'd find you home" he laughed, sitting down in the big rocker. But the next minute, on seeing Grandmother Magpie, his face lost its smile.

"Good morning," he said, rising and bowing, for Uncle Lucky never forgot his manners no matter how provoked he might be. No, indeedy. His mother had brought him up properly, and the dear old gentleman rabbit had a good memory. Yes, indeedy. He could remember the number of candles in his fifth birthday cake!

"Maybe I'd better be going," said Grandmother Magpie, tying her bonnet string with a jerk. "Two's company, you know."

"Must you go?" asked Lady Love. She didn't say, "Won't you stay?" No sireemam. Lady Love was too truthful to make believe she wanted the meddlesome lady magpie another minute.

"Yes I must," snapped Grandmother Magpie, and away she flew to bother someone else.

"Whew!" sighed dear Uncle Lucky. "Glad she's gone. Now we can have a chat. Little Miss Mousie has gone for a day's visit, so your lonely old uncle has come to see you."

"One, two tickery tock.
Ten more ticks and it's twelve o'clock," sang the cuckoo bird from her little front porch of the pretty clock house on the wall.

"Make yourself comfortable," said Lady Love, tucking a cushion behind the nice old gentleman bunny. "Little Jack Rabbi, will be home in a minute. I'll get luncheon," and she bustled about to set the table and put away the ironing board. All of a sudden the little rabbit's whistle was heard.

"Here he comes through the bramble lane,
Swinging his red-striped candy cane."

The Imperial

A new type of combustion chamber that burns all the gas and a new way of distributing the gas equally to all cylinders are two reasons why the Chrysler Six, with an engine only 3-inch bore by 4¾-inch stroke delivers 68 horsepower, top speed better than 70 miles an hour with gasoline economy safely 20 miles to the gallon. When you take your demonstration the performance will speak for itself. But don't forget to ask about the oil-filter that automatically cleanses all the crankcase oil every 25 miles and the air-cleaner which passes none but clean air through the carburetor into the cylinders, two big economy factors that add to the life of the car and cut maintenance costs. Note, too, the special six-ply high-speed balloon tires on all models.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled Cris-ler

Chrysler engineers have done more than apply four-wheel brakes. They have designed the car to meet the torsional strain of front wheel brakes. That is one of the reasons why the front axle is of tubular design. In comparison with the conventional practice it shows these advantages: Twisting strains, 138% stronger; horizontal strains, 5 times stronger; up and down strains, 400% stronger; rigidity 34% greater.

The braking equipment is the Chrysler-Lockheed development of the hydraulic principle, guaranteeing automatic and permanent equalization. These four-wheel brakes and the Chrysler practice of mounting rear springs at right angles to the rear axle and close to and parallel to the wheels account in large measure for the superior driving and riding qualities of the car.

There is no disturbing side-sway under any conditions and you can take a turn at 50 miles an hour without danger or discomfort. Book yourself for a ride and be sure to have these superiorities demonstrated.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan.

SCHOOL BOARD ACCEPTS PLANS FOR BRIDGE DISTRICT SCHOOL

The town school board has accepted the plans of Chandler & Palmer for the new $100,000 school building for the Bridge district, East Side, which call for a brick two-story building containing nine rooms, an auditorium and a room on the lower floor that can be used for voting purposes.

Specifications are to be prepared and will be ready in about a week to be given out to contractors for bids. It is not expected, however, that anything more than the foundation work for the building will be done this year, as the board does not want the building to be erected during the winter season, having had enough experience with that kind of construction in the building of the Elizabeth street school.

The board held its regular September meeting Tuesday evening in the office of Superintendent Graham in the court house with President Walter F. Lester presiding. Routine matters of business were transacted and upon recommendation of Superintendent Graham leaves of absence for six months were granted to Miss Ellen McCloud, Broadway school; Miss Mary Mullen, Elizabeth street school, and Miss Marguerite Vetter, Greeneville school.

The resignation of Miss Clara J. Gordon, Elizabeth street school, was presented and accepted. Two new teachers were appointed—Miss Justine Morrison and Miss Mary N. Bosworth.

FIRST NIGHT AS REGULAR EVENTFUL FOR OFFICER

Patrick Shahan, appointed a regular on the Norwich force at the common council meeting Monday night, signalized his first night on duty on Tuesday at Thames square by intercepting three North Attleboro youths who had stolen an automobile in New London. The young fellows gave themselves away as strangers to the city when they came up Thames street, drove to the left of the flashing beacon in Thames square and then turned to the right into West Main street. The officer spotted the unusual maneuver and held up the car they were driving, a Ford touring car with the registration N-2485.

One of the three attempted to get out, saying he was not with the other fellows but was merely riding with them, but the officer promised the boy a ride of another kind, while he summoned a jitney and with Officers Donovan and Sharvan took the three boys to police headquarters, where they gave the names of Clarence Doucett, 15, Alfred Sirois, 15, and Fred Stone, 16, all of North Attleboro, Mass. Stone was the driver of the car when the officer stopped it.

Just after Officer Shahan had the boys in hand he got the warning from police headquarters to be on the lookout for a car that had been stolen in New London, registration N-2485, the same that he had just intercepted. Capt. D. J. Twomey had just received word from the New London police of the theft of the car but said nor had time to notify all the men on the beats before Officer Shahan had the car in his hands.

William C. Bushnell of Waterford, owner of the machine, came here later in the evening with the New London officers and drove his car home while the policemen took the three boys back to New London. Mr. Bushnell, who is a son of Chester Bushnell of Laurel Hill, this city, said he had driven in from his home in Waterford to attend a meeting at the New London armory and had hardly been away from his car fifteen minutes when it was stolen. In his hurry when he got out of the machine he left his keys in it so that it was easy for the boys to get away with it.

MRS. SHAHAN MAKES SUCCESS AS VACATION HOUSE HEAD

Mrs. Teresa B. Shahan is in Norwich for a few days, on her way to Hartford from Lakeville, where she has been hostess at Lakeville Manor, the Catholic girls' vacation house, during the very successful season. The house opened Memorial Day and closed at the end of Labor Day week.

Guests have come from all over the state, the weekly average being 70. The exact figures of attendance and results will be published later. But it is known that Mrs. Shahan has proved a most efficient manager. The vacation house is maintained by the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, which has local branches in the various cities and towns. The girls were given a good time, plenty of wholesome entertainment being provided and the wealthy residents of all denominations in and about Lakeville took great interest in making their stay pleasant. A number of employed Norwich girls were among the guests during the summer.

DIED SUDDENLY IN CORNFIELD AT WILLINGTON

While cutting corn in the fields at Willington at 4.30 Monday afternoon, Lukas Safrnek, 65, collapsed and died a few minutes later before medical attention could be given him. He was working with companions when Anton Hatak saw him fall to the ground. Mr. Hatak called for a doctor, but before Dr. F. B. Converse reported, Safrnek had died. Dr. Converse reported death due to heart failure. Mr. Safrnek was born in Austria but he came to this country when a young man. He lived in Willington 27 years, working for the G. Hall, Jr., corporation for 23 years. Besides his wife he leaves nine children, John and Robert of New York, Henry of Windham, Charles, Joseph and Frank of South Willington, and Anthony of Willington Hill; Mrs. Mary Ruziska and Mrs. Joseph Safrcek of Islip, L. I., fourteen grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Joseph Tober of Willington.

HOME CHAPTER RESUMES MEETINGS FOR SEASON

The September meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon at the Johnson Home, had a comparatively small number present, there being only about 35 or 40, when the average attendance is usually 70 or more.

This, the first fall meeting, was in charge of the leader, Mrs. William C. Manning, who had requested a Scriptural roll call; but because the attendance was smaller than expected, this was postponed to some future time.

After the opening exercises, members were requested to bring in the calendars which were distributed last December, so that it will be possible to report this year the full amount realized from the members' savings since then.

The subject of work was brought up for discussion, it being decided that each member was to choose and make her own garment and present it to the chapter.

Home Chapter is to have a membership drive. Each member has been asked to present the name of one new member at the October meeting. One new name was presented at the meeting Monday.

The King's Daughters' convention is to be held in Waterbury, Wednesday and Thursday, October 8th and 9th. The delegates from Home Chapter are to be announced by the leader at a later date.

Following the business session tea and wafers were served by the refreshment committee.

THREE CITIES IN STATE LOWER MOTOR DEATHS

Three Connecticut cities are on the list of thirty-five throughout the country whose efforts to lower their death toll from automobile accidents proved successful last year, according to a report of the department of commerce at Washington, which states that one of these cities has been continued from an "Honor roll" for 1922.

The three cities, New Haven, Bridgeport and New Britain, all reported an increased motor registration and decreased motor fatalities last year as compared with 1922. The number of deaths from automobile accidents in New Haven dripped from 34 to 30, the motor registration last year being 17,625.

New Britain which was continued from the 1922 "honor roll," reported the number of deaths last year as four, while in 1922, there were seven deaths from auto accidents. The auto registration in that city last year totalled 5,671.

"The record of these 35 cities, and the methods used are being studied and will play a part in the recommendations to be submitted by eight committees of experts co-operating with Secretary of Commerce Hoover at a meeting later in the year when plans will be considered to reduce traffic accidents" says the report.

KINGSTON FAIR OPENS WITH GOVERNOR'S DAY

Governor's Day, which marked the opening of the Kingston fair Tuesday, drew a large crowd, not only spectators eager to take in the exhibits and entertainment, but of political lights from every corner of Rhode Island. This was the 50th annual fair of the Washington County Agricultural society.

Immediately after Governor Flynn and his staff arrived at 12.30 the annual program of speaking took place in Hazard hall. The address of the day was given by Hon. Frederick A. Wallis, formerly United States commissioner of immigration. Governor Flynn also delivered a short speech. At 2 p. m. the governor and his staff, members of the legislature and other invited guests were entertained at dinner in the main dining tent. Horse racing, free outdoor vaudeville acts and a concert by the Peacedale band were among the features of the afternoon program.

Wednesday will be New England day and Thursday, which has been designated Grange day, is expected to attract a large number of grangers and their families. Friday will be children's day when all boys and girls under 12 will be admitted free.

SILVER WEDDING DAY OF MR. AND MRS. G. O. HATHAWAY

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Hathaway observed the 25th anniversary of their wedding Tuesday evening, at their home, No. 76 Ward street. There were about 25 guests present and the evening proved a most delightful one. Instrumental and vocal selections were enjoyed and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway received a number of remembrances from their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway were united in marriage in this city September 9, 1899 and all of their married life has been spent in Norwich. Before her marriage Mrs. Hathaway was Miss Lucy Enos. Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway have one daughter, Miss Gertrude Hathaway, who resides with her parents. Mr. Hathaway is proprietor of a meat market on West Main street.

FRANK KING'S CORNET PLEASES POQUYOGH BEACH

A former resident of Norwich, Frank E. King, whose home has been at Poquyogh, Waterford, for a number of years, has been adding a pleasant evening feature at the beach this season by his musical ability. Mr. King was for long a member of Tubbs band and its leading cornetist. Each evening at the beach as twilight was falling he has unlimbered his cornet on the porch of his cottage, sending out its sweet notes into the stillness of the evening as he played over old familiar songs, hymns and bugle calls. The cottages have enjoyed Mr. King's impromptu recital each evening as much as he did himself.

LESS ELECTRIC POWER PRODUCED IN STATE

The production of electric power in Connecticut has declined steadily since May, although the production by fuels has increased each month, the decrease being in the production by water power, according to a report of the department of commerce at Washington

In Connecticut the total production of electric power dropped from 69,756 thousand kilowatt hours in May to 65,165 thousand in June, to 64,962 thousand in July. Of the July total 60,229 thousand kilowatt hours was by fuels, dropping from 51,666 thousand in June while 4,733 thousand kilowatt hours was by water power a decrease of 13,499 in June.

All of the New England states reported decreases in the July production of such power except Vermont and Massachusetts which had an increased output.

Maine's total output dropped to 33,948 thousand kilowatt hours during July, New Hampshire's to 14,711, and Rhode Island to 27,265, while Massachusetts' output was 149,913 thousand kilowatt hours and Vermont's 22,426. This made a total of 312,430 thousand kilowatt hours of electricity for all the states, a decrease from 307,866 during June.

BOONE WOOLEN MILLS OMIT QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

Directors of the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills, meeting in Chicago, on Tuesday, omitted the quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on the capital stock, due at this time. The Boone mills have a branch at Baltic.

The action of the directors further emphasized the depression in the textile industry, on which light was thrown last week by the omission of the American Woolen company's common dividend and readjustment of the capital structure of the consolidated textile corporation.

Daniel Boone shares on the New York stock exchange Tuesday declined to a new low record at 10 1-2, later closing at 11 1-8. Earlier in the year the stock sold at a high price of 32 1-4.

RENT INCREASES IN R. I. AND CONNECTICUT

Rhode Island and Connecticut, judging by statistics collected from Providence and Bridgeport, are expensive places for folks who do not own their own homes to live, according to a report of the national industrial conference board, which shows that rents in these two cities increased about 10 per cent. during the four-month period from March to July of this year.

The greatest number of increases in average rents were reported from the eastern section of the country during the fourth months under discussion, while the greatest number of decreases came from the middle-western section. For the nineteen cities in the east reporting increases the highest was between 11 per cent. and 20 per cent. in Johnstown, Penn., while ten cities in that section reported decreases of less than 10 per cent.

Are using these rare powders

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I did not intend to supply powders to women. My only idea was to furnish them my greatest beauty helps. But thousands of women have urged me, by letter and in person, to tell them the powders I use.

Edna Wallace Hopper

Like all my friends on the stage and in the movies, I use very costly powders. I have them made to my order, and they cost me $5 per box. Our careers depend on our looks, and nothing is too costly.

But I have persuaded the makers to offer these powders at ordinary prices. I order them by my titles, under my name. I guarantee them at my expense to girls and women who desire the best.

Now all druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Powders. There are two kinds. For myself I prefer a clinging powder, a cold cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It is enduring. That Youth Cream costs $1. But many women prefer a light and fluffy powder. If you want that kind, it costs 50 cents. Both kinds come in three shades—white, flesh and brunette.

So far as I know, these powders are the finest in existence. You may be sure that if anyone produced a better powder I would get it quickly. Anyone who uses common powders will gain a new conception of what powders should be.

Let me send you a sample. Just mail this coupon and tell me the kind you want.

HEAVY RAINS HALT THE FIGHTING NEAR SHANGHAI

Shanghai, Sept. 9 (By the A. P.)—Heavy rains which fell today have put a stop temporarily at least to the battles which have been in progress for a week past between the Chekiang and Kiangsu armies west of this city, for the possession of which the governors of the two provinces appealed to the force of arms.

From reports of eye-witnesses and the Chekiang headquarters, the rain came as the Chekiang armies were launching counter attacks at Limbo on the Yangtze river and Hwangshi on the railway, where they previously had repulsed Kiangsu attacks. Both counter attacks, it is claimed, met with a measure of success.

Meanwhile another Chekiang army is advancing from the south around Lake Taihu with Chang Chow, an important city on the railway as its objective hoping there to cut the lines of the enemy.

Wilds of British Guiana.

British Guiana bush is dangerous maze. Savages find their way by means of secret marks, but a tenderfoot enters at great risk. The country is five times the size of England and there are not more than ten white men who have gone into the wilds of the interior, according to D. Bannerman Clarke, M. A. general manager of the Aranka Gold, Ltd., of Georgetown, British Guiana. "The natives" he says, "have the most marvelous sense of direction and find their way through the jungle with unerring precision. They have a sort of sign language. They make marks on trees which only they understand and if some one has followed the natives he can always tell how large the party was, whither they went and just when they passed the given spot, by their curious marks on the trees made with cutlasses. They also leave marks for their own guidance when they turn about and start homeward. Once you know the bush and its hidden sign language it is almost as easy to get about as in the open, but if a tenderfoot gets lost he is in a hopeless maze and has very little chance of getting out alive."

If things fail to come your way go around and head them off.

FIRST CALL FOR FOOTBALL CANDIDATES WILL BE SOUNDED AT ACADEMY THIS WEEK

The first call for football candidates at the Norwich Academy will be sounded this week by Coach William Artken. Coach Artken is a former Wesleyan University football star and was captain and center of the Wesleyan squad last year. With a coach fresh from the gridirons of 1923 football the prospects of installing some real football into the Academy candidates is bright.

The 1924 team will be built around six veterans. Captain Johnny Haslam Jack Hipricks, Butch Mileski, Marty Gilman, Scott and McGowan. There is other very promising material in the school. It is reported that Chick Spivery will enter school this year and is eligible for the team. Chick has had considerable experience with a southern prep school team and is a ten-second man on the track. Another rumor that if true, will greatly strengthen the team, is that Courbois, a local boy, who played with marked brilliance for Chapman Tech last year, will enter the Academy as a student and a prospective candidate for the team. Courbois is a fast man and also holds an enviable record as a track man. There are several other promising candidates who will enter the school this fall and the prospects for a real football team are bright.

Saturday, Sept. 27—Open.
Saturday, Oct. 4—C. A. C. Freshmen at Storrs.
Saturday, Oct. 11—Chapman Tech at New London.
Friday, Oct. 17—Westerly at Westerly.
Saturday, Oct. 25.—Stonington at Norwich.
Friday, Oct. 31.—Westerly at Norwich.
Saturday, Nov. 8—Bulkeley at Norwich
Tuesday, Nov. 11—Plainfield at Norwich.
Saturday, Nov. 15.—Chapman Tech at Norwich.
Saturday, Nov. 22—Stonington at Stonington.

CARDS HAND PIRATES A SEVERE SETBACK

St. Louis, Sept. 9.—The Cardinals handed the Pirates a severe setback in their drive for the 1924 pennant this afternoon, when they took both games, 7 to 4, and 6 to 4. The first game was featured by the brilliant work of "Chick" Hafey, recruit outfielder, who was obtained from the Houston team of the Texas league recently. Pittsburgh's four errors in the second game aided the Cardinals in scoring their second victory.

Pittsburgh's double defeat widened the margin between the league leading Giants and the Pirates to three games. The score:

SPECTACULAR PLAYS FEATURE CUBS' VICTORY OVER REDS

Chicago, Sept. 9.—O'Farrell's home run in the sixth inning and a shoe string catch by Weis in the ninth, enabled Chicago to defeat Cincinnati 4 to 3 today. The locals bunched hits for three runs in the third, while the visitors were unable to do much with Alexander. With the tying run on third in the ninth, Weis made a great play on Wingo's drive and retired the side. Score:

YANKS GAIN HALF GAME BY BEATING BOSTON IN NINTH

Boston, Sept. 9.—The Yankees gained half a game on the idle Washington Senators by beating Boston 5 to 4 today. The champions made their tying and winning runs in the ninth. Pinch Hitter Johnson, for Hoffmann, was walked by Quinn. Gehrig batted for Ward and was safe on Ezzell's error. Scott bunted to Harris who made a bad throw into the dirt at third base, all three men being safe. Then Joe Bush batted for Pennock and on his double to right, Johnson and McNally, running for Gehrig, scored.

Quinn finished the inning without further scoring. A pass to Flagstead was the limit of Hoyt's vulnerability in the last of the ninth. In the fourth, Meusel hit the ball over the left field fence with none on base. Williams doubled once and singled three times, having a part in all of Boston's runs. The score:

N. L. CITY LEAGUE TITLE TO BE DECIDED SUNDAY

New London, Sept. 9.—The City league will come to a close here Sunday when the Fort Trumbull Stars will clash with the Knights of Columbus in the last and deciding game of the league. The Kaceys at the present time stand out in the lead but there is a fighting chance that the Stars may be returned pennant winners.

The Kaceys have won eight and lost three games while the Stars have won seven and lost three with two games to play. The Stars meet the Corticelli team on Saturday and should they win they will be in a tie with the Knights and Sunday's game will decide the pennant winner. However, should they lose to the Silkmen they will have a chance of tying up the league by beating the Kaceys on Sunday. The Stars who have been playing good ball this season, are determined to win and the games for the week end will be well worth seeing.

The Stars will also play a game on Sunday, Sept. 21st against the Pioneers of Groton.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch, Captain, New York Giants

Score is 2 to 1 in favor of the team in the field. One man is out and an exceptionally fast man is at bat. There are runners on first and third. Batter hits ball to first baseman on one hop.

Where should first baseman make the play?

If there is no possible chance of making a double play, the first baseman should throw the ball to the catcher, to prevent runner from third scoring and tying the score. But if there is a good chance of making a double and in this case because the hit is a sharp one, the chance depends on whether the shortstop has a good arm or not, the first baseman should field such a ball to second and rush back to his bag, inorder to get the return throw for the double.

OVER SIXTY CANDIDATES FOR BULKELEY FOOTBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 9—Another postponement in the calling of the initial football practice at Bulkeley High school, found two days being wasted with nothing accomplished in the way of whipping the candidates into condition for the coming strenuous program. This afternoon was devoted to the distribution of lockers to the candidates for the coming season and although more than sixty lockers were distributed during the afternoon to those students who have expressed a desire to try out for the team, at least thirty more were waiting to receive lockers but were informed that the supply was exhausted.

The distribution of the lockers gave some idea as to the number of candidates who will report to the football coach, William R. Canty, on Wednesday.

Uniforms and other football equipment have yet to be purchased by the school for distribution among the first team players. These are expected to arrive shortly and the football jerseys will also be distributed at the same time.

Bulkeley is still without an opening game for September 29, but Manager Herbert Fern expects to secure a team within a short space of time. Windham is especially sought for the opening game, while Middletown High and West Haven High are also on the probable list to oppose the Orange and Black in the opening contest of the season.

MRS. VANDERBECK WINS THE QUALIFYING ROUND

Philadelphia, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Clarence H. Miss Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, Ohio, with a card of 83, finished second, and Mrs. D. E. Harwood, Chicago, was third with a 90.

Miss Priscilla Maxwell, of Hartford, Conn., with 95, was among the first sixteen.

BOTH FIRPO AND WILLS ARE IN FINE SHAPE FOR THEIR BOUT THURSDAY NIGHT

New York, Sept 9.—(By The A. P.)—With the last legal entanglements apparently stymied, Luis Angel Firpo and Harry Wills, rival aspirants for Jack Dempsey's crown, have completed their training and today declared themselves fit for their battle Thursday night in Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City.

Firpo, because of his devastating right-hand punch, loomed tonight as a slight favorite, with several wagers being reported on him at odd of 6 to 5, but critics who have followed the giant gladiator in their preparations the past few weeks look for a closely-fought battle.

There seems to be general agreement that the fight will not go the limit of 12 rounds, but, on the other hand, a fairly even division of opinion as to whether the expected knockout will be scored by the "Wild Bull" or the "Brown Panther." As no decisions are permitted under the New Jersey boxing laws, the verdict, in case the match goes the limit, will be unofficial.

Due to the uncertainty caused by deportation proceedings against Firpo, the advance seat sale has not come up to expectations. It has passed $300,000, however, promoter Tex Rickard said, and if the revival of interest manifested today continues the bowl is expected to be packed to its limit of about 90,000, with gate receipts approximating $1,000,000.

If weather blocks the fight, it will be held Friday night.

Both principals are in excellent condition. With their long conditioning grinds completed, both men tipped the scales at around 220 and expect to climb into the ring at this figure.

Wills returned to the city early today after breaking camp at Southampton, Long Island, where he has done his training in seclusion. His hands, whose brittleness has been something of a handicap to him during his past few years of ring activities, were declared to be in good condition and strong enough to carry him through what promises to be the most gruelling fight of his career.

Both fighters are confident of the outcome. Firpo relies on his slugging ability, aggressiveness and recuperative powers to beat down the superior defensive skill of Wills, who has other assets in his greated experience and shiftier footwork. The negro, better at infighting, also has an effective punch in either hand, while Firpo, unless he has altered his style of battling, will rely chiefly upon his powerful right.

The bout is slated to go on about 10 p. m., eastern daylight time. Five other contestants are included on the card, with the semi-final of eight rounds between Chevy Nashert, of Newark, and Mike Burke, of New Orleans, scheduled after the main event.

The other attractions are: Charley McKenna, New York vs. Biguel Ferrera, Argentine, four rounds, Joe Silvania, vs. Carl Johnson, four rounds; Jim Maloney, vs. Joe Stoessel, former New York amateur star, six rounds; Bill Tate vs. John Casanova, six rounds.

CHAPMAN TECH HAS TEN GAMES ON ITS SCHEDULE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 9.—A football schedule of ten games is included in the Chapman Technical High calendar for this coming season. Of the ten games included in the schedule, eight are definitely scheduled and two games are pending. The opening game with Plainfield High which is pending will decide whether the Red and Black will open its schedule this month or if they will have to defer their opening game of the season until the following month.

The only new comers on the Tech schedule are Killingly High and Plainfield High. Both these teams will be played out of town, while home and home series will be played with the three remaining schools in the Eastern Connecticut league of which Chapman Tech is a member namely Norwich Academy, Westerly High and Stonington High. The game with the Alumni on November 29, which is pending will close the football season for the Tech. However, the final High school team to oppose the Tech is Westerly High, and as in previous years another hard battle will be given Westerly for the top honors in the league.

The unexpected keen competition experienced at the hands of Norwich Academy last season, gives assurance that the Tech mentor will guard against all such mid year reversals in form this coming season by taking unusual precautions to insure good results after the early games. Windham High, Norwich Free Academy and Westerly High are the trio most feared by the Red and Black and these games will be especially sought to repose on the winning side of the ledger.

In fact the above named schools are feared to such an extent that they will be played near the close of the season to give the Red and Black mentor more time to get the Tech squad in the best of condition.

The complete football schedule for the season of 1924 follows:

Sept. 27.—Plainfield High school at Plainfield. (Pending)
Oct. 4.—Stonington High school at New London. (League contest)
Oct. 11.—Norwich Free Academy at New London. (League contest)
Oct. 18.—Killingly High school at Danielson.
Oct. 24.—Westerly High school at New London (League contest)
Nov. 1.—Stonington High school at Stonington (League contest)
Nov. 8.—Windham High school at New London.
Nov. 15.—Norwich Free Academy at Norwich. (League contest)
Nov. 21.—Westerly High school at Westerly. (League contest)
Nov. 29.—Alumni at New London (pending)

New Haven town committee stated she had a plank to submit.

She offered the following:

"Believing firmly in the principles of equality granted to all persons by the constitution of the United States, and the constitution of this state irrespective of creed or color, and to the citizens of the United States by the constitution of the United States or by the constitution of this state because of the religious faith, race, or color or any person is un-American, and contrary to the true spirit of the institutions of this country.

"We strongly denounce any organization by whatever name it be called, whether it be Ku Klux Klan or otherwise, which attempts to abridge such privileges or which attempts to make faith, creed, or color a standard for preferent in public office."

After she had read the plank she said: 'I don't have to be introduced to one hundred per cent. Americanism through anonymous sources. I am the great-great-granddaughter of Israel Putnam and I am proud to submit this for your approval."

Louis Feinmarg, New Haven, supported the plank and denounced the klan. The sub-committee then retired.

The sub-committee voted to reject the klan plank and also opposed the child labor plank proposed by Mrs. Smith of the Connecticut State League of Women Voters.

NUMBER FIVE

the New Orleans. When Lieutenants Smith and Wade arrived, even air service officers, including the official announcer at the field, believed that all three cruisers were on the ground and rushing to their stop at the far end of the long landing ground. The two that did come in were wheeled quickly to taxi back to a plane in line before the reviewing stand where the president awaited them. A space was kept clear for the third, but when it remained vacant there were eager inquiries for the missing ship.

Lieutenant Nelson landed from the escort plane which carried him through soon after his companions brought their ships to earth. He had very little to say of the accident to his ship. There was no warning of trouble, he said, until the regular bark of his motor became a sputter that forced him to hunt out a landing field. He found it easily and went down to a field, landing easily and with his escorting planes dropping beside him. A swift examination showed that the engine was "dead" until repairs could be made, and Nelson signalled to the squadron above to go on without him.

"The key holding the timing gear must have been sheared off," Lieut. Nelson told mechanics at Bolling field, "or else several gear teeth were stripped off."

Lieutenant Harding, Nelson's mechanician, remained with the crippled cruiser and repair parts were rushed out from Bolling field by plane immediately. Nelson said the engine would be examined and Harding would make repairs and bring her in tomorrow if nothing more than the gears was injured. If a new engine is necessary, the New Orleans may not get in until the next day, and in any event it seems unlikely that the flight can be resumed for a day or two at least.

The cabinet was in session when Mrs. Coolidge received word that the fliers probably would be in around noon. He invited all members of his official family to accompany him to the field, and when he stuck to his plan of greeting the airmen even though he sacrificed luncheon to do so, the cabinet officers followed his example. Later the officers' mess at Bolling field invited the presidential party to a hastily prepared meal and the commander-in-chief, the secretary of war, the secretary of state and a large number of other government dignitaries partook, among other things, of that old army standby, pork and beans.

The delay due to fog and the accident threw the reception plans badly out of gear. Knowing that the president was awaiting them, the airmen hastened their last jump from Aberdeen in every possible way, setting aside the schedule of air parade over the city and the tribute to the unknown soldier at Arlington they had expected to carry out. They flew directly to Bolling field and thousands who waited on roofs all over the city never caught a glimpse of them.

Even the saluting batteries prepared to do them honor did not get word of the arrival until long after the machines were on the ground. Then the loyal comrades of the guns set the air ringing with the brazen clamor, and it was thus that most folks in the city knew that the long awaited fliers had arrived.

The third shower of the day was coming down in earnest as the landing was made. Despite the rain, the president and cabinet members stood to welcome the air route pioneers and a dense mass of humanity about the roped-off landing field. There was wild cheering and the shriek of motor horns as the ships, one by one, came down.

The official reception was brief. After the handshaking, Mr. Coolidge asked Lieutenant Smith to show him the Chicago, and they strolled out together to gaze at the big cruiser. The material of the wings and propeller interested the president, and he talked a moment with the flight commander before he turned to rejoin Mrs. Coolidge in the White House car and then the official party came back to Washington.

Then came the unofficial reception by comrades, officers and men of Bolling field. The world flight group was swallowed up in a crowd of personal friends, and there was much back-slapping and handshaking.

Lieutenant Smith could not be induced at the field to comment on the world trip more than to say that he was "happy to get here." Both he and Lieutenant Wade, however, gave personal attention to their cruisers before fellow officers bundled them off to the presidential suite in the New Willard hotel, their quarters for the night.

They looked as though they needed the rest when they climbed into automobiles to leave the field.

Uses of Baobab Tree

An African tree of the mallow family is the gigantic baobab, sometimes called the monkey bread tree. The trunk often attains a diameter of 40 feet and frequently serves as a natural cistern, retaining rain water in large quantities in a cavity formed at the top of the broad trunk.

Taking the hint thus afforded by nature the Arabs hollow out the huge baobabs and fill them with water during the prevalence of rains. These cisterns are in many cases 20 feet in height and 8 or 10 feet in diameter and hold many gallons of water.

The leaves of the baobab which do not appear in the dry season, are large and palmlike. The flowers resemble the white poppy, having showy petals and violet-colored stamens.

The fruit is large, of a melon shape and contains numerous seeds about the size of peas. These seeds are closely packed in a pulp, which is said to taste like gingerbread, with a pleasant acid flavor, and is highly prized by the natives.

The wood of baobab is light and soft, and the roots are of extraordinary length. The tree, one of the largest known, is a native of western Africa, but is found in Abyssinia and has also been cultivated in many of the warmer parts of the world.

ADDRESS BY SCHUYLER MERRITT AT THE REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

New Haven, Sept. 9.—Following is the text of the address delivered by Schuyler Merritt as temporary chairman of the republican state convention in session here today.

Mr. Chairman, Delegates, Fellow Republicans:

I appreciate highly the honor of acting as temporary chairman of this representative Republican convention called to do its responsible part in the government of this state and nation.

The Republican party has reached the venerable age of three score years and ten. Founded, as it was, on the bed rock principles of the Declaration of Independence and of the Constitution, it has on this sure foundation grown with the growth of the country. Holding fast to its principles and adapting them to new conditions, bringing forth new leaders as the older statesman pass away, the party during these seventy years has gained the wisdom of experience and the vigor of new blood.

Put in control of the government seven years after it was founded, it saved the Union, freed the slaves, kept inviolate the nation's financial honor, defeated paper money inflation in 1876, and silver inflation in 1896; and when under a Democratic administration the United States, belated and unprepared entered the great war, the Republican party, forgetting partisanship gave whole hearted support to the administration. Without this support President Wilson, owing to pacifist tendencies of many Democratic leaders, could not have passed congress some of the most vital legislation

Work For World Peace

Since the overwhelming repudiation, by the people, of the proposed entry of the United States into the league of nations, coupled as it was with the treaty of Versailles, the Republican administration has done more for world peace than has been accomplished in generations. By the treaty for the limitation of armaments and its accompanying treaties a crushing burden of war expenditure has been taken from the world, and peace in the Pacific practically assured. And now by the Dawes plan on reparations there is every assurance that France will get justice, that Germany, while paying reparations, can still rehabilitate her industry and commerce, and that Europe and the world can settle down to the ways of peace.

Both President Harding and President Coolidge have warmly favored the adherence by this country to the Court of International Justice, and our platform also favors it. This movement to substitute law for force is, in my opinion, a most helpful and hopeful effort to influence nations toward settlement of disputes and disagreements by methods of peace rather than war.

Protective Tariff

From its beginning the Republican party has believed and acted on the belief that no part of the country could prosper unless the whole country prospered. It has always believed and believes now that all classes—farmers, manufacturers, employers, and employed should share in the benefits which come from the country's great natural resources and from the industry and ability of its citizens.

To this end it has believed and now believes that its industries and its people, especially its wage earners, should be protected by a tariff against destructive foreign competition. The results of this policy have been a wonder to mankind in all fields of human activity unexampled in history, and a distribution of the rewards of industry more general and more equitable than the world has ever seen.

It is only necessary to note the enormous accumulations in the savings banks to prove that not only are American wages higher than in any country, but that the differential between wages and the cost of living is greater, thus enabling every careful working man to save and to become a capitalist. It is one of the glories of this country that its capitalists are workers, and its workers may be and most of them are capitalists. This rare condition is largely due to the Republican system of protection.

The only class of idle rich which has ever existed in this country were the slave holders of the south before the civil war, and the south itself under the benefit Republican tariff is now developing as never before. And yet our southern friends today, many of them fine, able and patriotic men and citizens denounce as robbery the tariff which benefits them. They have never gotten over their prejudice against and their suspicion of the Yankees of the north. These men of the south dominate, as they always have dominated the democratic party. It is a sectional and not a national party.

This brief statement of some of the achievements of the party appears to me to demonstrate that republicans from the beginning have agreed with one of our present leaders in preferring brass tacks to bombast.

With this record of seventy years, the party has submitted once more to the country its platform and its candidates.

Republican Platform

Some would-be critics of the Republican platform have said that its candidate for president is its real platform. This is a compliment both to the platform and the candidate. The platform is a strong and unified statement of constitutional principles adapted to present day conditions and consistent with the party record. On the contrary, the Democratic platform is a combination of misstatements of facts, with proposals antagonistic to each other and many of them unconstitutional. In fact the planks are so ill fitting and unbalanced as to the endeavor to prevent disaster. We've placed a New York conservative at one end and a Nebraska radical at the other. Not only is the Republican platform strong and clear and unified, but no party has ever presented two candidates whose careers, both in speech and in action, so fully embody the principles of the party and the platform. For where could you find two men more fully in accord with the party history and platform, of two men either of whom would be a better example of a progressive-conservative than Calvin Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes

I am not one of those who believe that the Presidential term of office should be lengthened. Because while a presidential election causes excitement and some uncertainty and confusion in business, it also causes a general consideration by millions of voters of the underlying principles of our government, of economics and of the history and principles of the leading parties. Every four years is none too often for a general discussion of these questions so essential to the welfare of the nation and its people.

It was this nation-wide debate which convinced the people in the Hayes campaign in '76 that they wanted honest money instead of dishonest paper inflation; and again in the McKinley campaign of '96 that they wanted an honest gold standard instead of a debased silver Bryanised currency.

So I offer no apology for having recalled to your memory some of the outstanding and familiar facts of Republican party history and the fundamental basis and doctrines of the party.

Principal Questions

I shall discuss briefly, and as they especially affect our own state, some of the principal questions which are raised in the platforms and have been referred to by the candidates. But, at the beginning, the discussion is made difficult because the so-called issues raised by the Democratic platform and candidates are shadows and realities.

Take the plank in the Democratic platform on Issues: It is there stated—"Dishonesty, discrimination, extravagance and inefficiency exist in government." Nothing human is perfect, but the American people are not going to criticise severly an administration which has reduced the number of federal employees by 100,000; has, in three years, reduced the public debt by nearly three billions of dollars; and has reduced federal taxation by about two billions per year, or six millions per day. Has anyone ever heard of any Democratic administration, national, state or municipal, which produced such results? I have received from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue some striking figures which show what great interest Connecticut has in federal economy and taxation. The figures I quote are in even millions, being in all cases the even figure nearest the actual amount.

In the fiscal year of 1917, i. e., the year ending June 30, 1917 the total of all United States taxes paid by the citizens of Connecticut, including income, corporation, and miscellaneous was about six millions of dollars. Then we entered the war and the taxes collected from Connecticut rose as follows; 1918, 74 millions; 1919, 80 millions; 1920, 107 millions; 1921, 72 millions. Note that Connecticut paid some 72 millions of United States taxes two years after the close of the war, during a Democratic administration.

The Budget System

Now what happened in the first year of Republican rule? A budget system was adopted, expenditures and taxes were cut, and as a result Connecticut's United States tax bill was cut in 1922 from 72 millions to 50 millions, a saving in one year of 22 millions, one and a half times the entire state debt. The next year, 1923, the amount collected from Connecticut was 35 millions, another saving of 15 millions in a year, and in 1924 the amount, owing to increased business with no increase in taxes was 37 millions. So compared with the last year of Democratic rule, the state of Connecticut in the three years of Republican rule has saved 89 millions in taxes. Under the Republican tax bill just passed, the state by reduced taxes will probably save some ten millions more per annum.

The tremendous importance of the economy and efficiency which President Coolidge is continually enforcing is shown by the fact that the total United States taxes paid by Connecticu in the seven years ending June 30, 1924 amounted to over 454 millions of dollars.

Consider what a drain this has been on the industry and the capital of this state and then decide whether President Coolidge was right when he said in his speech of acceptance—"I want them to have the rewards of their industry."

Saving to Connecticut

Now if the present saving to Connecticut, amounting every year to more than its entire state debt, and if the determination of the president to enforce more and more economy are proofs of the extravagance and inefficiency mentioned in the Democratic platform, I think that Connecticut common sense will approve that particular brand of inefficiency.

Do not these figures prove beyond question that under that modest and able man, that patriotic and brilliant financier, Secretary Mellon, "the finances of this nation have been managed with a genius and a success unmatched since the days of Hamilton."

As to the other so-called issues in the Democratic platform—"The burdens of taxation are unbearable." These burdens, continued after the war by the Democrats, are being rapidly removed by Republican economy.

"Distress in agriculture." This is being relieved by financial aid furnished by Republican legislation and more especially by the laws of nature producing favorable crops and high prices for farm products.

We Republicans do not claim credit for the laws of nature, but by our legislation we protect our citizens so that they get prompt and sure advantage from our natural resources and the operation of natural laws upon them.

Cost of Living

Other issues stated are:

High cost of living: Slowing down of industry, tariff.

As a matter of fact the cost of living has been going down steadily since the close of the war and will continue to go down as the world recovers from war's destruction. At the present time the differential in favor of wages as compared to cost of living is greater than ever before, and we all rejoice in that fact.

As to slowing down of industry, when the present Republican administration took office it found five millions unemployed. Under wise management of public finance, the railroads were rehabilitated, business confidence restored, unemployment disappeared, and, as usual, the Republican administration ushered in a period of prosperity. The slight hesitation in business which has been apparent this year, due to European conditions, is disappearing in consequence of the successful work of the Dawes commission.

Coming down to the last planks of the Democratic platform which I shall discuss at this time, those relating to the tariff. I should say that these planks are a credit and a tribute to the democratic party emblem. That party still clings to its bourbon characteristics. You will remember the definition of a Bourbon as "one who never forgets, and never learns." The democratic party never forgets, its founders, the free trade planters of the south, and never has learned that the experience of three generations has knocked their free trade theories into the cocked hat.

So their latest platform says—"The Fordney-McCumber Tariff act is the most unjust, unscientific and dishonest tariff tax measure ever enacted in our history." "It is class legislation which defrauds all the people for the benefit of a few; it penalizes agriculture . . . . . and in the long run does not benefit the very interests for which it was enacted."

In placing the paragraph "in adjusting the tariff so that the farmer and all other classes can buy and sell in a competitive manufacturers m[illegible]"

I have already suggested that parts of the democratic platform are self-contradictory. In passing I would inquire how a tariff which defrauds all the people for the benefit of a few can be the same tariff which does not benefit the interests for which it is enacted.

But in accordance with republican practice to regard facts rather than words, let us see what has happened under this unjust and dishonest tariff. Let us see whether it has prevented a competitive manufacturers' market and spoiled the export market.

Manufacturers' Market

If a competitive manufacturers market means anything it must mean the competition with American manufacturers of imported goods. What do the figures show? For comparison take the 18 months prior to the date when the present republican tariff went into effect and the 18 months immediately following. During the last 18 months of the democratic free trade tariff the total imports of goods duty free were of the value of about 24 hundred million dollars; while under the unjust and competition destroying republican tariff in its first 18 months the imports of duty free goods, instead of declining, as they should to satisfy democratic theory, rose, to over 3,200 millions.

In the last 18 months of the democratic tariff the imports of dutiable goods were valued at nearly 16 hundred millions, while in the first 18 months of the republican tariff the imports of dutiable goods rose to nearly 25 hundred millions. The total of free and dutiable imports for the two period were respectively 4 thousand millions and 56 hundred millions. So instead of having their competitive market narrowed. American producers had to compete in the first 18 months of republican tariff with 1,600 millions more imports than under the last 18 months of democratic tariff.

But the democrats said that as the republican tariff would restrict imports so also would it kill the export market. Let us get down to brass tacks in that issue. For the last 18 months of the democratic tariff the total exports from the United States were valued at nearly 5,700 millions, while for the first 18 months of Republican tariff the exports were nearly 6,400 millions. So this iniquitous republican tariff produced the following disasters in the first 18 months;

Total imports of value of 5,671 millions, being an increase over the last 18 months of democratic tariff of 41 per cent.

Total duties collected in same periods, 859 millions, an increase of 297 millions, of 53 per cent.

Query: Which was the tariff for revenue?

Total exports were in same periods about 6,400 millions, an increase of 12 per cent.

I need not pursue this issue further. Throughout its history the republican party has demonstrated both in theory and in fact that what is in protecting is its home market and its own people. When American manufacturers, mechanics, farmers and merchants are busy and prosperous they create not only the best home market in the world, but the best world market, thus benefitting both import and export trade.

The democratic donkey seems not to be capable of grasping these facts proved by long experience, and so he continues year after year to write in his platform the same fallacies he learned from his masters, the southern planters, years and years ago. But the people of Connecticut are too wise to be fooled by any bunk or bombast given out by the donkey. Even if he has ornamented himself with an attractive head, his other end looks much as usual, plain but dangerous.

I have began by calling your attention to national affairs because they are, in a presidential year, foremost in the minds of most citizens and because the national government has a very direct influence on all the constituencies represented by the delegates to this convention.

State Affairs

But I do not forget that the most important duties of this convention relate to our state.

While not so spectacular, the government of states and municipalities affects the average man more directly and in some respects more fundamentally than the federal government. Because the states and towns and cities have to do with his personal and family and social activities and relations; public health, education, highways, hospital, police protection, dependent children, it is quite evident that the happiness and prosperity of any community will depend largely on how wisely these and similar subjects are handled by the state.

In no boastful spirit, but in a spirit thankful to its intelligent citizens, and especially to the patriotic and public spirited men who from time to time have had charge of the government of this state. I say that no state has provided better conditions for the healthy, happy and prosperous life of its citizens. These fortunate and satisfactory results have been due to the high grade of Connecticut citizenship, to the prevalence of sound education, to individual industry and thrift, and last, but not least, to a stability in its constitution and government which have proved so well adapted to our habits and conditions. Connecticut has continued to be what its founders intended it to be, a representative republic. The state has adapted itself to changing conditions, to an increasing population and a more complicated civilization. It has been truly progressive and yet by reason of its conservatism, has taken few if any false steps.

Legislative Appropriations

If I may take a moment to read a partial list of some of the objects for which the last legislature made appropriations it will be seen how varied and beneficent are the state's activities.

The present legislature appropriated for the fiscal period from July 1, 1923 to June 30, 1925 that is, for two years the following, among other appropriations, stated in the nearest thousand;

For education, in addition to the appropriations made by the towns and cities, which total approximately 18 millions per annum, the state appropriation for the current two year period is $5,000,000.

For highways over $4,000,000, in addition to which the highway department has received during the year just ended from the fees of the Motor Vehicle department and the gasoline tax over $6,000,000, and doubtless will receive as much next year, making available for highway construction for two years over $16,000,000 Dairy and Food Commissioner.

Commissioner on Domestic Animals	$100,000
Labor and Factory Inspectors Dept.	317,000
Workmen's Compensation Commissioner	152,000
Teachers Retirement Board	96,000
Public Welfare Dept.
Adults and Children	242,000
Widows aid	182,000
State hospitals	760,000
State Aid to town hospitals	3,000,000
School for Boys	700,000
School for Girls	330,000
State Department of Health	250,000
Mansfield State Training School for Defectives	355,000
State Farm for Women	685,000
	200,000

And a number of other appropriations.

It is an easy matter to find worthy objects for the care of the state and easy to make appropriations for them, but the difficulty comes in paying bills. There had been democratic administrations for four years prior to Governor Holcomb's inauguration in 1915. The net debt of the state in that fiscal year was nearly 12 millions of dollars. Under Governor Holcomb's administration republican legislatures revised the taxes so wisely that in three years the sinking fund equalled the funded debt, so the state was practically free of debt. Then came the war with its enormous federal taxes and increased state expense, but notwithstanding these extraordinary expenses the state finances have been so wisely managed that the state now has a nominal net debt of only a million and a half, but in fact the present securities in the sinking fund will take care of the funded debt as it matures, so Connecticut after the strain of the greatest war in history is once more practically free of debt.

As one pleasing result of this fact, the present legislature was justified in remitting the heretofore customary annual sinkink fund tax of $500,000. on the towns. As this amount came largely from the land taxes, it relieves to an appreciable extent a large number of farmers and small house holders.

Scientific System of Taxation

And these favorable results have been accomplished without distressing taxes on any class or industry, so it may be said fairly that Connecticut has an adequate and scientific system of taxation.

Owing to protection given to home industries and workers by republican federal legislation and economical and efficient republican state government, the wage earners and people of small means have prospered as never before.

On October 1, 1923 the deposits in the savings banks of the state amounted to over 457 millions of dollars, these huge deposits belonging to about one million depositors. These deposits had increased in one year by the amount of 34 millions of dollars, and I am informed that even with the slowing down of business during 1924 savings bank deposits will show a great increase in the current year. You will note also that these million depositors, even allowing for duplication, represent a large proportion of the population of the state. So my assertion is justified that, in this state at least, nearly all wage earners are also capitalists.

Nothing more needs to be said to show that in the affairs of the state of Connecticut the republican party has administered its trust in the same spirit as in national affairs; that is with due regard to the constitution and in the interest and to the advantage of all its inhabitants. I have too much faith in the good judgment of our people to believe that they will transfer the management of their public affairs from the party which has proved itself faithful and efficient, to one which may make fair promises but whose past performances cast doubt on their fulfilment.

I have refrained from comment on the so-called third party, because I hope that in this part of the country such comment is superfluous. If any considerable proportion of the electorate of New England is prepared even to lean toward socialism, the abolition of private property and destruction of the constitution and of personal liberty then I miss my guess.

For all these things are involved in the La Follette platform.

The Lafollette Platform

What but socialism is public ownership and operation of railroads, mines and forests?

What but the abolition of private property is the proposal to control the accumulation of property through taxation and regulation? What but the abolition of the constitution is the proposal to permit congress to override the Supreme Court? And when congress can override the Supreme Court personal liberty is gone, security of personal property is gone, and the rights of the states are gone.

The constitution of the United States and of the states were adopted, not to protect the strong, but to protect the weak; and that is precisely what they have done and are doing today.

The radical La Follette platform is full of other absurdities such as proposals to increase the wages of railway labor and at the same time decrease freight rates.

But the crowning absurdity of the whole movement is the general claim that it is to enable the people to govern themselves. As a basis for this popular government LaFollette nominated himself, writes his own platform, selects his running mate and makes as a test for all adherents whether or not they will take orders from LaFollette. This is quite in accord with His record in Wisconsin. Here is popular government with a vengeance. I think the people of the United States will recognize Lenin and Trotsky even if they call themselves by some other name hoping they will smell sweeter.

I have said nothing on what the democrats set out to make their great issue and to which Mr. Davis often refers; namely, honesty in administration, and I do not propose to dignify that shadow by treating it like something real. Everyone who has had any connection with life knows that at some time every business concern and every person will have some employe, or friend or connection who will go wrong. That does not simply imply that the concern or the family involved is corrupt or dishonest, but it implies merely that the particular case must be dealt with according to circumstances and the law. That is just what has happened in Washington, and the case or cases are being dealt with according to law. The president's speech of acceptance spiked that democratic gun, or perhaps I had better say broke that pop gun. It will take even a more silver-tongued orator than Mr. Davis, and more than a red denouncer like LaFollette to persuade anyone to associate even a dishonest though with men like Coolidge, Dawes, Hughes, Mellon, Hoover or any of their associates.

Evils of Centralization

I should have liked, had time permitted, to refer to the tendency, accentuated by the war, to centralize government more and more in Washington. But I can only on this occasion beg of you, and, through you, the state to consider well before surrendering or even sharing with the federal government control of personal, family and social matters, such as education, control of children, etc. There is no innate wisdom in a Washington bureau, or bureau clerk, and it is not possible that under the wooden rules of a bureau the social affairs of a state or community will be as carefully or wisely managed as they will by the community immediately affected.

The more one sees of Washington bureaus, the more one favors home rule in home matters.

I have now delegates and fellow republicans, referred to some of the important and basic issues raised in this campaign, both in nation and state. I am certain that when you come to perform the important duties committed to you, you will act in accordances with accepted republican principles and in the interest of the party and the people as a whole.

In closing I cannot do better than quote the final paragraph of President Coolidge's speech of acceptance:

"We are likely to hear a great deal of discussion about liberal and progressive action. It is well for the country to have liberality in thought and progress in action, but its greatest asset is common sense. In the commonplace things of life lies the strength of the nation. It is not in brilliant conceptions and strokes of genius that we shall find the chief reliance of our country, but in the home, in the school and in religion. America will continue to defend these shrines. Every evil force that seeks to desecrate or destroy them will find that a Higher Power has endowed the people with an inherent spirit of resistance. The people know the difference between pretense and reality. They want to be told the truth. They want to be trusted. They want a chance to work out their own material and spiritual salvation. The people want a government of common sense."

I repeat that I rejoice in the conservative progressive population of Connecticut, and am resulting history, and I rejoice in the firm belief that these same intelligent and sturdy people will continue to "prove all things but hold fast to that which is good," and further that the Higher Power which brought hither our ancestors and planted this colony will sustain and defent their successors.

PRIZES FOR SECURING NEW ENGLAND BOOSTERS.

The million "New Members Committee, for New England Week, of which John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, is chairman, Tuesday started the snowball rolling which it is hoped will soon turn into a perfect avalanche of prizes and produce a "million NEWS in 10 days."

The committee offers eight prizes each of one hundred dollars worth of New England made goods to the New England men, women, boys and girls who will bring in the most new members for the order of New England Workers before the last day of Nw England Week (September 20.)

These prizes will be in the shape of eight orders for one hundred dollars worth of New England Goods to be selected by the prize winners in their local stores.

The contest will be divided up as follows:

1st—Four prizes each of $100 worth of New England products to the man, woman, boy under eighteen, and girl under eighteen, respectively, who secure the most "NEW" members in N. E. towns of over 2,000 inhabitants.

2nd—Four prizes each of $100 worth of New England products to the man, woman, boy under eighteen, and girl under eighteen, respectively, who secure the most "NEW" members in the New England towns of less than 2,000 inhabitants.

3rd—Four second prizes each of $25 worth of New England products for the man, woman, boy under 18, and girl under eighteen, respectively, who obtain the second greatest number of "NEW" members in New England towns of over 2,000 inhabitants.

4th—Four second prizes each of $25 worth of New England products for the man, woman, boy under eighteen, and girl under 18, respectively, who are, Elizabeth and Catherine White, obtain the second greatest number of "NEW" members in New England towns of less than 2,000 inhabitants.

All contestants must themselves be members of the New England Workers.

This way of handling the initation fees was adopted to eliminate all bookkeeping, all "credit" and all red tape, and to reduce the expense of organization to almost nothing. It simplifies the whole thing for everybody, and the Committee feels strongly that the money raised should go into actual result—getting work for New England rather than into heavy "organization" expenses.

The Million New Members Committee Monday sent letters to all New England Manufacturers suggesting that they offer prizes of New England products to their own employes who sign up the most of their fellow employees as "NEWS" and letters suggesting prize offers of New England products by retailers to their own store employees who obtain the most "NEW" members were also sent out. In the same way the Electric Light and Gas companies, and Street Railways were written. Moreover the local Chamber of Commerce were requested to suggest to their manufacturers and retailer members that prizes of New England products be offered for the best showing made in getting "NEW" members in each town. In addition to all these suggestions the committee is now working to secure if possible, a grand capital prize of a complete New England Home, to be awarded to the person, whether man, woman, boy or girl who secures more "NEW" members than any other contestant. It is also felt that second, third and several other capital prizes may be offered by New England firms who want to help the New England week movement, and at the same time appreciate the publicity their offer would give.

The following quotations from the "NEW" Constitution sum up in a nut shell the aims and organization of the order.

All funds raised through membership dues in the order of New England Workers shall be expended only for organization and operating expenses of the order, and for the expenses of conducting New England Week.

"Any sum remaining shall constitute a fund to be used for establishing a permanent organization for uniting New England interests, for promoting prosperity in New England, and for disseminating in and outside of New England a better knowledge of New England and its products.

"This permanent organization for advancing New England interests shall be managed by a Board of Directors composed of the Governors of the six New England states, and an equal number of delegates from each state representing respectively the manufacturing, labor, distributors, agricultural, and woman's club interests and the church."

It is said that over a million Californians have joined an organization for boosting their state. If New Englanders respond as expected, perhaps the "NEWS" will be nearer two million strong before the end of New England Week." Application blanks can be secured at Room 412, New Chamber of Commerce Building, Boston.

SMOOTH PERFORMANCE

In keeping with the policy of constant improvement, effective measures have been taken to minimize vibration. Applied to the body, engine, clutch, brakes, and other vital units, these refinements add immeasurably to the comfort of travel over boulevards and country roads.

The effect is so pronounced, in fact, that it is entirely fitting to classify smooth performance as one of the outstanding attributes of Dodge Brothers Motor Car.

YOUNG THIEVES IN NEW LONDON CONFESS TO VARIOUS STORE BREAKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 9.—As a result of two burglaries Sunday when the stores of the Alling Rubber Company, 162 State street and the Humphrey-Cornell company, Sparyard street, were entered and considerable plunder taken, a dozen or more youths were arrested late yesterday afternoon and today. Three of the youths, all under 16 years were sent to the State Reform school at Meriden this morning by Judge S. Victor Prince. The boys committed admitted their part in the burglaries as well as to having entered other stores recently. The other boys, whose ages range from nine to fifteen have also admitted entrance to the Alling Rubber company's store and Humphrey Cornell store, or else figuring in a division of the plunder obtained from the rubber company.

The lads admit having entered the Alling store during Sunday afternoon. While some of them searched the place for sporting goods, others maintained a watch from the rear. When the plunder was gathered together it was taken to the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad and divided. This morning when one of the youths became aware that the police were seeking him he took a football that he had in his possession and a part of the loot and placing a stone in it, dropped it into the Thames river. During the day sporting goods taken from the store and valued at $76 were returned to the owners.

Late this afternoon, Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith arrested three more youths, charged with figuring in the two breaks of Sunday, also the breaks at the Lyon & Ewald store, State street and the Eaton & Wilson store, Bank street, a fortnight ago. A few jackknives were taken from the last named store and a sum of money and several cheap watches comprised the plunder obtained at the Lyon & Ewald store. The boys have confessed to being implicated in all the breaks and the entire amount of plunder they had in their possession has been recovered. The youths, like the others already in custody, will be given a hearing in the juvenile court later in the week.

Pete Peterson is in the Franklin street jail where he will have to stay about four months, unless he can raise the money to pay a fine of $100 and the costs of his trial, imposed in the police court today for operating an automobile while intoxicated. Peterson was in the Fort Neck section and in coming under the railroad tracks at Hamilton street ran smack into a cement support that sustains the tracks and keeps the dirt embankment in place. He said he didn't see the bridge notwithstanding there was no physical object to obstruct his vision. He was undoubtedly right in that statement but the next assertion that he made to the effect that he did not drink anything that might intoxicate him yesterday was not accepted by the court as the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Peterson said he drank something the day before, but he did not see how that could have affected him yesterday. The court couldn't see how it could either. Peterson is a painter. In previous infractions of the automobile laws of the city and the state Mr. Peterson has been able to adjust matters with the court, but today he failed in that respect. The conviction of Peterson today carries with it the revocation of the license to operate a car.

William Lyster of Groton and Nishran Kanzanjian, while motoring over the Thames river bridge in automobiles Labor day collided. They told the circumstances in the police court today when Lyster was charged with a violation of the laws in failing to stop and ascertain what damage had been done in a collision in which he was concerned. State Policeman Stanton was called on to get Lyster into court and this he did. It was not apparent that Lyster desired to escape responsibility and he was declared to be not guilty.

William Metzermacher was fined $10 in the police court this morning for intoxication. He has been before the court many times of late for failure to support his wife. Monday he was to have appeared, but the probation officer reported for him that he was doing well and was paying something toward the support of his wife, but a continuance was granted to ascertain whether he was to weary not in well doing. Tuesday he had become very tired. Indeed he was drunk. Today the judgment was suspended a year, so that if the accused is wise he will devote his attention to painting and hanging wall paper and just skip all opportunities to "take something."

The new traffic signal, which has been erected at the corner of State and Bank streets, is being used day and night to regulate vehicular and pedestrian traffic at this important point, if it is decided that the signal is a success several will be purchased for installation at important traffic centers. The signal is electrically operated by lighted, colored, lettered signs, whereby motorists and pedestrians can read the orders under which they are to proceed. Twenty-one orders are at the command of the traffic officer through manipulation of four levers at the curb, either from an elevated position or at any point best adapted for observance purposes. At and before the change of each signal order, a bell rings and a yellow caution light is displayed. The blue lettered lights reading walk, show only when the vehicular traffic is such that no automobile shall cross a walk that is parallel to a displayed walk sign. The walk sign appears and disappears automatically when it is safe or unsafe to cross the walks. Two motions of the lever give plain stop in red letters, and go in green and vice versa, with the blue walk signs showing, when safe to walk, the yellow caution and the bell operating in unison. When a green signal is set for go straight on cross the street, the signals would be red on the main street, with blue walk signs showing, indicating safety for pedestrians. But, whenever the officer changed the green go straight traffic, to go right or go left, the walk sign would disappear on the side facing the crosswalk that the car was going to cross the bell and yellow caution light having given warning that the signal was going to change.

An automobile owned by W. C. Bushnell of Waterford, was stolen from in front of the state armory, Colt street, this evening. The police of Norwich and the state police barracks at Groton and Centerbrook were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen machine. Bushnell drove the car to the armory about 8 o'clock and when he returned to drive away, about 20 minutes later he discovered that the automobile had been stolen during his absence.

Apparently having read much of the numerous robberies that have occurred, through employes of stores being held up in the larger cities, Louis Fisher, manager of the A. & P. store, 395 Williams street, suspected that he was marked for a hold up this afternoon for he locked the suspected hold up man in the store and then notified the police. When the police arrived it was quickly determined that Fisher's imagination had gotten the better of his judgment for there had been no attempt at a hold-up or anything resembling one.

Daniel P. Snow, Uncasville went to the store to make purchases and as he inspected some canned goods in the rear of the place Fisher observed William Taylor on the sidewalk waiting for a trolley car, but Fisher believed him an accomplice of Snow. When Fisher was positive that Snow was in the place to effect a robbery the store manager rushed from behind the counter and slamming the front door and made Snow a prisoner. Fisher then called to Taylor as he ran by the former, "I fooled you, didn't I?" Continuing to a neighboring store Fisher informed the police that he had a hold-up man in the store and asked for assistance. Motorcycle Officer William Babcock and Station House Keeper Frank Corcoran speeded to the store in the police automobile and it was then revealed that Fisher's supposition was entirely the result of imagination.

Capt. Edward R. Geer of this city, one of the veterans masters of steamers of the New England Navigation Company has ended his connection with the line. He has a salvage suit against the company, which is the cause of the severed relations. At the time of the collision between the line steamer Boston and the tanker Swift Arrow in Long Island Sound, the Boston was in danger of sinking but the steamer Plymouth, of which Capt. Geer was master, went to her assistance and the claim is that the Plymouth saved the Boston and finally got the craft into Newport harbor and upon the mudflats where she was saved. There she could not since and she has since been rescued and her valuable hull and cargo saved. The Boston was carrying passengers at the time and the lives of these it is represented were saved also. The Boston was insured and the claim of the Plymouth and her crew is that they are entitled to the salvage that would have gone to others had they rescued the Boston. The Plymouth sounded her whistles to call other craft of the New England company to the rescue but none of them would respond. Then the Plymouth got lines to the Boston and after long and tedious working managed to keep her afloat till she could be taken into Newport. It is understood that when the claim for salvage was made the officials of the line protested and gave those who sought compensation for their services the option of resigning or withdrawing the salvage claim. Capt. Geer would not abandon the position he had taken for salvage and was discharged, he deciding that such course was the only one by which the company could dispense with his services. He has, it is understood, retained an attorney and the case will come up in Boston in a few days. The Boston was a very valuable ship, so the salvage claim is a large one.

Letters received by James Spellman, local letter carrier, from his brother Edward, who is in Brazil, indicate that the revolution in that country is waning and that a normal condition of affairs is developing. Edward Spellman was at Sao Paulo just before the revolution broke out there. He reports that some 3000 were killed in the civil war that raged, but at that it is assumed from his letters that the situation has been exaggerated in this country.

There are more vacant stores on Bank street than at any time in recent years. There are more stores to be vacant, but that does not alter the situation as not encouraging.

Because of an extraordinary construction of the city charter in reference to elections there is a possibility, but a remote one, that Rosemary O. Anderson has not been elected school visitor and George Haven is not elected a member of the board of selectmen. Director of Law Frank L. McGuire will give an opinion on the matter tomorrow.

Y., the past week. The feat was accomplished by Judge Steers' son, Clinton L. Steers. Dropping a slip noose over the head of the snake and choking it. The snake meantime coiled itself around Mr. Steer's arm, but relaxed as the noose tightened. Mr. Steers who has made some study of reptiles, after the snake was pronounced dead, understood the manner of skinning the snake, which measured, six feet in length; the skin, is being prepared, to be made into a belt for Judge Steers' granddaughter. CALVIN—FATHER AND SON

We listened to the burdened air,
And some of us were bowed in prayer;
While people waited, everywhere . . .
Then came the word that cleft the night
As swiftly as a comet's flight;
The boy had lost his gallant fight . . .
The slim young soul had passed the marge
Of worlds we know; the moon's pale targe
We seemed to hear the cry of one—
The age old cry for Absalom:
"My son . . . My son . . ."

The summer night seemed turned to stone;
The men convening breathed a groan;
And all gave way to grief, alone.
We mothers crept to little beds,
And kissed, with anguish, little heads.
Our own hearts stabbed by mother dreads.
While fathers set thier lips, and bent
Before that figure, stern and spent,
And shared a father's sacrament.
They seemed to hear the cry of one—
The age old cry for Absalom:
"My son . . . My son . . ."

A discipline that does not veer
Will help our grieving leader steer
The ship of state—with freight of fear.
We fellow men, by night, may see
Beneath the sky's high heraldry
A figure of supremacy,
And figurehead of boyish mien;
Pure eyed and smiling, straight and clean;
Victorious youth, secure, serene.
We'll seem to hear the cry of one—
The age old cry for Absalom:
"My son . . . My son . . ."

So Youth, forever comes and goes,
And gives to Age the much it knows;
The triumphs, solace, heartache, woes.
Authority—through loss or gain—
Reclothes the man inured to pain,
Who strives—that others may attain . . .
But, as we watch our Helmsman, there,
We'll hear a cry upon the air,
And fall upon our knees in prayer;
For it will be the cry of one—
The age old cry for Absalom:
"My son . . . My son . . ."

—Ruth Mason Rice, in the New York Sun.

Chansons

I.

I have a secret longing
Before the years seem old,
Before bold feet grow timid
Or ardent hearts turn cold,
To go with you aclimbing
Along some wild, lone height,
Whence, gleaming on far breakers,
Stars circle round the night,—
And—there amid the shadows,
Beneath purpled space,
To . . . in . . . ed silence
The count of hours retrace,
Till down's enchanted echoes
Draw silver from the dew
And make the sky and ocean
One living ring of blue!

II.

The lights are on
And the dance is, too—
Oh, the house feels warm
To laughing people
Who through it swarm!
Along with thought,
I watch the wild night
And hear the wind cry
Where white stars die.

—William Struthers in Boston Transcript.

Brooks Greathouse and Earle Lowe drove up to H. B. Miller's restaurant at Spencer, W. Va., in an automobile to get a meal. While there, a bargain was struck and the restaurant with all its equipment was traded for the automobile. Miller took off his apron and rode away in the car while the new owners took charge of the place.

In 1882 M. C. Miller earned his first dollar and carved his initials on the coin before spending it at a circus. Thirteen years later the same dollar returned to him as carfare while a street car conductor. Motion pictures in Germany are enjoying runs of many weeks and the larger ones are being run through successive months, according to a report to the department of commerce from Consul Rudolf E. Schoenfeld, Berlin. Lack of good films and not their appeal to the fans is given as the reason for the long runs. Germany's production of films has been waning steadily since 1921. In 1922 the total output was 1,221,280 meters, or roundly 25 per cent. of the 1331 production. In 1923 the production had dwindled to but 776,788 meters.

The Westerly fire department responded about 3.30 Monday afternoon to a still alarm on Railroad drive. The electrical connection to a gasoline pump is said to have been short circuited and a blaze resulted, at the station of Theodore D. Picord. Chief George E. Egger of the Westerly department and a number of men took the combination pumper to the place but the blaze was extinguished before the arrival of the firemen. Proprietor Mr. Picord remained at a considerable distance from the pump as he feared an explosion.

Officer N. W. Smith of the Rhode Island Prevention of Cruelty of Animals was in Westerly Monday in consultation with chief Thomas E. Brown. A report had been made of the cruel slaughter of a cow the property of Louis Deutch of Stillmanville. Investigation by the authorities showed that near a break in a fence about a neighboring garden, where the cow had strayed into the garden were blood stains. The trail of blood led through a wooden patch toward a dried-up pond hole. At this point a pool of blood showed the cow had apparently laid down before attempting to reach water. It was not far from this place that the carcass of the cow was discovered. The wound found on the cow's flank, caused by the blow from an axe, was found inches deep and six inches long.

The penalty for such an attack is 11 months in jail. The cow was discovered missing when time came for milking by George Williams, who usually did the milking.

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Sept. 9.—Stock prices bounded upward today in what was generally construed as a reflection on Wall street's satisfaction with the Maine election results. Opening gains in the popular industrial and railroad issues ranged from 1 to 4 1-2 points and these were fairly maintained, despite occasional flurries of selling throughout the rest of the session. With a large short interest built up in the perpendicular decline of the last two weeks, technical conditions also were ripe for a rally, which was one of the sharpest since the unexpected declaration of an extra dividend on United States Steel common last fall. Sales in the first half hour approximated one quarter of a million shares, but the market turned dull after the first batch of buying orders had been absorbed, the day's sales aggregating about 850,000 shares.

While the removal of political uncertainties was undoubtedly the principal factor in the advance, other contributing influences were the increased demand for steel products, lower time money rates, the proposed segregation of the coal properties of the Pittsburgh and West Virginia Railroad which is believed to prepare the way for the road's admission into the Van Sweringen family and indications that the government $35,000,000 issue of treasury certificates would be readily absorbed.

Reduction of the quarterly dividend on Chandler shares from $1.50 to 75 cents was one of the principal financial developments of the day. That stock opened three points higher at 38, cancelled its gain in the wave of profit taking and short selling that followed the initial outburst of buying moved up again to 36 1-2 and then fell to 34 1-2, the year's low, following the announcement of the dividend action.

Steady accumulation was noted in the railroad group, particularly among the high grade shares. Lackawanna continued to be the feature, this stock establishing a new high record for the year at 146 3-8 on buying based on the belief that the road will cut a huge mellon, preparatory to being taken into the new Nickel Plate system. Pittsburgh and West Virginia preferred, which is to be retired at 105, touched a new high for the year at the redemption price, up 2 points.

St. Paul issues also were weak at the close on rumors that the road might find it necessary to readjust its capital structure in ordere to complete its refunding operations next year. The common stock declined a point and the preferred 2 5-8 points to 22. An advance of 5 1-4 points in Delaware and Hudson was based on the belief that this road would follow the action of Pittsburgh and West Virginia in segregating its coal properties

Dividend influences were reflected in the movement of several industrial issues. Ommission of the quarterly dividend by the Daniel Boone Woolen Mills was not announced until after the close of the market. Prior to the directors' action the stock touched a record low price at 10 1-2, later closing at 11 1-8, a net loss of 5-8. Fresh selling of American Woolen, which cancelled an early recovery, cropped out in anticipation of this development, which re-directed attention to the depression in the textile industry.

Foreign exchanges staged a vigorous upturn under the leadership of sterling which rallied about three cents to around $4.45 before selling back to $4.44 1-4. French francs also recovered about eight points to about 30 cents on cable dispatches from Paris reporting that J. P. Morgan was ready to renew the $100,000,000 credit to the Bank of France, if required.

Call money ruled at 2 per cent. throughout the day. Time funds were in plentiful supply at rates ranging from 3 3-4 to 3 1-2 per cent. Commercial paper was quiet at 3 1-4 to 3 1-2 per cent.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 9.—Bond prices turned upward today under the leadership of French obligations which responded to cabled reports from Paris that J. P. Morgan & Co., were ready to renew a $100,000,000 credit to the Bank of France, if required. Railroad issues advanced in sympathy with a brisk upturn in shares of the leading carriers.

Both French Republic and municipal issues participated in today's advance on the theory that extension of the Morgan credit would provide a bulwark for protection of the franc, and place France in a favorable position for floating a long term external loan at a later date. Another interesting development in connection with French bonds was the report that a $10,000,000 loan shortly would be arranged for the Paris-Orleans railway.

The forward movement of high grade rail liens was led by Norfolk and Western convertible 6s, which scored a net gain of about two points. Other issues which joined in the advance were Atlantic Coast Line 4s, Union Pacific first 4s, and Reading general 4s. St. Paul railroad bonds moved counter to the general trend, declining with the company's stock issues on reports that the road might readjust its capital structure in order to complete 1925 refunding operations.

An advance of 3 points in the Brooklyn Union Gas 7s of 1932 carried this issue to a new high record at 143. Bonds of the copper, sugar and rubber companies were in good demand.

Bankers have placed privately a $5,000,000 issue of Texas and Pacific-Missouri Pacific Terminal Railroad of New Orleans 5 1-2 per cent. bonds.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 9.—Widespread frost together with correct general belief that the government estimate of corn yield would be sharply reduced gave the corn market today a decided lift. Corn closing prices were strong 1 1-8 to 1 1-2c net higher, December $1.13 7-8 to $1.14. Wheat finished unsettled at 3-8c net decline to 1-4c advance, December $1.27 5-8 to $1.27 3-4 and May $1.34 to $1.34 1-8, oats 1-4c off to 3-8c up, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of a shade.

Broadening of demand for corn was evident throughout the day. Iowa reports of frost were especially effective as a stimulus to buyers and a further incentive came from the fact that the outlook was for additonal frost tonight both in Iowan and in other important states as well. Absence of definite reports of serious damage from last night's frost, however, tended somewhat to check the upward swing of values. After the close too, a disposition was shown to construe the government report as bearish in some respects, the Washington estimate of yield, although much reduced as compared with a month ago, being a good deal larger than unofficial reports had indicated.

Wheat export business here and at the seaboard helped somewhat to offset in the wheat market the influence of heavy deliveries here and preparations for a bearish government report. Frost in Canadian, drought in Argentina and crop damage complaints from France, Germany and Belgium were bullish factors early, but were lost sight of later until it was seen that exporters were taking hold.

In the oats market the prospect of bearish reports from Washington was more or less counterbalanced by corn strength and by frost damage in the Canadian northwest.

Call for provisions lacked volume.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 9.—Curb securities were in general demand in broader and home active trading today, prices of leading issues responding early to spirited buying. Later they reacted somewhat, although a firm undertone prevailed throughout the session.

Pittsburgh and West Virginia rights, admitted to trading today, absorbed attention after the flurry had subsided, moving up from 7, the opening price to a high of 9 1-8 but closing at 8 7-8. Common stock of the Pittsburgh Terminal company on a "when issued" basis, also appearing for the first time, opened at 46, later selling off to 43 1-2. The preferred shares opened at 80, touched 80 1-2 and closed at 80.

Conflicting movements marked the oils, New England Fuel Oil losing 7 1-2 points; Illinois Pipe and Northern Pipe 3 each on small turnovers, and South Penn Oil 5. In contrast to these declines Standard Oil of Kentucky, Buckeye Pipe, Vacuum and Penn-Mex Fuel gained from 1 1-2 to 2 points.

Radio shares were firm, strength of Jones Radio being the feature of the group. Gillette Razor stood out in the industrials with a gain of two points. Grand Stores moved up 2 1-2. A four point advance by American Power and Light on small sales led the utility group.

AN INDUSTRIAL TONIC

Competition invites comparison which in turn creates all true values. The value of woolen and worsted fabrics can best be determined by comparison. Through competition the industry is stimulated, standards are elevated and the consumer receives greater and greater values for his clothing dollars.

NORWICH TOWN

A letter postmarked Salem, Oregon, under date of August 31st, to Norwich Town friends, from Mrs. Bert Smith, with other members of her family and a party of friends, en route to California by automobile, narrates some wonderful sights.

Mrs. Smith states that the last half of the journey has really been more enjoyable than the first half; and she expressed the wish that her friends might some time be privileged to observe all the sights that she and her party have seen.

The tourists were on the Old Oregon Trail for about a week, before reaching Salem, which is on the Pacific Highway, nice paved roads. Previously a visit was made to the Continental Divide at Ames Mountain, 8,835 feet above the sea level. In the distance the tourists saw Pike's Peak and other mountains covered with snow. Although the tourists traveled about a thousand miles out of their way to avoid the desert, as conditions would be terrible, because of no rain, for such a long time; yet they went through the Red desert, eight miles of deep red sand.

"In Wyoming, there is nothing worthy of mention," Mrs. Smith writes. "But there sure are lots of bad roads and much land wasted. I always supposed Wyoming was a sheep state, but it is not nearly as much so as Idaho.

In Ogden, Utah, we had some of the finest drinking water ever before tasted.

The Oregan Trail was mostly paved from Dalles, Oregon, through. There is much repairing being done to the roads, and I think in about 25 years the Lincoln Highway will be good for something; as it is now, it is good for nothing.

We crossed the Rocky mountains and Blue Mountains, saw the monument that President Harding unveiled a year ago last June. It is called the "Top of the Blue Mountains." Such mountains as we have climbed. On Emigrant mountain about 4,000 feet above we could look down and see acres of wheat fields. Have seen quite a few Indians, also saw where they used to fish years ago, when the emigrants were going west.

"We passed over the highest foot and wagon bridge at Tuni Falls in North America. Such wonderful canyons as we have seen, the Devil's Slide and the Devil's Gate.

The day the letter was written the tourists passed through five tunnels and followed the beautiful Columbia river which divides Oregon and the state of Washington, which can be see all along this part of the route.

The mountainous air, up in the pines, is most refreshing.

The falls we saw today fall a distance fo 656 feet, a gorgeous sight, although it makes one rather nervous to look down so many hundred feet.

We should reach California by the middle of the week. Don't know whether we will get in easy or not. In Oregon we were obliged to register, and in coming from Idaho into Oregan, had to stop and have our bedding, blankets, etc., shaken on account of quarantine, through fear of a germ that comes in alfalfa.

"We have seen in Pocatelle, where Kraft cheese is made, also have seen the saimon canning factory. Some of the days have been very warm, but night cool.

"My one regret is that I have not learned to drive, she writes, so that I could relieve Bert at the wheel, although he has stood the trip fine and all in the party have kept well."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS SHOW GREATEST INCREASE FOR TWELVE YEARS

As the public schools of the town open this year they are showing an increase of 203 pupils over last year, which is the largest increase recorded at the opening of school in twelve years. The registration figures are 4,227. Last year the total was 4,024 as the schools opened for the year.

The increased number of pupils has required the school authorities to open four new rooms—one at Elizabeth street, one at Long Society, one at the Falls and one at the Bridge school, East Side.

The largest increase is at Elizabeth street where there are 826 pupils, which is 91 more than last year. This is now the largest school in the system and Greeneville comes next with 609 pupils, which is an increase of 14 over last year. Broadway has 490, which is 14 more than a year ago. Long Society shows an increase of 32 over last year, which is largely due to the establishment of fifth and sixth grades there which helps to relieve the crowded conditions at the Greeneville school. The first grade at Greeneville is on half time.

At the Bridge school, the Baptist chapel is being used for the kindergarten and the old kindergarten room is in use for the fifth grade.

Crowded conditions continue at the schools at Norwich Town. The two-room school building at Yantic has 80 pupils, which is too many, according to all modern standard, and there has been no place found for a kindergarten at Norwich Town and there is no room in the school buildings for this grade.

The school registration for this year and last are shown as follows, bracketed numbers indicating grades in the same room:

POQUYOGH BEACH HAD HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL SEASON

As the summer season at Poquyogh, Waterford, is coming to a close, the Poquyogh Improvement Association, Inc., reviews with much satisfaction its first year under the new name for the beach. However new the name may seem to modern ears, it is still an old name for it is the old Indian name by which the beach was known 300 years ago, signifying a place where the quahaug, or round clam, was abundant.

At the last annual meeting of the association the officers elected were Dr. Frank E. Wilson, president; Frank H. Merrill, vice president; Miss Marion Pickey, secretary; Sidney H. Miner, treasurer. Permanent residents have been taking an additional interest in the affairs of the beach this summer as is indicated by Dr. Wilson's acceptance of the presidency.

The beach activities have been marked by unusual interest and success this season, these including beach day with an unprecedented large entry list for the events; observance of the Fourth of July; the community fireworks, and the beach dance which was one of the finest ever. The financial side of the season has gone along in an equally satisfactory manner and the treasurer closed his accounts for the year with a balance of over $500 on hand after all bills had been paid.

The association officers are already considering plans for next season, one of which will be to provide new rafts which will be for the exclusive use of members of the association.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY USED CAR EXCHANGE

At the annual meeting of the Norwich Used Car Exchange, Inc., held Tuesday morning at the exchange garage on Lafayette street the officers were re-elected as follows for the coming year:

President, Julian L. Williams; vice president, E. B. Patterson, New London; treasurer, William R. Frisbie; secretary, Frank Rinella.

Nicholas Doyle who for several weeks has been acting manager was appointed permanent manager. A contract for the installation of a heating plant was awarded to P. J. McMahon.

The various committees submitted reports showing that the exchange is meeting with success and is being conducted on a real business basis.

More School Children Here

The Norwich advantage in population over New London is reflected in the registration in the public schools of the two towns. Norwich has 4,227 pupils registered this year and New London, 4,005.

Both fo the little hostesses received many pretty gifts from their friends and relatives. Among those present were Mrs. Joseph Boiselle and daughter Marion; Mrs. Harry Copeland and son, Clifton Busch; Miss Minnie Lamb; Miss Vera Talley, Mrs. George Main, Miss Florence V. Comptroller—Frederick M. Salmon of Westport.

Presidential electors—Charles F. Brooker, Ansonia; Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins of Norfolk; Miss Annie E. Jennings of Fairfield, Hilton C. Brooks of Chester, Col. Francis Maxwell of Rockville, Col. Louis R. Cheney of Hartford, Frederick W. Mercer of New London.

The few minutes required to make the choice for state officers was quite in contrast with the forecast, for many of the delegates had looked forward to a contest on the floor over the Lieutenant governorship and over treasurer in spite of well founded belief that both Mr. Trumbull and Mr. Rogers had enough delegates to win. Ex-Major John Buckley, who had been sponsor for the candidacy of Isaac M. Wadhams for second place, seconded Mr. Trumbull's name, and so did the same for Mr. Rogers and the nominations were made practically by acclamation. Mr. Wadhams' name was not mentioned for second place on the ticket and Senator John A. Brooks of Torrington eliminated himself from the treasurership contest in saying that Mr. Wadhams would not care to even be named.

The seven presidential electors' names were put forward by counties and Wadhams alone does not have one, nor is this county represented on the state ticket.

The platform was of some length and dealt both with national and state issues.

The opponents of an anti-Ku Klux Klan plank before the resolutions committee did not carry their desire to the convention floor and the platform as immediately adopted without debate.

The energy of the convention was expended in altering a rule by which candidates in district convention may be spoken and the plan adopted finally was to have the chairman and vice chairman of a town committee vote in district convention in case the delegates cannot agree. The debate was so protracted and lively on this matter that it was evident the delegates were interested in a change rather than to dispose of it by tabling the committee's report or sending the matter to the state committee to be acted upon by that body and its conclusions reported back to the next convention. It was stated that several deadlocks in district conventions are in sight and delegates to them were anxious to have the state convention provide a way out less such contests deny party representation through failure to make nomination for senator.

The convention was enthusiastic in its reception of the nominees and Col. Bingham took the platform and made his acceptance speech.

We pledge our hearty support to its standard bearers. President Coolidge is close to the character and traditions of those who took their lives in their hands when they signed the declaration of independence. His has been a life of courageous living and straight thinking. He has been a public servant for more than a quarter of a century. In all that time he has been faithful to the trust, he is an ideal leader, wise, patient, just and true.

In General Charles Gates Dawes he has a reliable and appropriate running mate, a man who has been conspicuous for his honesty, courage, and farseeing statesmanship.

The safety of our institutions depends on a division of powers. Laws should be made by the representatives of the people and not by bureau chiefs or other officials whom the people have not elected and over whom they have only a remote control. Laws should be administered by executives chosen by the people and responsible to them. Offenders against these laws should be tried promptly and justly by properly constituted courts where the rights of the individual to be tried by due process of law will be faithfully observed by impartial judges, selected for their judicial ability. We believe it is by keeping the legislative, executive and judicial power in separate hands that we may best preserve our liberties.

We are in favor of an amendment to the constitution of the United States providing that future constitutional amendment proposed by congress to the several states should be ultimately submitted to the electors of the state for ratification.

We believe that the maintenance of the authority of the states over matters purely local is essential to the preservation of our institutions.

We deplore the modern tencency towards bureaucracy in government as being contrary to the fundamental principles of our constitution.

The financial record of Connecticut since the republican party assumed control in 1915 invites the closest scrutiny. The democrats bequeathed to the administration of Governor Holcomb in 1915 a net debt of approximately $12,000,000. In the whole history of the state this was the high tide of Connecticut's indebtedness. This debt has been reduced under republican management until now the Connecticut sinking fund is unable to pay off all outstanding obligations of the state at their maturities. All this has been done with a constantly growing necessity for increased expenditures for the state's welfare and progress. The financial structure of the state is sound. No other state is in stronger financial position. We believe that taxes should be reduced as much as prudence will permit and the expenditures must be reduced accordingly. We believe in providing for the necessities of state government including the proper care of those who through ill health or misfortune have a right to our consideration. Nevertheless we believe that high taxes burden everybody; they diminish industry, restrict commerce and make agriculture unprofitable.

In accordance with this belief the republican general assembly of 1923 made a reduction of 25 per cent. in the state tax on towns. This acts as a direct relief of the tax burden on all property owners. Notwithstanding economic conditions with increased expenditure brought about by the advent of the war Conecticut by reason of its sound financial policy was enabled to carry on its activities without materially altering its physical power. The republican legislation creating a soldier's fund of $2,500,000 the interest and income of which is paid to the soldier of the world war and their dependents who may be in need, has met with the approval of all. The soldiers approve it and it sounds legislation.

Connecticut has better roads today than any other state in America in proportion to its size. The development of Connecticut highways under republican administration has been accomplished by paying the cost with current income and not by raising bond issues or creating deficits.

The creation and development of the present motor vehicle department is one of the accomplishments of republican administration of which we are proud. Recent republican welfare legislation commends itself to the electors of the state. Notable in this department of the state's activities is the law extending aid to worthy widows having dependent children, the juvenile court law, the child legislation and the laws relating to child labor.

We pledge ourselves to a revision of the medical practice act of the state, to the end that the health of the people shall be protected insofar as this may be done through legislative action.

BRITAIN FOR SAFEGUARDS TO PROMOTE DISARMAMENT

Geneva, Sept. 10 (By th A. P.)—Great Britain stands by the league covenant, which provides for military and naval assistance by all the signatories to preserve peace. This declaration was made tonight by Lord Parmoor representing the British government, after the disarmament.

Lord Parmoor affirmed that Great Britain meant what she said, when through the lips of her prime minister, Ramsay MacDonald she declared her readiness to submit all disputes to arbitration. He added that the words "add disputes" included those usually characterized as questions affecting vital interests and national honor.

Lord Parmoor qualified his statement, however, by remarking that the terms "vital interests" and "national honor" were exceedingly vague, but went on to say that a way must be found to handle every possible cause of conflicts between nations.

The British statesman contended that, after all, the league covenant covered pretty nearly everything, and it was only necessary to clarify certain points and perhaps generally strengthen the covenant.

Lord Parmoor's statement caused great pleasure among the French delegates, where it created the impression, as did his remarks before the commission today, that when the time comes the British delegation will present detailed resolutions on arbitration, security and disarmament.

TEXTILE WORKERS ADVISED TO ACCEPT NO WAGE CUTS

Resolutions Adopted by the United Textile Workers of America Instruct the 9,000 Employes of the Manville-Jencks Company to Fight Proposed 10 Per Cent Wage Decrease —Convention Voted to Resort to Any Necessary Action, "Morally and Financially"—Corporation Was Recently Organized With $39,000,000 Capitalization.

New York, Sept. 10.—Textile workers, numbering 9,000, in the eight mills of the Manville-Jenckes company in Rhode Island and North Carolina, were instructed to accept no wage cuts in a resolution adopted by the United Textile Workers of America today.

The convention delegates, representing 58,000 textile workers, also passed a resolution endorsing the La Follette-Wheeler ticket with a proviso similar to that adopted by the American Federation of Labor that they would have the right to support candidates friendly to labor in the various states.

The La Follette-Wheeler resolution, it was explained by Thomas F. McMahon, international president of the union, did not commit the organization to support the independent ticket in its entirety, but left it free to back candidates of any party who should be considered friendly to the interests of organized labor.

In adopting the resolution instructing the Rhode Island and North Carolina workers not to accept a proposed 10 per cent wage decrease the convention voted to resort to any necessary action "morally and financially," in arriving at a satisfactory solution of the situation. The Manville-Jenckes corporation recently organized with a $39,000,000 capitalization, operates textile mills at Pawtucket, Woonsocket, and Manville, R. I., and Astoria, N. Y.

It was announced that the convention would make a special order of business tomorrow a discussion of plans for the amalgamation of all textile workers in the country with the United Textile Workers of America.

PRINCE LEADING LIFE OF COUNTRY GENTLEMEN

Syosset, N. Y., Sept. 10—Upon learning of the third postponement of the first of the international polo games today, the Prince of Wales settled down to the life of a country gentleman, made his first inspection of Long Island cattle, and prepared to remain in the James A. Burden home for another week or ten days, if necessary, to see the deciding game between the American and British polo teams.

His right eye, injured by a cloud of earth kicked up by a polo pony on Monday, appeared normal. He played polo again today at the J. S. Phipps field, leaving at the end of the seventh chukker to go to a luncheon at the home of Harrison Williams in Glen Cove.

Motoring to the estate of J. P. Morgan this afternoon, the Prince looked at the herd of Guernsey cattle. He is much interested in livestock and has had considerable experience in cattle breeding on his lands comprising the duchy of Cornwall. He has drawn from the fine sires of that region some of the stock for his ranch in Canada.

The Wales party tonight attended a dinner and dance at Mrs. Vanderbilt's home in Jericho. There were about 500 guests. The polo teams were guests of honor.

Reports that the prince would eliminate his Canadian trip were designated by Captain A. F. Lascelles, his secretary, today as "poppycock."

The royal visitor will board a train at New London, Conn., soon after the deciding polo game and will go straight to Calgary, Alberta. There will be no formal receptions until he returns to eastern Canada in the middle of October.

If the Americans win the first two polo games the Prince probably will not remain for the third.

DETECTIVES WORKING ON $250,000 JEWEL ROBBERY

New York, Sept. 10—The J. S. Cosden home at Sands Point, L. I., from which jewels valued at $250,000 today were reported to have been stolen a week ago, tonight was a hunting ground for detectives representing an international insurance agency that had underwritten the value of the missing valuables.

The major portion of the loss was reported to have been borne by Mrs. Cosden, but Lady Mountbatten and Mrs. Richard Norton, close friends of the Prince of Wales and guests of the Cosdens during his visit to Long Island, also lost many valuable articles.

Mr. and Mrs. Cosden are famous as collectors of rare pieces, while Lady Mountbatten, said to be England's richest woman, is the possessor of stones reputed to be among the finest in the world, these having been left by her father, who was interested in diamond fields.

Inspector Burt, of Scotland Yard, charged with guarding the prince said the investigation, being on American soil, was out of his province, while public authorities at Sands Point said they had not been invited to aid in the investigation.

FOUR TO BE TRIED FOR THE MURDER OF MRS. K. WALLACE

Colebrook, N. H., Sept. 10—Hazel Zona Huntoon, and three men today pleaded not guilty to charges of murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Katherine Wallace at North Umberland last June. Their trial will begin on Monday. The body of Mrs. Wallace, also known as Katherine Mason, 24 year sold divorcee, was found floating practically nude in the Amonoosuc river on June 24. She had been missing for 10 days.

The police arrested Miss Huntoon, Osman Cowette, Oscar Tanguay, and R. Martin, all of Berlin, N. H., and they were indicted for second degree murder on July 3. The police said that the four admitted an automobile ride lasting far into the night during which several line houses were visited and liquor procured.

On the way home, the prisoners are alleged to have told the officers the two girls had an argument and got out of the car to settle it. A little later the Huntoon girl returned alone, it was said. The men in the party said they attributed Mrs. Wallace's non-return to stubbornness and so drove home.

LIFE SENTENCE PRONOUNCED FOR LOEB AND LEOPOLD

Chicago, Sept. 10.—By the A. P.—Youth alone saved Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, 19, from death on the gallows for the kidnapping and murder last May of 14 year old Robert Franks. Instead Judge John R. Coverly, retiring chief justice of the criminal court of Cook county, sentenced the two young intellectuals to life imprisonment on the main charge and to terms of 99 years imprisonment for the kidnapping. Under the latter, it was stated they could be released on parole until they had served more than 33 years in the state penitentiary. The life term alone would have permitted such parole after about 20 years.

But the court urged that the privilege be never extended to the self-confessed doers of what he called "an abhorrent crime."

He found no mitigating circumstance in the evil deed itself, no motive or lack of motive, or the personalities and antecedents of the boys; but he said he chose imprisonment instead of death because of the age of the defendants.

"The determination appears to me in accordance with the progress of criminal law all over the world and with the dictates of enlightened humanity," said Judge Caverly. More than that, it seems to be in accordance with the precedents authoritatively served in this state. The records of Illinois show only two cases of persons who were put to death by the process—to which number the court does not feel inclined to make an addition." The judicial words recorded the consequence of Clarence S. Darrow who, in his closing plea for the boys, denounced hanging as barbaric, especially in the case of the young, and urged that "mercy is the highest attribute of humanity."

"It was all we could have asked," he said after the judgment had been rendered.

In contrast, Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, and formerly himself occupant of the place held by Judge Caverly, said:

"While I do not intend and have no desire to criticise the decision of the court, I still believe that death is the only penalty feared by murderers."

Even as Judge Caverly declined to break precedent by sentencing the boys to hand, so he declined to make precedent by ruling definitely on the big legal technicality of the case whether a degree of mental sickness short of legal insanity, might be weighed with moral turpitude as a mitigating circumstance. All through the six week of the actual hearing the question was the technical background, with the state's attorney trying to switch the proceedings into an insanity hearing and the defense insisting that the question of insanity was barred by the terms of the pleas of guilty.

The court said that the analysis of the boys' lives and present mental, emotional and ethical condition was a "valuable contribution to criminology," but he declared that application of such material to crime was a subject for legislative rather than judicial determination.

When the formal language of the sentence brought him to the point where he read directly to "You, Nathan Leopold, Jr.," and again to "You, Richard Loeb," there was only the briefest possible glance by the judge in the direction of the youths.

The boys listened intently. "Loeb's poker face," lacked its customary high coloring, but his facial muscles were under perfect control. Loeb's lower jaw hung a bit loosely as he sat with parted lips.

NEW FLIGHT ROUTE FROM WASHINGTON TO SEATTLE

Washington, Sept. 10.—A new route for the flight of the army world flyers from Washington to Seattle, was announced today by the war department.

WILLIMANTIC

A lengthy session of Windham county superior court was held here Wednesday, Judge George E. Hinman on the bench. The liquor law violation case, state vs. Louis Brettschneider, of this city, was first taken up. The accused changed his previous plea of not guilty to one of guilty on the second count of the charge, which alleged that April 8, last, he had sold to John Smith of Windham two drinks of whiskey for 25 cents and a quantity of Jamaica ginger. The first count was for having in his possession liquor with intent to sell. Reprimanding Brettschneider for failing to change his plea until the last moment and stating that from what he knew of the accused and the case, a jail sentence would be the most fitting, Judge Hinman imposed a fine of $100 and costs and a 30-day jail sentence. The fine and costs amounted to $135.19. The man was taken to Brooklyn jail later in the day.

Mary Aubette, now of Fall River, Mass., pleaded guilty to the first count on a charge of adultery and abandoning her husband. She was given a suspended six months' jail sentence and ordered placed on probation for that time. At the time of her arrest Mrs. Aubette was a Plainfield resident.

Elmer C. Frink of Plainfield, charged with frequenting a house of ill fame, abandoning his wife and non-support, pleaded guilty to the first count. Frink said that he had a daughter and was willing to live with his wife and avoid further trouble. This statement was considered grounds for leniency and Frink was given a suspended six months' jail sentence, being placed on probation for that period.

Peter Wieleszezyk, 46, of South Canterbury, died at St. Joseph's hospital here Wednesday morning. He leaves his wife, Sophie Wieleszezyk, and five children, Peter, Julius, Carol, Adolph and Mary, also of that town, and two brothers, Joseph of Middletown and Alexander of Detroit, Mich. He was a farmer and had resided in South Canterbury for four years, coming there from Stamford.

Funeral services for Mrs. Ida M. Hill were held at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at 62 North street. Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead officiated. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Avery & VanZandt.

Santo Bonnanno, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bonnanno of 15 Main street, disappeared from his home Sunday, Aug. 24, and has not been seen or heard from since that date. The father claims that he knows of no reason why the boy should leave home. He failed to return after going for an alleged walk. The boy is about five feet in height and weighs 125 pounds. When he left he wore his Sunday suit of a blue material and a light cap, but he had on his working shoes. Mr. and Mrs. Bonnanno have four other children, one of whom is in Italy.

At the weekly meeting of the Wil- Exchange club held Wednesday noon, Joseph F. McGrail, representative of the A. W. Shaw Company of New York, publishers, delivered an interesting talk. President [illegible] was in charge. Three new members were elected—[illegible] B. Lincoln of Hartford and [illegible] and Dr. William E. Kirkpatrick of [illegible] P. I., and Victor Picard, 16, of Pascoag, will be brought before the superior court today (Thursday) to answer to charges of breaking and entering and theft at the home of Mrs. H. Norman Warren, of Pomfret, Friday, Sept. 5. Clothing and valuables to the amount of $179.10 were stolen. Verude is in the county jail at Brooklyn and Picard is in the custody of his parents. Verude is the step-uncle of the Picard boy.

Willimantic, Sept. 10.—In the superior court today the case of Felix McMahon, of Jewett City, charged with manslaughter and driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was taken up and the trial lasted until the adjournment of court at 4 o'clock. McMahon has retained Attorneys William A. King and Samuel B. Harvey of this city and Thomas M. Shields, of Norwich, to represent him. State's Attorney Charles E. Searls was assisted by Attorney Howard Bradford, of Putnam.

The case is the result of the unhappy ending of a night ride and alleged drinking party, in which married men and women made merry, in violation of their marital bonds. The joy ride took place June 25, starting at 7 p. m., and lasting up to about 2 o'clock the following morning, when the machine overturned on the Canterbury side of the Canterbury-Griswold town boundary line on the Jewett City-Plainfield highway. Mrs. Mary Bennett, one of the party, was so badly injured that she died in a hospital several weeks later.

Felix McMahon, of Jewett City, the owner of the machine, was driving and with him were John Callahan of 604 Boswell avenue, Norwich; George Ferguson of Jewett City; Mrs. Mary Bennett of Second street, Greeneville, Blanche Perola, 13 White street, Norwich, and Miss Anna Gibson, 13 Thames street, Norwich. The last mentioned gave her name as Mrs. Anna G. Ahearn, of New London, and was the first witness called. She said that she was married about five days ago. She told of taking a ride with the party to Olneyville, R. I., where gasoline was secured for the car. On the road the three men got out and returned from a house with two bottles of home brew and a quart bottle of gin. Callahan and Ferguson drank freely, she stated, but she did not see McMahon drink. She could not remember much concerning the accident other than that the members of the party were thrown out of the car and she sustained a fractured collarbone. Attorney King cross-examined witness.

Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich was called by State's Attorney Searls for the purpose of relating Mrs. Bennett's dying statement regarding the ride. This was halted temporarily by objections raised by Attorney S. B. Harvey, leading into legal discussions.

When court resumed, Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve of Norwich, medical examiner for the district, told of the condition of the Bennett woman while in Backus Hospital. There or four days after the accident he was called into consultation with Dr. E. J. Brophy and found that the woman suffered from an affected spine that nearly paralyzed the entire body and that she felt no pain from the prick of a pin. When later she could feel pain in her left leg some hope was held out for her recovery, but July 25 she died. Her case was of such a nature that it was of much interest to the physicians of the hospital. Recalled to the stand, Attorney Steward was again asked to testify to Mrs. Bennett's dying declaration. The objection made by Attorney Harvey was overruled by the court. Attorney Steward explained that the declaration was given verbally to himself and State Policeman Urquahart, at the bedside of the woman, at the request of her husband, to be used in a civil action. According to the attorney Mrs. Bennett said that she was attending a wedding in Norwich Town on the afternoon of June 25. Blanche Petrola asked her go for an automobile ride early in the evening and she refused. Asked again later in the evening, she consented to ride as far as her home. She had planned to get off at Central Avenue, but upon reaching there Blanche told McMahon to step on the gas, which he did and although Mrs. Bennett objected the car was not stopped until they had reached Warwick Inn, in Arctic Center.

The men got out and got a quart bottle of gin and two bottles of home brew. The men drank the liquor as did McMahon who had about four drinks. She thought that they were returning to Norwich and instead came out on Olneyville Square, Providence, where gasoline was bought and the return trip started. The party stopped near a store and the men talked about a "place to bunk", but after a time drove on again.

McMahon began to drive in a reckless manner, going from one side of the road to the other in snake-dance fashion. He was warned by one of the men that he would strip all the gears if he did not stop. Mrs. Bennett believed that the machine was traveling at a rate of 60 miles an hour up to the moment when it overturned.

When she regained consciousness she was lying beside the road near the wreck. She heard McMahon remark that she was in a bad condition and that the party would have to fix up some kind of an alibi. He concluded that to say the machine was sideswiped by another was the best way out of it. McMahon had planned to unload all his guests in Jewett City, upon arrival there.

S. B. Palmer, civil engineer of Nor- wich who took measurements of the road and location where the accident took place, introduced a map showing the location of the accident and position of the car and pictures of the wreck taken by a photographer. He was followed by Deputy Sheriff John Dolan of Jewett City, one of the officers who investigated the accident. State Policemen Ross V. Uquahart and Edward J. Stevens of the Danielson barracks, other investigators of the accident also testified.

Officer Uquahart corroborated the testimony given by Attorney Stewart regarding the declaration made by Mrs. Bennett at her dying bed. He further stated that at daylight he found a glass stopper near the wrecked machine which bore the label of the Gordon Co. It was shown as evidence. The officers were cross-examined by Attorney King and Harvey respectively. Following a short recess the state rested its case and Dr. John H. McLaughlin of Jewett City, was called to the stand by Attorney King. The physician testified that all the members of the party except Mrs. Bennett, motored to his home, some two miles from the site of the accident and that he attended to their injuries. McMahon was sober, he stated, and his breath did not smell of liquor. The Gibson woman also was sober, but the others appeared to have been drinking.

Leslie G. Hyde a garage proprietor in Jewett City who was called to the accident by Ferguson and Callahan testified that the two men bore evidence of having been drinking, but that he did not notice any odor of liquor about McMahon's person. Recalled, Deputy Sheriff Dolan stated that he walked near McMahon but did not detect any smell of liquor.

Felix McMahon, the defendant, said that he had been a resident of Jewett City for about three years and was a plumber and steamfitter, also an electrician. He was married. According to his story the joy ride had practically been forced upon him by Callahan and Blanche Petrola. He met the couple in Jewett City while he and Ferguson was going to look over a job and they wanted to go to Greenville, so he took them, also planning to call on Attorney Quinn while there. The lawyer was out and at the suggestion of the Petrola woman they went on and Miss Gibson was enrolled in the party. Some time later Blanche Petria had the defendant drive to Norwich Town where she got Mrs. Bennett and the party started off in the direction of Jewett City. When nearing the place, Ferguson ordered McMahon to drive on as there would be h—l to pay if his wife saw him with another woman. Witness had told his own wife that he would return home early and did not care to drive far off, but was coaxed on and on to Olneyville. On the way, Ferguson and Callahan purchased two bottles of beer which they drank between themselves. He stated that he was about to take a drink and had the bottle to his lips when someone in the car snatched the bottle from him, causing his mouth to bleed slightly. He went on to tell something of the poor quality of the concoction. He said the purchase was made at the Thatcher place, known as the Half-Way-House.

On the return trip Ferguson attempted to force the Gibson girl into wrongdoing and witness stopped the car to take her into the front seat with him. The members of the party chided him for not being a good fellow.

At this point court was adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The town school committee held its first meeting of the school term Wednesday evening in the town building. Dr. F. E. Guild, of Windham, presided. Other members present were Secretary E. A. Case, R. H. Fenton, George W. Hickey, L. Leo Thompson, Raymond A. Parker, H. C. Lathrop and Dr. W. P. S. Keating. For the building committee, Mr. Hickey reported that the exteriors of the Natchaug and High schools had been repainted and the basement of the High school refinished in satisfactory manner. Mr. Thompson, chairman of the committee to arrange for the building of the New Model school to replace the building destroyed last spring gave his report. Dr. A. R. Meredith, of Hartford, Charles L. Torrey of Putnam and Henry A. Tirrell, of Norwich, have been appointed a committee by the state board of education to meet with the town committee and discuss plans for the proposed building. Dr. Keating reported for the transportation committee. Chairman Hickey of the properties committee, presented the names of six applicants for appointment as assistant janitor at Natchaug grammar school. The choice was made by balloting and Joseph Earl, who has been acting as asistant during the summer months was appointed, salary $100 per month. John McQuillan was a close second. The application of Dr. Keating for appointment of town school physician for the next term was read.

Secretary Case, principal of Windham high school, reported that with a registration of 587, conditions at the institution were in a somewhat crowded state, but this would be remedied within a few days by the installation of 30 new desks. A letter expressing pleasure because of the improved health of Committeeman William J. Sweeney and stating the hope of the members that he will attend the next meeting of the board will be mailed to him with a floral remembrance.

The meeting adjourned to September 24th when a special meeting will be held and the secretary's annual report will be read.

Happy Men.

I had been working in my garden. The sun was just below the horizon and the dew was already on the smooth green walks bordered by sweet-smelling roses and carnations. The stillness of the evening was broken only by the whistling of a blackbird. I sat down on a rude seat I had formed beneath an old tree, and, as I thought of the fruits and plants that were ripening around me, I exclaimed to myself, "How happy, if they knew it, are they that till the ground."—William Barnes.

Donnelly and Smith will open the program with a comedy singing and piano offering.

She establishes her innocence by a clever ruse in which she involves the man who has tried to turn her husband against her.

Strand Theater

The Man Who Fights Alone at the Strand this week is unusual in theme and gripping in story. What is more it marks the screen comeback of William Farnum, this time under the Paramount banner. On top of that it has a superb supporting cast headed by lovely Lois Wilson and Edward Hortom both featured. Wallace Worsley directed the production.

The Man Who Fights Alone is from the story The Miracle of Hate. You have all heard a lot about the miracles that have been performed by love, but sometimes the terrific emotional power of hate can do things even more startling.

Farnum has the role of a two-fisted engineer who wins the love of a beautiful girl who has also been courted by his best friend. Ill health makes it necessary for him to form a partnership with his friend who is an honorable man in every respect.

How his little daughter saves him from the consequences of his own folly and how he is made to see his jealously to be without foundation, form a mighty climax that will send the red blood tingling and coursing through your veins.

A new Andy Gump comedy Day of Rest and new Kinograms are the other subjects.

PALACE THEATRE

Dante, famous European magician will appear under the management of Thurston, famous American Necromancer, at the Palace theater for three days beginning Monday, Sept. 15th, with a popular priced matinee on Wednesday. Reserved seats now on sale.

In an interview in New York the other day Mr. Thurston said:

"With international relations the paramount issue these days, it has often come over me that artists, great and small, on both sides of the water could do a great deal toward creating a better understanding between the peoples of various nationalities. "Dante and I believe we have achieved this in the performance which he will present in his coast-to-coast tour during the coming season. He brought over from Copenhagen some really marvelous illusions and mysteries. He has worked in with them the best of the Kellar-Thurston illusions and tricks. For variety, color, astounding effects and rollicking humor I have never seen anything like it.

Palace Theater

An unusually exciting romance and love story is offered the audiences at the Palace theater when Unseen Hands, with Wallace Beery as the star, is shown there. Unseen Hands is adapted from an original story by Walker Coleman Graves, Jr., and the central figure is played by Mr. Beery.

The locale takes in the picturesque northern frontier of France, with some big scenes in the mines, where one Jean Scholast after becoming a power, makes it possible for a noted surgeon to make a slip during a major operation by switching off the electric lights, death resulting from the murderous work of Scholast.

He turns up in Arizona, U. S. A., where he seeks refuge from phantom hounds in an old Spanish rancho. He takes heavily to drink and finding a pretty Indian woman close by, he weds her and installs her as mistress of the hacienda. He tires of her and turns his attention to her comely daughter.

BREED THEATER

Deep in the big timber country of California, Tom Mix, a company of actors and a mechanical force lived for two months during the making of Eyes of the Forest, which comes to the Breed theater, today, Friday and Saturday. According to advance reports of this William Fox production, the sacrifice, if such it was, was worth the effort. Having pioneered in almost every field of daring, Mix will now make his bow as a full-fledged aviator.

Once before, in Sky High, Mix defied fate and drove one of the big flying machines below the rim of the Grand Canyon crater, a hitherto unattempted feat.

A news and comedy complete the bill.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At their September meeting the the warden and court of burgesses authorized certain revisions in the parking regulations, made effective in July. These proposed revisions are interesting, but will not become effective until after they have been advertised and providing no serious objections arise.

The proposed changes in the regulations extend the 60 minute parking limitation, now effective in Main street between Academy street and the railroad crossing, southward along Main street to that thoroughfare's junction with Water street. On this entire stretch, Academy to Water, the 60 minute parking limitation will be effective only from 7 a. m. to 10 p. m. The parking regulations also are extending to Center street. This street, under the proposed regulations, will have a 60 minute parking limitation between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

The proposed changes in the parking regulations have grown out of the experience obtained by introducing restrictions imposed in July and out of suggestions and petitions from business interests. The borough officials are carefully feeling their way, in an effort to meet a necessary obligation in doing something to control parking on a narrow business street that happens to be a section of two of the most important trunk line highways in the state. No great hardship has been imposed upon anyone as yet, and it is not likely there will be in the future. Naturally, there have been some differences in opinion, but these may be considered in comparison with the important matter with which the borough officials are dealing, in the interest of the general good of all.

Striving to set a good example by practicing what it preaches, the court of burgesses has taken to ascertain the cost of building a cement apron from the central fire station on Academy street to the street line, this along the frontage of the fire station, and extending a cement sidewalk 6 feet in width across the frontage of that property, where there is a murk of mire and slush during the sloppy periods of the winter and late spring seasons.

There is no denying that the sidewalks, as a whole, especially on the northerly side of Academy street, need attention. Borough officials have taken the necessary steps to have property owners on that section of the street improve their walks. Having done this, the borough now comes forward with a plan to put its own house in order. There will be some expense attached to making the improvement, but it is needed more urgently than at any other place on the street. No [illegible] amount to a quagmire exists on the fire station frontage at certain seasons of the year despite the plank walks that can be put in the summer and cast off seasons. Figures on the cost of the proposed improvement will be obtained by borough officials from contractors who are doing [illegible] in the borough [illegible] consideration [illegible] June.

Purchase of a certain type of valve [illegible] ment in the [illegible] Captain Put [illegible] the meeting [illegible] burgesses. Possession of this valve will allow the Putnam Fire engines to get into effective use in Pearl[illegible] any fire minutes quicker than is possible without it. This may be explained by stating that, with its present equipment, the company in use at the engines run the hydrant runs out its hose and then waits for the big machine to get back and hook up its connections, before any water is available for fighting the blaze. With the valve in use, water from the hydrant can be turned on the minute the hose is run out and nozzle attached. The normal pressure from the hydrant can be in use for throwing water while the big truck is getting back into position and connecting up with the valve that has been authorized purchased. Once connection is made with the pumper, the mere throwing over of a lever makes available the additional pressure furnished by the big pumper. It is estimated that from 10 to 15 minutes can be saved in getting water on a fire by use of the new valve, and minutes count in fighting a fire.

Herewith is a list of the newly elected officers of Rose of Lima council, K. of C.,: Grand knight, James Moran; deputy grand knight, Alfred Goulet; financial secretary, Henry Lambert; treasurer, Lucien Lambert; recording Wilfred Moulin; chancellor. Frank secretary, Theodore Mailhot; warden. Mailhot; advocate, Attorney Louis A. Woisard; inside guard, Frank Vives; outside guard, Edward Moran; trustees F. X. Mailhot, Pierre Gazeau, Bernard Casey.

Rev. F. X. Richards, M. S., addressed the large attendance at the meeting electing the new officers Tuesday evening. Plans of the council for the immediate future include a reception to be tendered District Deputy Henry Dubuc, newly appointed, of this place, when he installs the officers of the council later in the month and a whist party for a date not yet announced.

Representatives of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company insist that gas bills can be materially cut down if users of gas will exercise discretion in operating gas stoves or jets, in accordance with the requirements of the borough newly installed gas system.

It has been stated before in this column, and it is now repeated, that gas cocks on stoves need not be opened full to get the same, or better results, than formerly was obtained with a wide-open jet. Until this fact is assimilated by consumers of gas here and judiciously acted upon, there will be little real excuse to complain because gas bills are materially higher than they were before the new system was installed.

There are few housewives in Danielson who would, say once a year, touch a match to a $10 or a $20 bill and hold it in their fingers to watch it burn. Yet they are doing just about that thing when they open gas stove cocks full these September days, when a cock half or three-quarters way open would get them all the heating Wor cooking results they require.

From all parts of the borough complaints are heard about the high gas charges of the past month. There have been various threats to cut out the use of gas and to substitute oil stoves. The gas company points the way to a more economical use of gas. The company is entitled to be heard. If their advice proves of no value, it will be full time then to consider changes.

Another point is that while the gas pressure is higher now in Danielson than formerly was the case, it should not be forgotten that gas is being fed into Danielson homes on a low pressure system. The gas used here is not fed direct from the high pressure mains running down from Putnam, but through a regulatory device that reduces the pressure at the old gas station on Hutchins street.

Another Ku Klux cross was burned on Orient Heights, about 10 o'clock Tuesday night. It was raining great guns at the time—the heavens weeping, it may be assumed, over such tomfoolery in these enlightened days in this supposedly enlightened country. A dozen cars are said to have been parked on the state road nearby while the Kluxers vented their hate.

As to the burning of Ku Klux crosses, C. B. Montgomery of Oneco has developed an idea that is novel and of special interest. Some time since, he says, he heard of a plan to have a cross burning in the town of Sterling. Forthwith he warned the owner of the land where the ceremony was to take place that he would seek a warrant to prosecute him if the affair was allowed to go on, basing his action on the ground that such a burning was a violation of the statutes pertaining to setting fires where they would be likely to cause damage to property, as happened at a cross burning in the town of Plainfield some time since. Justice Montgomery says that he has a letter from the state fire warden backing him in his stand and that he is ready to prosecute any property holder who allows any such fires to be set on his land.

THIS WOMAN RELIEVED FROM SUFFERING

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Remarkable Story

Dover, Del.—"I wish every woman would take your wonderful medicine as it has done so much good to me. I had cramps and faint spells and very bad pains. One day I was over to my neighbor's house and she told me I ought to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I went to the store on my way home and got a bottle, and took the first dose before supper. I have been taking it ever since, and you can hardly believe how different I feel. I had just wanted to lie in bed all the time, and when I started to brush up I would give out in about ten minutes. So you know how badly I felt. I used to go to bed at eight and get up at seven, still tired. Now I can work all day and stay up until eleven, and feel all right all the time. My housework is all I do in summer, but in winter I work in a factory. I have told a good many of my friends, and I have had three come to me and tell me they wouldn't do without the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. SAMUEL MURPHY, 219 Cecil St., Dover, Delaware.

EVEN "FRESH AIRS" MONEY INVOLVED IN BANK

Putnam, Sept. 10.—One of the features of the closing of the First National Bank, just come to light, is that the fund raised to pay the expenses of a number of the New York Tribune's Fresh Air Fund children, was deposited in the bank by the treasurer, Miss Gertrude Perry. This is the annual custom as checks are drawn to the individuals entitled to them and it is customary to pay them in advance.

When it became known that most of the money was behind the closed doors of the bank there was a suggestion that the coming of the children to Putnam be cancelled. This did not meet with any encouragement whatever, as no one interested in the two weeks' outing of these little East Siders from New York's tenement district had the heart to send a telegram that would so disappoint 40 waiting youngsters, counting the days until the train should leave the Grand Central station. They came on schedule and returned on schedule and had a joyous two weeks which greatly benefited them physically and mentally. Those to whom the money for board is due will have to wait a while to receive their pay, but the children went undisappointed.

Miss Perry has a part of the fund in her possession and this will be paid out, pro rata, to those to whom it is due. The people who took children at the $4 a week rate have not understood why they had not received the money. The reason is now made public and it is another of those unfortunate instances that has resulted from the receivership of the Putnam bank.

HOW GILPATRIC USED FUNDS EXPLAINED BY COUNSEL

Putnam, Sept. 10.—The citizens of Putnam had come to a pass where they believed themselves shock-proof to any further developments of the First National Bank situation or to anything concerning its cashier, G. Harold Gilpatric. When Thursday morning, Aug. 7, it became known that the popular cashier had attempted to take his life by sending a bullet crashing into his right temple, this city and surrounding towns got a jolt that would not have been surpassed if it had been found that the planet Mars had cast anchor in Union square and the Martians were stepping off their planet to this old earth, right here in Putnam. It was such a shock in fact that no one for the moment would believe that the attempt at suicide of the leading citizen of the town had any connection with the bank of which he was head, also body and heels.

The rumors of a shortage at the institution began to get some credence from those more easily alarmed and this was followed by the closing of the bank's doors. Then followed the admitted irregularities, the appearance of forged paper in Hartford, the fact that the cashier had not spared his own wife's fortune, the appointment of a receiver, the announcement that Gilpatric would live but would be permanently blind, these and many other details in a sequence of public shocks, it was thought, had severed the public nerves and left the citizens without further feeling in the matter.

But the belief that there was no further chance for a shock was dispersed Wednesday morning when it became generally known that the cashier, trusted, beloved and respected, had appropriated $350,000 of the bank's funds to his own private use and through misjudgment, or mismanagement, or both, had caused a further loss to the bank of another $350,000, bringing the grand total loss to the bank up to $700,000. This disclosed that there was at least one more shock in the public's system.

From a state of semi-forgetfulness over the bank tragedy from which the community was emerging with hope for the future of their home city the announcement Wednesday morning had the effect of a relapse and set-back and the depression that was evident in the beginning of the trouble was evident again in the business section during the day.

The stockholders of the bank had anticipated a possible small assessment on their holdings. The public and stockholders in speculating on the amount of the shortage had estimated it at from $200,000 as a minimum to $500,000 as a maximum, the latter in only a few cases. No one had ventured to put the shortage above $500,000 and the community was little prepared for the announcement that the total was $700,000. This was the greatest shock to the community since the cashier shot himself.

The question on the tongue of all classes of citizens was: "What could he have done with so much money?" This question received an answer in part during the day, by a statement authorized by Attorney E. C. Morse, counsel for the Gilpatric family. It is understood that Mr. Morse prepared the statement in anticipation of an announcement being given out of the financial condition of the bank. Mr. Morse, on learning that the shortage is $700,000 said that it should be clearly understood that the amount that Harold Gilpatric is said to have abstracted for his personal use is $350,000. The other half of the shortage, due to mismanagement and bad loans, comes under an entirely different category.

The formal statement authorized by Attorney Morse is as follows:

"People have wondered where the money went to and how much restitution would be made. Harold Gilpatric put in round figures $350,000 into four business projects. It does not seem expedient to mention these, with one excention, because those who owe the money might be embarrassed if their names were published, as they are apparently using every effort to pay what they owe. The one exception is John J. Burns, of Hartford, whose name has already frequently appeared in the newspapers.

"Mr. Burns was originally the owner of several pieces of real estate, including what is known as the Trumbull Market, 270 Trumbull street, Hartford. Mr. Gilpatric evidently put upwards of $100,000 into this enterprise.

"In the second project he placed what is admitted to be $103,000. In the other two he put roughly $75,000 each, making a total of $353,000.

"In answer to the amount of probable restitution, all that can be said is this: It is going to be considerable of a problem to realize in full on all these and other investments. It is probable that most of the Burns money, being in real estate will be realized upon within a short period.

"A second one of these investments will apparently repay in full. These, together with the Putnam and Maine real estate, and other securities found among his papers should net a minimum of $250,000, which should be available to his creditors.

"In addition to the four large projects it is unnecessary to say to those who have known Harold Gilpatric's activities for years that there are numerous other similar investments which in the aggregate, sum up to an appreciable amount.

"Such funds as are realized upon will be used for the benefit of all the creditors and there are no indications that Harold Gilpatric's personal liabilities will amount to more than $75,000 to $100,000."

In referring to the "other similar investments" to the four alluded to above, it is taken to mean the many personal loans made by Gilpatric to those who sought his help. It has become known that in his desire to help others he lent money unwisely and that a part of this appreciable amount is probably uncollectable, but that some of it may be collected, to be added to the estimated total of $250,000. All of such funds collected will of course reduce the shortage at the bank.

Another question revived on Wednesday as a result of the disclosure, was as to how such a tremendous shortage could have been covered up. The national bank examiners, criticized by the public before, were more freely criticized Wednesday, after the amount of the shortage had become known.

It was evident from the attitude of the representative of the comptroller of the currency that there is a desire in this quarter to at least have the old bank made the basis of any banking institution that may be organized in Putnam. If any organization can be perfected that will take over the assets of Gilpatric's estate, and the assets of the bank and assume the obligations to depositors, it seems apparent that the depositors would realize on their deposits much sooner than if the liquidation of the bank's affairs had to be carried to conclusion by the receiver, a long-drawn-out, as well as expensive, procedure. While the amount of money this would necessitate raising has never been stated, it is believed, that it would run well toward half a million dollars, including capital and surplus of the new or reorganized bank.

The sooner the local national banking problem is solved the better for Putnam and an attempt is being made to have the stockholders' protective committee and the citizens' committee unite in an effort to bring about this desired result.

Odd Experience.

The strangest experience of my life was one day while in our orchard. I was sitting under a giant apple tree. Presently I got up and started away. Scarcely had I gone four steps ere a large dead branch fell to the spot where I had been sitting. I did not venture under dead branches again for some time.—Chicago Journal.

DEFENSE DAY.

Preparations are or should be practically completed for the observance of Defense day on Friday, the anniversary of the Mihiel offensive six years ago in which a conspicuous part was played by the American forces.

Defense day is not the occasion for the awakening of a war spirit. It is the time for expressing out abhorrence for war, but not necessarily by shutting our eyes to the position we would be in if we became so imbued with the peace spirit that we neglected to provide proper protection against the acts of others.

Defense day is being observed under the provisions of a federal statute and must not be considered as interfering in anyway with the desire and efforts for international peace.

It is through the preparations for the fighting of disease that so much is accomplished today in behalf of better health. Because no one wants disease does not mean that we should ignore preparations and the knowledge of how to fight against disease mean that encouragement is being given to more sickness.

It cannot be said that there is a desire for fires just because there are provisions made for fighting them. Because we have fire departments, and because they are occasionally involved in parades, doesn't lend encouragement to start fires.

There are conditions that have to be faced in regards to international relations quite the same as there are in regard to disease and fires. Until the time comes that war is actually eliminated there must be safeguards against it. We are not going to stop fighting disease because we do not like or want it. The desire for peace is a worthy one. It deserves all possible support, but it is a misguided effort which undertakes to maintain that we can safely disregard our protection and trust to notes and talk in the present stage of world relationship. Till war is tabooed in fact Defense day will be justified as facing facts that exist, rather than basing our acts on things that are desired.

INLAND WATER POLLUTION.

When Secretary Hoover spoke to the United States Fisheries association about the importance of the restoration of the fisheries on our coasts, bays, lakes and streams, he dealt with a condition which is no secret. While it is true that there are plenty to be found along the coasts and in the streams. Those who are acquainted with the conditions know that the number is not only much less when the demand is steadily increasing, but is growing smaller. It is just the opposite of what should be. Instead of finding it impossible to get an adequate supply of those fish which were once so numerous that they were used for fertilizer there should still be a sufficient number to meet the demands without exacting exorbitant prices.

Secretary Hoover pointed to pollution as one of the great destroyers of the fish, rightly claimed that an important step had been taken in the prevention of oil pollution from the ships and correctly stated the situation when he declared it to be decidedly complex, the solution of which must be approached gradually rather than precipitously.

When it comes to inland waters the problem is one that must be handled by the respective states. Well does Mr. Hoover direct attention to the fact that the states must measure up to their responsibility and not fall back on that too frequently adopted idea of letting Uncle Sam do it. In fact there may well be the closest cooperation between the state and federal governments for the relief of the pollution problem.

As the secretary of commerce says 'pollution comes from a hundred different sources," the elimination of such sources involving huge expenditures. It is thus a problem that must be solved gradually, but it is apparent that the sooner some definite method of relief is decided upon and put into operation the less will be the expense and the quicker will there be overcome a condition which affects the fish but which also concerns human life and human health. Conditions grow worse through neglect.

PRISON SCHEME FAILS.

Many are the ideas that have been advanced for the government of penal institutions. Not a few of them have been tried. Not all have failed. But there are instances which show that much more has been attempted than was justified and that the ideal does not always work out and is not properly appreciated by those for whom it is intended.

New York has had its share of schemes for bettering conditions in its prisons. It has found that there are grave dangers connected with too much leniency, that public protection is not provided when those of criminal inclinations are tolerated, and it has found that a prison where inmates would be put on their honor isn't a success.

This latest development is disclosed by the construction of a wall about the prison of Great Meadows, which was built to house the best prisoners from the other prisons who would be permitted to carry on farm and other work at that institution without the restrictions of other prisons.

It is declared that the location was not suitable for farming and that there were other handicaps because of locality, but it doesn't appear that the plan has developed such a degree of success that it will be followed elsewhere. Instead Great Meadows is to be made like the other prisons. The plan of leniency is abused or not appreciated by those for whom intended and the experiment goes down as a failure. It isn't said that it will never be tried again but plainly the time is not ripe for it.

TRUCK COASTING.

Perhaps no better illustration of the dangers of coasting on hills with motor vehicles could be asked than that which was furnished by the driver of a motor truck while coming down a long hill with a turn at the bottom near Foster, R. I. Loaded heavily with bales of cotton the driver was after speed and he sought to obtain it by throwing out his clutch and letting the truck gain momentum down the grade. He succeeded all right. Not only did he make speed but he went so fast it was impossible to hold the truck with the brakes and there was no chance of getting the engine back into gear. It was impossible to make the turn at the foot of the hill with the result that the truck crashed into a fence and a bridge, throwing off the load and sending one bale 193 feet along the highway. The truck took fire, the driver was probably fatally injured and the fellow with him was instantly killed.

That was a case where as it happened only their own lives were at stake but it would probably have been the same had there been a half dozen cars on the highway at the same time.

Coasting hills is a serious enough matter for a light car, but when it comes to a truck there should never be any attempt to throw out the clutch. To do so not only creates a serious menace in the highway but is a violation of the law in some states.

The driver of the truck was bent upon making speed regardless of safety. He was willing to take the chance under the belief that his skill would offset the danger. He represented that class of drivers who figure through some curious reasoning that no harm can come to them no matter what they do and no matter how many safety provisions they disregard. The danger in such action should have been apparent to anyone who has driven trucks, and it may have been, but if it was and reliance was placed upon luck to overcome the danger the same recklessness was displayed that is making the highways more and more dangerous. The outcome in this particular case was plainly invited.

HONORING THE FLIERS.

The kind of welcome which the American aviators are receiving in their scheduled stops, or from those cities which they pass over, is no more than should be expected. It is not these demonstrations that the fliers are seeking, for they are bent upon the accomplishment of their round-the-world flight, but they can appreciate the spirit in which they are made and know that they would be as eager to participate in similar affairs were they in the audience and others in the airplanes.

Possibly you got a glimpse of the machines as they skirted New England. If you did you probably came to the conclusion that they looked no different than planes who have passed through the air and yet there was no little satisfaction in actually being an observer of those engaged in this record establishing feat.

To the men in the machines who have been obliged to undergo the trying experiences of the past five months it must be a relief to be back in their own country, where conditions are more familiar, where flying conditions are better and where there does not exist the danger that was faced in crossing the jungles of India, the cold and foggy regions of both oceans and in making the long hops over strange territory and water.

The accomplishment of their object seems certain. They have won great honors for themselves but they have likewise brought great distinction to their country and they are fully entitled to such demonstrations as are made in their behalf or that may develop in the future.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

That was a killing democratic frost that was encountered in Maine.

Airplanes differ from horses in that the latter go faster when headed for home.

If Mars has land and rivers, mountains and seas, has it any circumaviators?

That is a common sense verdict which the voters of Maine have rendered.

"Prince really truly girl shy," says a headline. Perhaps he isn't overlooking the fact that it is still leap year.

Over in Spanish Morocco the Moors have torn up a railroad. And presumably without the consent of the utilities commission.

Inasmuch as the prince of Wales has taken up gum chewing it is to be hoped he can keep good time and make it as musical as possible.

China understands by experience that there are other ways than war for reducing the population, and making a fairly quick job if it, but that doesn't decrease the war spirit.

It must have been a surprising revelation to the democratic state chairman in Maine when he declared the election showed "more members of the Ku Klux Klan in the democratic party than we realized."

INSIDE INFORMATION

"I'm glad I live now instead of fifty years ago," said the girl whose face was not mates. "At that previous time I should not have had a show on earth and my life would have been spent knitting by the fireside and looking after the children while my sister-in-law went out to parties and had to leave somebody at home to take the bread out of the oven when it was done and see that Johnny did not remove the cover from the cistern and fall in!

"The first, middle and last requisite at that time was that a girl should be pretty. It did not matter whether she could count above ten without stuttering but a waist measure over eighteen inches or a mouth more than an inch wide automatically removed her to the discard and she meekly accepted her fate. Whereas right now mere prettiness hampers one somewhat. There never has been such a rage for beauty and when you can buy eyebrows and lashes as well as complexions at the drugstores and toothbrushes are so cheap any girl can scarcely avoid being a standard beauty if she has fifteen minutes a day to spare. And it is the standard beauty who is such a drug on the market.

"Men do like novelty and after they have met a hundred or so girls with perfect complexions, ripe cherry lips, longlashed eyes, threadlike eyebrows and coiffures carved out of wood and guaranteed unbreakable, sparkling teeth and enameled fingernails, their brains simply don't register. They fall to see them, just as a married man is unable to see his wife after a few years. Ho hum, they sigh, my kingdom for something new and novel—and that is ju twhere I come in and plenty of others.

"'Do tell!' they say when I appear. 'Look at that girl's nose—it turns up at the tip! Well, well! And I believe it is a trifle crooked at that! She has a horribly broad mouth, too, and when she laughed just then the view was like the tunnel under the Hudson from the east end! She is brown as whatever berry is brown and her face is even a trifle shiny and whatever makes her hair look so different? Aha, it has a natural wave and she doesn't use a hair net but lets it fly! Funny the way she grins! Let's see what she is really like! Bet she is funny when she talks!' The rest, of course, is fairly simple for a girl of any intelligence whatever. When I manicure my nails I leave off the acute pink polish and not a man I know misses telling me he likes my hands because they look so capable instead of being helpless.

"You know, every man among other fallacies concerning the other half of creation firmly believes he likes a capable girl. He does when he is talking about her, but you will observe that the ladies with the devoted escorts look anything but capable. They look fluffy and delicate and alluring and I can fluff with the best of them—but, bless their hearts, if the men want to enjoy thinking my hands are capable because minus the usual pink shine at the tips and done in a dull fashion, so to say, let it not be I who disillusions them! Let them dream on that here is a girl who would go down and shake the furnace and sweep off the back steps while they read the newspaper.

"If a woman is homely she can be distinguished looking and I defy any merely pretty girl to look distinguished. If your clothes look made to order and your footgear fits, if you carry your chin at the right angle and wear a coldly impersonal glance and if your gloves couldn't be fresher and you have the last word in handbags, to say nothing of a vanishing-cream complexion and the right tint of rouge—bring on your raving beauties and nobody will notice them much! Most terribly pretty girls stop at that point and refuse to go farther, considering that in being beautiful they are doing enough for humanity, and while men may encourage them in that belief temporarily, they generally feel injured as time goes on and they have married the lady if she doesn't develop cleverness and tact, sympathy, energy and ability and the usual line that we homely girls work at hard from the time we are old enough to take notice!"

"What would you do if a good fairy appeared and offered you astounding beauty?" inquired the person who always thought up disagreeable remarks.

"Oh, well," said the girl whose face was not mates.—Chicago News.

Howe, the Crippled Charity Patient.

Small, feeble in health, and lame from birth, Elias Howe suffered pain and poverty so great as to be almost beyond belief.

Son of a poor miller and farmer of Spencer, Mass., the boy attended the little school nearby and helped on the farm. At 11 he was apprenticed to a neighboring farmer but could not endure the hard work, and went back home.

At 16 he obtained a job in a mill at Lowell at small wages, next was in Waltham, and at 21 started to work for an inventor in Boston, earning $9 a week. Soon afterward he was married and worked so hard to provide funds for the home that his health broke down a year later.

Facing starvation as he sat at home with his wife and baby, he watched his wife sewing and thought out the idea of a machine to make stitches. With pieces of wood and bits of wire he fashioned a needle with the eye in the center, and at 27, received his first patent.

Without funds, he lived in Cambridge with a friend who also loaned him $500 to continue his work. Boston sneered at his sewing machine, and ill health and poverty forced him to depend upon charity.

By rigid privation he raised enough money to go to Europe, cooking his own meals during the voyage. In London he sold a machine and the British rights for $1250, but as soon as he had taught the use of the machine the purchaser turned him out, penniless, and Howe had to pawn his clothes to buy food during the four months in which he made a machine, which he sold for $25 to pay his way home.

Arriving in New York, he learned that his wife was dying, and he worked in a machine shop to secure enough funds to take him to her bedside just before she passed away. He was compelled to borrow a suit to wear to her funeral. A few days later he learned that the shin carrying everything he possessed had sunk.

Soon afterward his machine was recognized. At 35 he was receiving $200,000 a year income. Then came costly lawsuits to protect his patents. He won, and soon was a multimillionaire.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Duke of Alba, who is coming to New York with what he represents as authentic documents from the hands of his ancestor, Christopher Columbus touching upon the latter's discovery of America, is the grandest grandee of Spain. Aside from his descent from the great discoverer he can claim a most interesting line of ancestors. Indeed, he has the royal blood of England in his veins. He is descended from King James II. of England and Arabella Churchill, sister of the great Duke of Marlborough. It was the present Duke's grandfather, the fifteenth Duke of Alba, brother-in-law of Empress Eugenie, who killed the United States minister, M. Soule, in a duel at Madrid in the latter part of the fifties. The present Duke succeeded to his titles on the death of his father, who passed away in New York in 1901, having come to this side as the guest of Sir Thomas Lipton to witness the American Cup races.

TIBETAN MUSK

Musk, the most penetrating and already one of the most costly substances used in "fixing" perfumes may soon be dearer than rare jewels because the lamas of Tsarung in southeast Tibet have issued an edict that hunters caught killing musk deer will have their hands cut off and nailed on the temple doors, according to a bulletin from the Washington D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. The bulletin quotes Dr. Joseph Rock, explorer for the Society, who recently returned from an expedition to Chinese Tibet.

"The tiny musk deer, due to the perfumers' attempts to satisfy the demands of fashion, is becoming very scarce in this mountainous district which is the world's single source of highest grade natural musk," says Dr. Rock. "Growing scarcity of the deer led the lamas to restrict hunting. The musk sack, which is about the size of a crab apple, occurs on the belly of the male of the species. Since there are about five females to every male, many must be caught to secure a small quantity of musk. The traps either kill or fatally maim all deer caught so that hunting reduces the number of potential reproducing members of the species very rapidly.

"The musk deer are very small; approximately the size of a goat. When a male is killed the sack is removed and in its natural state, is wrapped in tin foil and encased in strong, silk-covered boxes. One representative of a French perfume concern has lived on the border of Tibet for twenty years for the sole purpose of buying musk from native hunters. Even at the source of supply in this remote district musk is very costly.

"Musk is a necessary element of nearly all high grade perfumes," continues the bulletin. "Ordinarily the layman cannot detect it because it is used as a base to carry the more perishable and less penetrating floral perfumes such as rose, lilac, violet and lily of the valley. The only other source of natural musk is the Altai Mountains in mid-Asia, but the product from deer of this range is much inferior to the Tsarung musk. Since this scent has long been one of the essentials of perfume and has always been costly it was one of the first to be manufactured synthetically. But the manufactured grades now available do not measure up to the natural product and are only used in cheaper perfumes. Natural musk is said to be so penetrating and so capable of retaining its strength that an infinitesimal bit will scent a large room for more than two years.

"Despite the lamas' decree with its terrible penalty there will probably be some bootlegging in musk. Increasing scarcity of the musk deer and the edict are expected to combine, however, to send prices skyhigh.

"Innumerable flower scents are used by perfumers in their art but only four animal perfumes are regularly employed. Scarcely could more diverse creatures be conceived than the four represented on the perfumer's shelves; nor more diverse habitats, nor more diverse corners of the earth as sources of supply.

"In addition to the musk deer, there is the pot-whale of the Indian ocean which supplies ambergris, the beaver of Canada and Siberia which supplies castor and the civet cat of Abyssinia and India which supplies civet. These animals represent the mountains, the seas, the tropical jungles and Arctic swamps.

"Ambergris is to the mariner what a huge gold nugget is to a prospector. Its origin is somewhat obscure but it is a fatty substance believed to be formed in the intestines of the pot-whale. Usually it is found floating in the ocean or cast up on the shore; a piece as large as a man's fist is regarded as a great find. Many an old New England skipper dreamed of finding a piece of ambergris and retiring from his stern calling to a comfortable farm in the New England countryside, for a 'nugget' of ambergris is worth a small fortune.

"Like musk, civet and castor occur in small sacks, but in the latter cases on the bellies of the civet cat and beaver respectively. The best civet is said to come from Abyssinia and the best castor from Siberia. Civet is used more extensively than castor.

"No animal perfume is used by itself. In the natural state the overpowering, concentrated odor is disgusting to most people. Travelers who have witnessed the removal of the scent glands from penned civet cats in Abyssinia described to atmosphere in the immediate vicinity as hard on occidental noses as the odor of skunk. Perfumers dissolve the natural substance of animal odors and dilute it hundreds of times until the scent is barely observable. This diluted substance, however, works wonders with the floral scents; it not only magnifies their natural fragrance, but also serves to make more permanent perfumes which would become weak with age.

"Some of the best known perfumes contain traces of the animal perfumes. Ambre, boquet de l'amour, and some of the d'Esterhazy boquets contain both ambergris and musk. Different formulas of the familiar Jockey Club call for ambergris, civet and musk. Animal perfumes are not used in the various kinds of eau de Cologne."

CHILD TRAINING

A GAME TO TEACH ORDERLINESS

Mrs. A. R. Mammon

"Son, please don't muss my basket," I said.

"I had to, Mother, because my fishing tackle was in it. Button Brown and I are going down the railroad to fish in the hole."

"But," I said, "Why don't you keep your fishing tackle in the box I gave you for it?"

"You've broken my horse, Mother. Never mind, I don't care so much anyway."

"He shouldn't have been on the floor Tom."

"I forgot to put him up. Well, so long, Mother," and he went cheerfully off to the fishing hole.

I looked around the disordered room, the dear old room where we spend so many happy hours of sweet companionship—my boy and girl and I. "I must find some way to teach them to be orderly," I told myself. "I spend so much time putting away their toys and clothes that I could devote to helping them in more important ways. Yet I just will not nag them about anything. I'd rather pick up after them, and even let them be untidy, than to spoil their joy in our home and their feeling of comradeship with me." I felt sure there was some way, and I found it; this story tells the tale.

When we were settled after our evening meal, we held a "Family Council," as we call it. "My dear audience," I began, in the make-believe way that we play so often. "I notice that this family, including bysel, has fallen into bad habits."

"I am not smoking," began Tom.

"I haven't missed my spelling but twice this week," volunteered Sue.

"No, and I have not stolen a pig, nor dyed my hair green," I denied. "Still I insist that we as a family have a bad habit—one that wastes our time and makes our home look untidy."

"Oh come, Mother, I can't think what it is," and Sue looked puzzled.

"I know!" Tom suddenly cried. "Mother means that we don't put our things in the right places after we use them. Sue, you go right straight and empty your doll rags out of my box."

"I guess I won't, Mister, till you give up my doll grip, Mother, he carried worms in it."

"I—"

"Listen, Children," I broke in. "Let's make a game of it. First, we will put things in their proper places. Let's play that every thin ghas a home and make it stay there, except when it is in use. After every thing is home, the game will begin. If either of us lays any thing out, away from its proper place, the one who first sees it may claim a pin as a forfeit, and the one who forgot must immediately put the article in its home."

How everybody flew around putting things away! In no time the room looked as neat as a pin. At first, no one got a forfeit, but the next morning, as Tom became very much interested in a book, Sue announced joyfully, "I claim a forfeit; your shoes are under the edge of the bed."

"I'll get you, Miss," grumbled Tom, as he gave her a pin, and he did.

"Pay me a forfeit for not emptying the bowl!" I heard him roar, a little later.

So it went on. I paid as many forfeits as the others, but I no longer spent half of my time putting things away nor looking for lost articles.

Sure to Come.

"Mos' all men got a moment o' remorse comin', some time," said Charcoal Eph, ruminatively, "but yo'all got t' admit bit usually come aftah yo' git sump'n fo' your hurt feelings."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

I Found the Way to Health in a Country Drug Store

Story of a Rich City Banker's Wife Who Had Been Ailing, Complaining and Doctoring for Years

"A Druggist in a Little Country Town Taught Me the Secret of Health and Strength"

"For years neither my husband nor I got any enjoyment out of life because of my ill health. I was always ailing, nervous, weak and run-down; never actually bed-ridden but life seemed just one ailment after another. Headaches one day, stomach upset the next, dizzy spells, pains in the back, colds and neuralgia. One day I would think I had heart trouble because of pains around the heart, another time I would have all the symptoms of kidney trouble with a dull aching back. My lips and cheeks were pale and sallow and I looked years older than my right age.

"One day in a little village drug store, the druggist, a kindly old man, said to me, 'You surely look all run-down and anaemic. Until you get your veins full of rich, red blood and the color back in your lips and cheeks, you'll always be doctoring for one pain and ache after another. Your blood is thin, pale and watery for lack of iron and when your blood lacks iron your food simply passes thru you without doing you any good. All your vital organs are starved for nourishment and you get these symptoms of dangerous diseases.

"'You take an old druggist's advice and get some iron into your blood. The best thing is Nuxated Iron, because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood. I have recommended it to hundreds right here in this little village and it often makes an astonishing improvement in even the worst cases.'

"I took the druggist's advice and in two weeks I felt like a different woman. Even in that short time the color of health had come back to my face, I felt and looked years younger, and the old tired-out feeling was gone. That was three years ago and I have never had a sick day since. I am surely grateful to the druggist who showed me the way back to health and strength."

This is one of thousands of typical hypothetical cases which might be written showing the results that have been achieved thru the use of Nuxated Iron which may be obtained from any druggist in this city. Be sure you get genuine Nuxated Iron which is true food from ready for immediate absorption and assimilation by your blood, and not one of the old forms of metallic iron which many physicians say is not absorbed at all.

By DAVID CORY

Advice From Prof. Crow

Down the Shady Forest Trail
Hops a bunny rabbit,
He'll be in Home in time for lunch—
That's his daily habit.

Yes sir. Little Jack Rabbit was always in time for his meals. He never kept Lady Love, his pretty bunny mother waiting for him. No indeedy. I hope every boy and girl who reads these stories will be like my bunny boy—always on time.

"Hello," all of a sudden shouted a voice.

"Who's calling me, I'd like to know. It sounds just like Professor Crow," answered the little rabbit in poetry.

"Well, that's just who it is," answered the voice, and there stood the wise old black bird, his Wisdom Book tucked under his wing and a pair of spectacles on the ridge of his beak.

"Please don't ask me now to stop. I must keep on hipperty hop."

"It's only twenty-three minutes after eleven," answered Professor Crow, looking at his big gold watch. "Where's your timepiece?"

"Oh, dear," sighed the bunny boy. "It stopped this morning. If Billy Breeze hadn't called me I would have been late for breakfast."

"Well, you have lots of time before lunch," smiled the wise old professor bird. "Listen a minute or three to me. I must read you something from my Wisdom Book." Turning to page 3, Professor Crow slowly read aloud:

"A B C till you come to Z
Up to 100 from 1, 2, 3.
These you must know very well
And also learn to write and spell."

"I do study hard," answered the bunny boy. "Didn't my report card show that?"

"It certainly did," replied the wise old bird. "But when school begins again be sure to remember the poem I just read."

"I'll try to," sighed the little rabbit. "Now I must hop home to wind my watch. It's the watch Uncle Lucky gave me for my birthday," and away went the little rabbit, hipperty-hop until by and by he came to a stop. Just in front of him, not more than a skip or two stood Danny Fox. Where he came from the little bunny couldn't guess. He was too frightened to even think.

"Howdy," laughed the old fox, with a grin that showed all his white teeth. "My, but you're nice and fat."

"Oh dear, oh dear," sobbed the little rabbit, looking this way and that way, but there was no friendly hollow stump in sight. No there was no place in which to hide. And in the next story you shall hear who came to help the poor little bunny boy.

Stories That Recall Others

English as She is Spoke.

Recently a motorcycle policeman on a state road, who had returned to duty from a long period in the hospital recovering from injuries received in a spill from his vehicle, pulled a woman driver to the side of the road for speeding. The exasperated woman exclaimed: "Officer, you must be crazy to say that I was speeding."

"Lady," replied the policeman, "a man has to be a nut to ride one of these things."

Beginner's Luck

The driver was endeavoring to park his car flat to the curb. He cut and backed, killed his motor and finally alighted from his car after parking it nearly three feet from the curb.

It was observed by a policeman before he had alighted. He started in to investigate the actions of the man. As he approached the fellow who was thought to be intoxicated, the man said, 'Now please, Mr. Policeman, don't get rough with me, as this is the first time I ever drove one of these critters and I don't know my gil." The policemen and the driver finally parked the car properly.

PRINCIPAL TIRRELL IS SPEAKER OF GRANGE EDUCATION PROGRAMME

After their regular business session at Steiner's Hall, Wednesday evening, the members of Norwich Grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, threw open the remainder of the meeting to a reception for the ministers and school teachers of the city and town. Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery presided at the meeting which was called earlier than usual to allow time for the lecturer's programme and the reception. The principal matter discussed at the meeting was the annual fair which is to be held the latter part of the month. The committees for the fair have been appointed as follows:

Advertising committee, Assistant Steward Lewis E. Aldrich; tickets, Secretary Ora C. Spencer and Treasurer Edward Cook. Programmes, Lecturer Ida E. Richardson; vegetables and garden products, Overseer L. W. Staubley; preserves, etc., Idella Spalding, lady assistant steward; flowers, Mrs. Brown, Ceres; fancy work, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Flora; pastry, cake and food, Mrs. Beaver, gate keeper; special exhibit and sale of articles, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rush; candy table, Ways and Means committee; refreshments, feast committee.

The business meeting came to a close about 9 o'clock after which the remainder of the evening was devoted to the lecturer's programme and the reception for the school teachers and ministrs. Education featured the programme arranged by Lecturer Ida E. Richardson. The opening number was a selection by the orchestra, John M. Swahn, cornetist and leader, Mae Gulle, violin, George Gulle, violin and Nellie Howie, pianist. Then followed a brief address of welcome by Worthy Master Avery. Lyle Fillmore entertained with an excellent tenor solo after which Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, was presented as the speaker.

Professor Tirrell spoke on the topic Education. He said that education is a subject upon which we are privileged to disagree. Things that are important are hard to measure and for that reason we feel free to disagree when they are discussed. Prof. Tirrell said that education, in a rough sense, is the attempt of one generation to pass on to another generation acquired knowledge, things that are important. The home, church, state and school have a place in education. Prof. Tirrell said that to him education is a most interesting thing. The possibilities of change are infinite. Every teacher knows he never meets exactly the same situation twice. No two pupils are alike.

Education is partly a science but much more an art. Every good teacher is an artist. No two teachers ought to teach in precisely the same way, nor can they teach precisely the same way. In closing Prof. Tirrell said he wished to emphasize two or three things. One was the cooperation of parents with teachers. The important thing about education is not simply the broadening of the mind; there is also the moral side. It is far better for a child to work and develop good habits than to be lazy and go through the motions of going to school. The great thing about American education is that all children have a chance to go to school. The push of education has got to come from the home.

The boy or girl who does his or her daily work faithfully is getting an education. The person who is shirking is picking up bad habits. The person who is working is picking up good habits.

Prof. Tirrell was warmly applauded for his very interesting talk. The next number on the programme was a quartette selection. The Garden of Your Heart, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano, Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, contralto, Lyle Fillmore, tenor and William Rush, basso. Mrs. Church then entertained with a vocal solo which was heartily encored.

The lecturer announced that the master of the Rhode Island state grange, who was to have been a speaker, was unable to attend owing to illness. She then presented John H. Barnes who told briefly and in a very interesting manner of the part of the grange in education. Judge Barnes told what granges in other states are doing in the matter of education, by raising money to provide for scholarships for young people. Your duty in the grange is to teach your children, he said. Educate yourself, but the most important thing is to teach the boy or girl patriotism and good citizenship of the highest type. If there ever was a time in the history of the United States when those two things ought to be taught, it is now.

The remaining numbers of the programme were a solo by Mr. Rush, a solo by Mrs. Crowe and a number by the quartette. Refreshments of punch and wafers were served by the feast committee.

WESTERLY MAKES AGREEMENT WITH TROLLEY MANAGEMENT

In the conference room of the council chamber of the Westerly town hall Wednesday morning, was held a meeting at which were present the receiver, Robert W. Perkins and Manager B. C. Peck of the Shore Line electric railway, Council President Clifford W. Campbell of the Westerly town council; and the Westerly highway commissioners, Charles J. Butler, Chas. F. Berry nad Elihu H. Chesbro and Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

Between these interested parties an agreement was reached in regard to the junking of the road in Westerly. The original franchise of the Shore Line railway was made with the town council. C. W. Campbell was appointed a committee to represent the present council. He has been negotiating with the railroad company, following out the wishes of the highway commission.

The agreement was signed Wednesday morning by the Shore Line company and for the town council of Westerly. It provides that all the rails at Watch Hill from the Plympton dock north to the telephone exchange house will be left in the road and become the property of the town. All the rails on Main street from schools street north through Broad, High, Canal and Railroad avenue to West street bridge will become the property of the town and will not be taken up. In addition the town will be paid $3,000. This will avoid immediate reconstruction on the part of the town of this road.

The other parts of the highways system will be protected as far as possible by the franchise. The Shore Line has promised that gravel will be carted in where sleepers are taken up, and the abandoned railroad bed will be rolled and brought to a smooth finish at the present height of the property.

The highway commission preferred to allow the rails to be taken up on Main street from School street south through Beach to Elm street and the arrangement was that the town would furnish the stone here and that the railway would pay for carting it from the crusher to the job. This part of the highway has never been macadamized, and all that the Shore Line company could be asked to do is to bring the space between the rails up to its present grade.

Before the end of this month the trolley lines in Westerly will be past history. The property of the company has been sold to David Ziskind & Co. of Lowell, Mass., and the work of dismantling the lines will be begun before the first of October.

Mr. Peck announced that service on the Ashaway line will be discontinued Sept. 17 and that the Watch Hill branch will cease operation Sept. 27.

Notice to the effect that the line would be abandoned was sent Wednesday to hte public utilities commission in Providence, and it is expected that several applications to run bus lines here which are now on file, will be acted upon soon.

Mr. Peck also stated that the state of Rhode Island has purchased a part of the right of way owned by the trolley company in Ashaway and will use the property for the new highway.

Compared with July, 53.6 per cent. of the male applicants were supplied with situations in August as against 56.7 per cent, in the month previous, the female comparison being 77.4 per cent. as against 69.7 per cent. The total number supplied with situations in August was 62.5 per cent of the applications, the same as in July, and of the total number applying for help 90.7 per cent were supplied as compared with 92.1 per cent in July.

Two Dogs Missing

C. V. Pendleton has a puzzle that he has been trying to solve since Sunday at Gardner Lake when his two dogs, Pete, a black and white bird dog and a blue tick hound, ran off together and have not been heard from since. It may be that they have been hit by an automobile, but it seems hardly likely that both dogs would have suffered that fate and it seems that one or the other ought to have come back by this time. He has not found anyone who has seen the dogs since Sunday.

MOOSUP POND CASINO CLOSED BY STATE POLICE

(Contributed)

Moosup Pond casino has been closed, according to reports by the state police. This dance hall has been the topic of the surrounding towns for the past summer season. During the time that hall operated last season it is claimed that there hardly passed a night, whenever there was a dance, that there was not a fight or some other disturbance of the peace. There was more liquor sold and imbibed around the casino, it is alleged, than in the whole town. It was a Klondike for the bootleggers. It was not a strange sight to see young girls from 16 to 19 intoxicated. Some of them went so far as to distribute some liquor among their gentlemen (if they may be so called) friends.

Many strangers from distant points visited this casino to see just how bad things were. It was known of far and wide.

The thick woods surrounding the casino offered a good hiding place to conceal intoxicants and to drink such.

Although at times there were two state policemen trying to keep order, they worked in vain. The management of the casino also did their best to keep order, but it was impossible.

To keep order in that place it would be necessary to have at least fifty policemen.

Many times respectable couples who dropped in for a dance were insulted by the vile language used by some of its patrons.

It is a good thing for the younger generation of this vicinity that the casino has been closed.

Simplicity.

The poet must put far from him the amazing word, the learned allusion, the facial invention, the clever twist of thought, for all these things will blur his poem and distract his reader. He must not overcrowd his lines with figures of speech, because, piling these one upon another, he defeats his own purpose. . . . The poet should try to give his poem the quiet swiftness of flame, so that the reader shall feel and not think while he is reading. But the thinking will come afterwards.

Are using these rare powders

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I did not intend to supply powders to women. My only idea was to furnish them my greatest beauty helps. But thousands of women have urged me, by letter and in person, to tell them the powders I use.

Like all my friends on the stage and in the movies, I use very costly powders. I have them made to my order, and they cost me $5 per box. Our careers depend on our looks, and nothing is too costly.

But I have persuaded the makers to offer these powders at ordinary prices. I order them in quantities, under my name. I offer them at my expense to girls and women who desire the best.

Now all druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Powders. There are two kinds. For myself I prefer a clinging powder, a cold cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It is enduring. That Youth Cream costs $1. But many women prefer a light and fluffy powder. If you want that kind, it costs 50 cents. Both kinds come in three shades—white, flesh and brunette.

So far as I know, these powders are the finest in existence. You may be sure that if anyone produced a better powder I would get it either. Anyone who uses common powders will gain a new conception of what powders should be.

Let me send you a sample. Just mail this coupon and tell me the kind you want.

After their regular business session at Steiner's Hall, Wednesday evening, the members of Norwich Grange, No. 172, Patrons of Husbandry, threw open the remainder of the meeting to a reception for the ministers and school teachers of the city and town. Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery presided at the meeting which was called earlier than usual to allow time for the lecturer's programme and the reception. The principal matter discussed at the meeting was the annual fair which is to be held the latter part of the month. The committees for the fair have been appointed as follows:

Advertising committee, Assistant Steward Lewis E. Aldrich; tickets, Secretary Ora C. Spencer and Treasurer Edward Cook. Programmes, Lecturer Ida E. Richardson; vegetables and garden products, Overseer L. W. Staubley; preserves, etc., Idella Spalding, lady assistant steward; flowers, Mrs. Brown, Ceres; fancy work, Mrs. Lena Pukallus, Flora; pastry, cake and food, Mrs. Beaver, gate keeper; special exhibit and sale of articles, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Rush; candy table, Ways and Means committee; refreshments, feast committee.

The business meeting came to a close about 9 o'clock after which the remainder of the evening was devoted to the lecturer's programme and the reception for the school teachers and ministrs. Education featured the programme arranged by Lecturer Ida E. Richardson. The opening number was a selection by the orchestra, John M. Swahn, cornetist and leader, Mae Guile, violin, George Guile, violin and Nellie Howie, pianist. Then followed a brief address of welcome by Worthy Master Avery. Lyle Fillmore entertained with an excellent tenor solo after which Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy, was presented as the speaker.

Professor Tirrell spoke on the topic Education. He said that education is a subject upon which we are privileged to disagree. Things that are important are hard to measure and for that reason we feel free to disagree when they are discussed. Prof. Tirrell said that education, in a rough sense, is the attempt of one generation to pass on to another generation acquired knowledge, things that are important. The home, church, state and school have a place in education Prof. Tirrell said that to him education is a most interesting thing. The possibilities of change are infinite. Every teacher knows he never meets exactly the same situation twice. No two pupils are alike.

Education is partly a science but much more an art. Every good teacher is an artist. No two teachers ought to teach in precisely the same way, nor can they teach precisely the same way. In closing Prof. Tirrell said he wished to emphasize two or three things. One was the cooperation of parents with teachers. The important thing about education is not simply the broadening of the mind; there is also the moral side. It is far better for a child to work and develop good habits than to be lazy and go through the motions of going to school. The great thing about American education is that all children have a chance to go to school. The push of education has got to come from the home.

The boy or girl who does his or her daily work faithfully is getting an education. The person who is shirking is picking up bad habits. The person who is working is picking up good habits.

Prof. Tirrell was warmly applauded for his very interesting talk. The next number on the programme was a quartette selection. The Garden of Your Heart, Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., soprano, Mrs. Helena M. T. Church, contralto, Lyle Fillmore, tenor and William Rush, basso. Mrs. Church then entertained with a vocal solo which was heartily encored.

The lecturer announced that the master of the Rhode Island state grange, who was to have been a speaker, was unable to attend owing to illness. She then presented John H. Barnes who told briefly and in a very interesting manner of the part of the grange in education. Judge Barnes told what granges in other states are doing in the matter of education, by raising money to provide for scholarships for young people. Your duty in the grange is to teach your children, he said. Educate yourself, but the most important thing is to teach the boy or girl patriotism and good citizenship of the highest type. If there ever was a time in the history of the United States when those two things ought to be taught, it is now.

The remaining numbers of the programme were a solo by Mr. Rush, a solo by Mrs. Crowe and a number by the quartette. Refreshments of punch and wafers were served by the feast committee.

WESTERLY MAKES AGREEMENT WITH TROLLEY MANAGEMENT

In the conference room of the council chamber of the Westerly town hall Wednesday morning, was held a meeting at which were present the receiver, Robert W. Perkins and Manager B. C. Peck of the Shore Line electric railway, Council President Clifford W. Campbell of the Westerly town council; and the Westerly highway commissioners, Charles J. Butler, Chas. F. Berry nad Elihu H. Chesbro and Westerly Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr.

Between these interested parties an agreement was reached in regard to the junking of the road in Westerly. The original franchise of the Shore Line railway was made with the town council. C. W. Campbell was appointed a committee to represent the present council. He has been negotiating with the railroad company, following out the wishes of the highway commission.

The agreement was signed Wednesday morning by the Shore Line company and for the town council of Westerly. It provides that all the rails at Watch Hill from the Plympton dock north to the telephone exchange house will be left in the road and become the property of the town. All the rails on Main street from schools street north through Broad, High, Canal and Railroad avenue to West street bridge will become the property of the town and will not be taken up. In addition the town will be paid $3,000. This will avoid immediate reconstruction on the part of the town of this road.

The other parts of the highways system will be protected as far as possible by the franchise. The Shore Line has promised that gravel will be carted in where sleepers are taken up, and the abandoned railroad bed will be rolled and brought to a smooth finish at the present height of the property.

The highway commission preferred to allow the rails to be taken up on Main street from School street south through Beach to Elm street and the arrangement was that the town would furnish the stone here and that the railway would pay for carting it from the crusher to the job. This part of the highway has never been macadamized, and all that the Shore Line company could be asked to do is to bring the space between the rails up to its present grade.

Before the end of this month the trolley lines in Westerly will be past history. The property of the company has been sold to David Ziskind & Co., of Lowell, Mass., and the work of dismantling the lines will be begun before the first of October.

Mr. Peck announced that service on the Ashaway line will be discontinued Sept. 17 and that the Watch Hill branch will cease operation Sept. 27.

Notice to the effect that the line would be abandoned was sent Wednesday to hte public utilities commission in Providence, and it is expected that several applications to run bus lines here which are now on file, will be acted upon soon.

Mr. Peck also stated that the state of Rhode Island has purchased a part of the right of way owned by the trolley company in Ashaway and will use the property for the new highway.

C. V. Pendleton has a puzzle that he has been trying to solve since Sunday at Gardner Lake when his two dogs, Pete, a black and white bird dog and a blue tick hound, ran off together and have not been heard from since. It may be that they have been hit by an automobile, but it seems hardly likely that both dogs would have suffered that fate and it seems that one or the other ought to have come back by this time. He has not found anyone who has seen the dogs since Sunday.

MOOSUP POND CASINO CLOSED BY STATE POLICE

(Contributed)

Moosup Pond casino has been closed, according to reports, by the state police. This dance hall has been the topic of the surrounding towns for the past summer season. During the time that hall operated last season it is claimed that there hardly passed a night, whenever there was a dance, that there was not a fight or some other disturbance of the peace. There was more liquor sold and imbibed around the casino, it is alleged, than in the whole town. It was a Klondike for the bootleggers. It was not a strange sight to see young girls from 16 to 19 intoxicated. Some of them went so far as to distribute some liquor among their gentlemen (if they may be so called) friends.

Many strangers from distant points visited this casino to see just how bad things were. It was known of far and wide.

The thick woods surrounding the casino offered a good hiding place to conceal intoxicants and to drink such.

Although at times there were two state policemen trying to keep order, they worked in vain. The management of the casino also did their best to keep order, but it was impossible.

To keep order in that place it would be necessary to have at least fifty policemen.

Many times respectable couples who dropped in for a dance were insulted by the vile language used by some of its patrons.

It is a good thing for the younger generation of this vicinity that the casino has been closed.

Simplicity.

The poet must put far from him the amazing word, the learned allusion, the facial invention, the clever twist of thought, for all these things will blur his poem and distract his reader. He must not overcrowd his lines with figures of speech, because, piling these one upon another, he defeats his own purpose. . . . The poet should try to give his poem the quiet swiftness of flame, so that the reader shall feel and not think while he is reading. But the thinking will come afterwards. —Sara Teasdale.

Are using these rare powders

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I did not intend to supply powders to women. My only idea was to furnish them my greatest beauty helps. But thousands of women have urged me, by letter and in person, to tell them the powders I use.

Like all my friends on the stage and in the movies, I use very costly powders. I have them made to my order, and they cost me $5 per box. Our careers depend on our looks, and nothing is too costly.

But I have persuaded the makers to offer these powders at ordinary prices. I order them in quantities, under my name. I offer them at my expense to girls and women who desire the best.

Now all druggists and toilet counters supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Powders. There are two kinds. For myself I prefer a clinging powder; a cold cream powder, based on my Youth Cream. It is enduring. That Youth Cream costs $1. But many women prefer a light and fluffy powder. If you want that kind, it costs 50 cents. Both kinds come in three shades—white, flesh and brunette.

So far as I know, these powders are the finest in existence. You may be sure that if anyone produced a better powder I would get it quickly. Anyone who uses common powders will gain a new conception of what powders should be.

Let me send you a sample. Just mail this coupon and tell me the kind you want.

INTENTIONAL SECOND EXPOSURE

FIRPO IS SLIGHT FAVORITE TO WIN OVER WILLS IN TONIGHT'S ENCOUNTER

New York, Sept. 10.—(By the A. P.)—The "Wild Bull" primed for his mighty charge, and the "Brown Panther," crouched for his spring, are ready for the call that will send them into action tomorrow night.

These giant fistic rivals and leading aspirants for title honors—Luis Angel Firpo, pride of the Argentine, and Harry Wills, greatest of present-day negro heavyweights—will match their stamina and punching powers in the outstanding ring battle of the year.

They are matched for 12 rounds in Boyle's Thirty Acres, the big pine bowl in Jersey City, where Firpo halted last year the come-back of Jess Willard, and where many a spectacular ring drama has been enacted since the wooden saucer first was the scene of the historic Dempsey-Carpentier fray three years ago.

The eve of the fight, which has attracted scarcely less interest than a title battle, found Firpo a slight favorite among expert observers and in betting circles. The Argentine's greater ruggedness and hitting, a majority of critics believe, will carry him to triumph over the superior defensive skill and greater experience of Wills. Based on these views, many large wagers were reported at odds of 6 to 5 on the South American, but the giant negro was not lacking in financial support and even money may prevail by the time the gladiators climb into the ring tomorrow night.

The fight program which includes five other bouts, is scheduled to start at 8.15 p. m., eastern daylight time. The main event is slated for 10 p. m., but Promoter Tex Rickard announced tonight that if rain threatens during the program, he will put it on immediately and without regard to the rest of the card so as to avoid possible interference. In the event rain blocks the entire show, it will be staged Friday night.

The advance seat sale, which boomed today in spite of the 11th hour efforts of those who have been seeking the deportation of Firpo, passed the $400,000 mark, according to Rickard. The promoter admitted that legal entanglements tossed in the way of the bout within the past few weeks had exerted an adverse financial effect, but predicted that between $6,000 and 70,000 would pay cause to $800,000 to see the bout. This figure would establish a new record "gate" for a non-championship match, but the expected attendance is likely to fall far below the high mark reached at the Willard-Firpo battle a year ago, when close to 90,000 stormed their way into the big park.

Not the least of the host of notables expected to occupy the ringside section will be Jack Dempsey, who has forsaken the ring for the movies this year. The heavyweight champion will see his two foremost challengers battle for the right to meet him next [illegible]-Firpo, the slugger, [illegible] the title holder out of the [illegible] in their memorable fray a year [illegible] Wills the patient ex-steve[illegible] who fought in vain for more [illegible] years to gain a match with Dempsey.

Both gladiators predict an [illegible] if the bout goes the [illegible] because of his superior [illegible] is favored to gain the [illegible]. Such a decision, however, [illegible] would be unofficial because [illegible] boxing laws permit no [illegible] except in case of a [illegible].

[illegible] crashing, swinging type of [illegible] has remarkable recuperative [illegible] and a devastating right hand [illegible] is "wide open" on both attack and defense.

Wills, his backers believe, with his [illegible] speed and boxing ability will [illegible] advantage of Firpo's unmasked [illegible]. If the negro can weather the [illegible] ferocity of the Wild Bull's onslaughts, he will have potent weapons [illegible] short hand jolts and wicked [illegible] uppercuts delivered at close [illegible].

Comparatively, Firpo has youth in his favor, too. The Argentine is at the height of his brief but meteoric career, while Wills, most critics believe, reached the crest of his ability between two and three years ago, although his handlers claim he never was in better condition than now.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Fordham, New York Giants

Left hand hitter at bat. He is not a long hitter. There is a runner on first.

How should the left fielder play, and where should he throw the ball if the batter singles between third and short?

With a batter who is not considered a heavy hitter, that is one who does not drive the ball far into the field, the left fielder should always play in toward the infield and play in fairly close. Now if such a batter hits the ball between third and short the left fielder should come in, take the ball and throw to third base, to prevent runner who had been on first reaching third.

TAFTVILLE A. A. TO PLAY TWO GAMES THIS WEEK

The Taftville A. A. will play two games this week-end. On Saturday the RiverView club will invade Taftville in the second game of the series between these two clubs, and on Sunday the Taftville team will engage the Hartford Federals at the J. B. Martin diamond.

Taftville has been greatly strengthened in the outfield, the one weak department of the team. The Joubert brothers and the Murphy boys, who have played all season with the Velvetmen will be in the Taftville ranks this week.

Lombardo Knocks Out Monroe.

New York, Sept. 10.—Jose Lombardo, of Panama, knocked out Frankie Monroe of California with a right to the jaw in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round fight at Henderson's bowl tonight. The knockout came after two minutes and five seconds of fighting in the seventh round. Lombardo weighed 125 1-4; Monroe 123 1-2.

MARRIED MEN AND SINGLE MEN WILL PLAY DECIDING GAME ON SUNDAY

On Sunday afternoon at the Duwell field the last game of the Married Men and Single Men's series for the championship of the East Side will be played. Each team has two victories to its credit and are confident of clinching the deciding game.

Ever since these series were started three years ago all the games were played evenings, the games going six innings at the most but on Sunday the fans will have an opportunity of seeing these two teams battle for nine full innings for the first time and it is needless to go into details about all the thrills that are sure to result during the game. Both managers will send in their strongest lineups with Berger Goldberg the idol of local fandom on the mound for the single men and 'Todd' Coleman who only this fame toeing the rubber for the benedicts. Both of these twirlers have hung up records to be proud of in year battered his way into the hall of their recent attempts and should furnish a pitching duel never seen within the limits of Norwich before. To make matters even more interesting the rival managers have decided to let the pitchers use any kind of ball that they may desire to throw including the shine ball, emory ball and even the bean ball.

To help make it a real perfect day Houston's brass band will lead the rival teams onto the field and furnish real live music all during the game and from the time that the umpire cries "play ball" until the groundkeeper put out the cat there won't be one dull moment. Although Manager Pedace has tried to keep it a secret it is known from pretty sure sources that he is developing a new star to take the place of Goldberg should he'weaken, giving him a secret work out every night, teaching him all the tricks of the game. Although "Cy" Bitgood, whom this new recruit happens to be, has never been seen on the diamond he is considered the champion checker player of the city and is trying hard to bust into the limelight on the diamond.

DODGERS BEAT PHILLIES EHRHARDT ALLOWING 5 HITS

Brooklyn, Sept. 10.—Brooklyn won the first of a two day series with the Phillies today, 5 to 1. Ehrhardt pitched his fifth straight victory. Stock had seven assists at third base, three of them sensational. Wheat has hit safely in twenty four straight games. The attendance was 7,000 on a cold raw day. Score.

CITY LEAGUE MAY NOT FINISH UP THIS WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 10.—It looks as though the City League will not wind up its affairs this week as previously expected. The week end games between the Fort Trumbull Stars and the Corticelli Silk nine on Saturday afternoon and on Sunday the game between the Fort Trumbull Stars and the Knights of Columbus, will probably have to be called off. A controversy over the use of Morgan Park is the reason that these games may not take place.

Thinking that the City had possession of the right to use Morgan Park on Saturday afternoon, an announcement was received today to the effect that the Industrial league had acress on the park on that date and that New London was included in the state wide Industrial baseball team competition. It was planned to have the New London Ship and Engine, winner of the New London Industrial league oppose the Fuller Brush company plant of Hartford in this section of the state. While the local pennant winners are eager to engage the Fuller Brush team, the City leaguers in town are peeved at the kind of treatment they are receiving from the Industrialites.

While no war will be waged, there will be some hard feelings between the two factions. The City league players are anxious to get their game over with for it is uncertain how long they will have to wait before this game is played off again. It has been suggested that the City league play its games earlier in the afternoon the game to begin at 2 o'clock, but this plan has met with distavor from the Industrial ranks. The City league is favorable to any reasonable plan that may be suggested to uplift them from the present uncertainty which surrounds the coming game.

The Industrial league team managers are to have a meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening and this question will come up for debate. Decision will also be made as to whether the league will continue playing or not.

THIRTY-FIVE CANDIDATES OUT FOR TEAM AT BULKELEY

New London, Sept. 10.—Thirty-five candidates presented themselves to football coach, William R. Canty this afternoon in the first practice for the Bulkeley High school eleven this fall. About fifteen additional candidates were present at the field but were without uniforms. Before the week is out, it is expected by Coach Canty that the squad number will easily be swelled to eighty or ninety.

The candidates for the eleven are in unusually high spirits, while the student body is giving every assistance possible to make the season one of the most successful a Bulkeley team will ever have. The main objective in the calling of football practice was to ascertain not only how large the squad would be, but to see what veterans from last season would be on the job. Of the veterans those who reported were Jerry Dillon, center; Gavitt and Brown, Guards; Joe Watterson, tackle; Tillotson Daniels end; Edward Henkle quarter back; Walter Rice, left half back and Joe Barry full back. A scanning of this list will show that all the veterans have reported and in the best of condition.

The past summer found the players engaged in hard physical labor and as the result, weight has been added by the majority of the veterans. Both Gavitt and Brown who play the guard positions, left school last spring weighing in the neighborhood of 160 pounds. This afternoon this duo who will hold down the rush attack were weighed and an increase of nineteen pounds was noted in the weight of Brown while Gavitt furnished a surprise when he tipped the beams at 184. Jerry Dillon at center added nine pounds, while Joe Watterson increased his weight from 157 to 171. The veteran back field men while they did not add any more than five pounds at the most, were faster in getting started from the regular position. More speed is easily theirs this season, and the rival schools who will oppose Bulkeley this fall will hear from them.

Coach Canty's form loomed up among the ambitious crowd of candidates and he sent the entire squad through a preliminary practice, which was brief but very beneficial to those for whom it was the first real work out this summer. Two laps around the track at Morgan Park at the beginning of practice and two more after practice provided plenty of muscle exercise. Starts from a crouching position twice the length of the field was he next on the program, while passing the ball continued after each run. Punting with Rice, Daniels and Barry doing the kicking was the next on the program and then forward passing for the purpose of limbering up the back field men's arms was also tried out with Rice and Barry both doing the tossing to the linemen who went down the field under punts and then to receive the forward passes which were thrown them by Rice and Barry.

No cut in the squad will be made before another week. It will take about two weeks for the new mentor to accustom himself to the new surroundings. However it is expected that the squad will be divided into sections with the beginning of next week. Coach Canty was the center of an admiring gallery of former Bulkeley grads and friends, watching the first work out of the year.

BOTH WILLS AND FIRPO CONFIDENT OF KNOCKOUT

New York, Sept. 10.—Harry Wills and Luis Firpo, in pre-battle statements tonight, both predicted a victory by a knockout in their clash tomorrow night. Wills asserted belief in his ability to stop the Argentine within five rounds, while Firpo, less conservative, declared he was confident he could win within a round.

"I will have no alibis for my showing," said the big South American. "I am in better condition than ever. I am not underrating my opponent, whom I have never seen in action but firmly believe I will win by a knockout quickly. Possibly in the first round."

"The biggest opportunity I have ever had as a professional boxer is at hand," said Wills. "I have trained hard and conscientiously for this match and if I lose it will not be because of my condition. My hands are hard as rocks."

"I have studied Firpo and his ring methods. I know what I am up against but I will match up my boxing skill and my advantage in reach against Firpo's rushes and take my chances on the result. I have planned my ring campaign carefully. I know just how to meet Firpo's style of boxing, but win, lose or draw, I will do my best. I do not wish to appear over confident, but I expect to win by a knockout inside of five rounds."

NEW LONDON-GROTON CANDIDATES RIVALS FOR SENATE NOMINATION

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 10—There is a deadlock on in the New London and Groton senatorial district that does not seem to break easily. In Groton the delegates are in favor of the nomination of Howard A. Edgcomb, member of the House from Groton in the last legislature, while in New London the delegates are pledged to Daniel M. Cronin, a member of the lower branch of the legislature at the 1923-24 session. Groton sets up the claim that the town is entitled to the senate nomination every other year and asks that it shall have it this year. Inasmuch as Judge C. C. Costello was senator from the district last session, Mr. Cronin is an aspirant for it this year. Mr. Edgcomb wants the nomination and his friends want him to have it. The state convention at New Haven took a hand in the matter today, but just what decision was reached there is not given out tonight. An effort was made to have the chairman and vice-chairman of the town committees of Groton and New London be the arbiters and decide with the delegates who the nominee shall be but how that would operate to break the deadlock is not apparent.

Whether there shall be a sewer in Norwood avenue is some thing the city council must decide soon. It is expected that the matter will be settled at the meeting which that body will hold next Monday evening. Residents on the street have petitioned for the sewer, but others, anticipating the expense and being under the impression that they can get along with cesspools, have opposed the construction, so that once the petition has been before the council the work was delayed. Now Councilor Gragan, the "committee on public safety" of the council, has made it known that the sewage from property in that section was overflowing on the ground, as the cesspools would not hold nor absorb it, the ground being so permeated that the earth would not take more of the liquid that fills the cesspools. The health officer of the city has endorsed the plan for the sewer and has pointed out that the sewer should be laid there in the interests of health. Still there is resistance. The council can order the sewer and that is undoubtedly what will be done.

The building trade is not as brisk as was anticipated this fall. Nearly all the applications for permits to build are for garages or additions and alterations in existing property. A few new buildings are contemplated, but they are few.

When the public landing was constructed, but a comparitively few years ago the argument was advanced that the pier would afford a place where fishing vessels that were engaged in nearby waters could come here and bring fish that would be sold to all who sought it at a price that was reasonable and which was what should be charged at a seaport town. The result was that fishermen did come to the pier and they sold their fish. They got the price that was charged at retail in the markets. Whether that done Long & Co. away from the [illegible] had occupied or which was [illegible] Hamilton & Powers for a half century before the Long company succeeded the firm is not known by the Bulletin correspondent, but Long and Co., gave up business there some then the fishermen have had the business all to themselves. They come in single boats and they come in fleets at times under the latter condition prices are down where they should be. When there are but a few boats prices soar and fish costs as much at the boats as at the markets elsewhere in the city. It is obvious that the fishermen should not proceed to charge as much for fish at the boat as the same fish can be bought for in the markets where there is delivery expense, clerk hire and rent to be paid and where other expenses add to the cost of the fish to the consumer.

The New London police this afternoon were requested by the authorities of the Norwich State Hospital to be on the lookout for Samuel Mitchell, who made his escape from the institution today. Mrs. Bridget Schensky, wife of Louis Schensky, who was found dead in her home, 25 Federal street, three weeks ago, did not commit suicide as was believed, but came to her death from acute alcoholism. This was determined today when Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman received a report of the analysis of the woman's stomach from Newland's laboratory, Hartford. At the time of Mrs. Schensky's death it was known that she had been drinking heavily, but the symptons tended to show that her demise was the result of other causes.

Mrs. Schensky was found lying upon the floor of a sleeping room when her husband returned from work. The woman was fully attired, but no one could be found that had seen her on the street or about the house that day. Because of the woman having complained of feeling ill the night before Schensky started to obtain medical attention for his wife, but when he returned to his home Schensky found his wife dead.

Doucette will be returned to his parents, he now being, in the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The trio it was revealed after their return to New London, had burglarized a store in North Attleboro, prior to coming to this city. They had in their possession a quantity of cigarettes and tobacco, which they admitted was a part of their loot. An officer from the reformatory will come to New London tomorrow and escort Stone and Sirois back to the institution at Shirley. The boys declared that they intended to go to New York, but because of their unfamiliarity with the highway they ultimately reached Norwich after having taken possession of the Bushnell car.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Sept. 10.—For the second day of the fiftieth anniversary of Kingston fair held by the Washington County Agricultural society Wednesday, a heavy rain storm had soaked the fairgrounds all night and Wednesday morning an occasional shower even up to noon time left the track in a heavy condition so that it was decided to postpone the Wednesday races to Thursday. Wednsday's program now becomes Thursday's so that an extra day, Saturday, September 13th has been added to complete the fair week.

Attendance was noticeably low and although the afternoon proved pleasant, there was very little patronage. A few of the horses were taken out on the track for exercise, the band played, while the vaudevillians performed to an empty grandstand.

Shortly before 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon a large aeroplane approached the Fair grounds from the eastward, flying low, circled the track, when thousands of leaflets of klan literature fluttered to the grounds. They read:

A KLANSMAN'S CREED

I believe in God and in the tenets fo the Christian religion and that a godless nation can not long prosper.

I believe that a church that is not grounded on the principles of morality and justice is a mockery to God and man.

I believe that a church that does not have the welfare of the common people at heart is unworthy.

I believe in the eternal separation of church and state.

I hold no allegiance to any foreign government, emperor, king, pope or nay other foreign political or religious power.

I hold my allegiance to the Stars and Stripes next to my allegiance to God alone.

I believe in just laws and liberty.

I believe in the upholding of the Constitution of these United States.

I believe that the free public schools is the corner-stone of good government and that those who are seeking to destroy it are enemies of this republic and are unworthy of citizenship.

I believe in freedom of speech.

I believe in a free press uncontrolled by political parties or by religious sects.

I believe in law and order.

I believe in the protection of pure womanhood.

I do not believe in mob violence, but I do believe that laws should be enacted to prevent the causes of mob violence.

I believe in a closer relationship of capital and labor.

I believe in the limitation of foreign immigration.

I am a native-born American citizen and I believe my rights in this country are superior to those of foreigners.

Tuesday evening special police at the fairgrounds raided two concession stands and at each one seized a quantity of liquor. At one booth the officers obtained 40 1-2 pints of moonshine and three cases of beer, alleged to exceed the alcoholic contents allowed by law. At the other they took possession of five cases of beer. An investigation at one of the horse barns also resulted in the seizure of a gallon of moonshine. The proprietors of the alleged booze joint were ordered to take dwn their stands and get off the

New German Oil Formula Rubs Out Rheumatic Pains

Local Druggists Give Written Guarantee to Refund Money if First Application Fails to Bring Relief.

A remarkably new discovery now promises quick, soothing relief to Rheumatic Sufferers. German chemistry that has given to the world the boon of Asprin for the relief of headache pains, and Novocaine for painless dentistry, has now come forward with another scientific discovery that is absolutely guaranteed to end rheumatic pains.

This marvelous discovery, known as Buhler Oil is a new combination of certain rare oils, which produces a clear amber liquid that is applied with the finger tips. It is so penetrating that it disappears within a few seconds, so it must be entirely absorbed by the body tissues. Results are truly amazing! Tired muscles regain life, creaking joints become supple, annoying twinges cease. Even the most advanced, stubborn cases show astonishing improvement almost at once.

Rheumatism, it has been found in an enormous number of cases, is due to toxic poisons formed in the intestines, which are carried by the blood to the muscles and joints—and the new German oil is designed to neutralize these pain-causing poisons.

So amazing have been the results from this German discovery that American distributors have authorized local druggists to offer it under a postive written guarantee, signed by the druggist himself, to refund the purchase price if even the first application fails to bring prompt and gratifying relief.

If you suffer from stabbing rheumatic pains in the arms, legs and muscles if your back sometimes feels as if it would break in two—if your joints rasp and torture you—then by all means try a bottle of Buhler Oil today. You'll never want to be without it.

Remember—it is sold under an absolute written guarantee from your druggist. If it fails to give you relief after the first application, your druggist will refund the money without question. In this city Buhler Oil can be obtained under this written guarantee from good druggists such as:

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES.

New York, Sept. 10.—Stock prices were under pressure during the greater part of today's session, net losses of 1 to 3 1-2 points being quite common at the close. Selling, which came largely from professional traders, was conducted in the face of several favorable news developments, including an increase of 102,503 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month, the first gain since February, and the publication of record breaking car loadings statistics for the last week in August.

Berish sentiment was created by heavy liquidation of the St. Paul Railroad issues, which broke to new low levels for the year in further reflection of unfavorable financing rumors, the omission of the Union Bag and Paper dividend and predictions of dividend cuts on other industrial stocks have not been covering current dividend requirements with a safe margin.

St. Paul common and preferred touched new low prices at 11 3-4 and 19 1-2, respectively, despite official denials that a reorganization was under contemplation. The stocks rallied about a point each from their early lows. New York Central, which had sold as high as 108 3-8 in the early trading, dropped to 106 1-2 following the announcement of the regular dividend, indicating that some disappointment was caused by the failure of the directors to place the stock on an eight per cent. annual basis although no such action was anticipated at this time in conservative quarters.

United States Steel common closed 5-8 lower at 106 3-4 after having sold as high as 108 1-4, the selling apparently bein inspired by the suggestion of one of the weekly steel trade reviews that improvement in the first week of September was not uniform. Present operations of the corporation was reported to be about 58 per cent. of capacity. American Can broke from 127 3-8 to 123 3-4 and then rallied to 125 1-8, off 2 1-8. Baldwin closed more than a point lower at 119 7-8.

Lackawanna, which has been one of the recent strong spots, broke 3 5-8 points to 140 1-4 on President Truesdale's denial of rumors that the road was to become a part of the new Nickel Plate system. Losses of a point or more also were recorded by Northern Pacific, Norfolk & Western, Delaware & Hudson, "Katy" common, Nickel Plate common and prferred and St. Louis Southwestern.

Hartman Corporation broke about 3 1-2 points in reflection of a disappointment in semi-annual earnings statement. Union Bag and Paper closed 3 1-8 points lower at 34 7-8. Other weak spots included General Electric, American Ice and Kelsey Wheel, off 3 to 4 1-2 points.

Money rates were unchanged, call money holding at 2 per cent. all day. Commercial paper rates ranged from 3 1-4 to 3 3-4 with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges were again reactionary. Demand sterling ruled about a cent lower around $4.44 and French francs were quoted just above 5 1-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 10.—Heavy liquidation of St. Paul Railway obligations which broke one to five points on publication of unconfirmed rumors that the company would scale down its capital, unsettled today's bond market and caused a general recession of prices. Despite official denials that St. Paul directors contemplated a reorganization of the road or a readjustment of its capital structure in order to meet 1925 maturities, selling pressure which was evident at the close of yesterday's market increased today. It was further accentuated by the decline in the road's stock issues to new low records for the year. The St. Paul 4s of 1925 and the convertible 5s suffered the heaviest losses, both yielding more than 4 points. Declines of 1 to 2 1-2 points were recorded by the other active issues.

The break in St. Paul liens depressed other semi-speculative railroad bonds. Frisco 4s and income 6s fell back one to two points and Chicago & Terre Haute 5s declined 1 1-8. New York Central 6s and Norfolk & Western convertible 6s also receded about a point.

Foreign bonds marked time, although Belgian 6 1-2s established a new high record at 96 3-4 and French issues held steady in anticipation of the renewal of the $100,000,000 Morgan credit to the Bank of France. The $10,000,000 Paris-Orleans Railroad bond issue offered today was quickly subscribed.

Subscription book have been closed on the treasury's $350,000,000 offering of 2 3-4 per cent. certificates, with an indicated over-subscription. Taking advantage of favorable market conditions, the General Asphalt Company will refund its 8 per cent. debentures with a new issue of $5000,000 six per cent. debentures to be offered at 97 1-2.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 10.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market, which was featured by a jump of 5 1-2 points in the stock of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, which is being traded in on a "when issued" basis preparatory to its segregation from the railroad properties. The "rights" also were actively traded in, touching a new high at 10 3-4 and then falling back to 9 5-8.

Oil shares gave indications of better support although there were a few heavy spots in that group. Vacuum was one of the features, closing more than a point higher at 67 1-8.

Popular industrials showed mixed changes, largely of a fractional nature. Ward Baking Class "B" was an outstanding strong spot, touching a new high on the movement at 27 1-2, or 3 1-2 points above yesterday's close. New Nickel Plate common dropped about a point to 74 1-4 and the preferred showed a small fractional loss. Hudson & Manhattan Railroad showed a gain of one point at 36 1-2. Most of the public utilities lost ground, American Light & Traction and Commonwealth Power each sagging more than a point.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—Active buying, presumably in connection with a broad export trade, helped wheat prices upward today. Closing quotations on wheat were firm, 5-8 to 7-8c net higher. December $1.28 3-8 to $1.28 1-2 and May $1.34 to $1.34 7-8, with corn showing 1-2c to 1 1-8c decline, oats unchanged to 1-8c lower, and provisions varying from 12c drop to 10c gain. Upturns in the wheat market were preceded by some weakness during the early dealings, the United States government crop report having a temporary depressing effect. Houses with seaboard connections became liberal buyers, though, especially of the December delivery, and it was surmised that the purchasing represented liberal sales to Europe. current gossip also that con wheat and rye had been bou e for trans-Atlantic shipment tion to amounts taken at th rd and in the northwest for Assertions t French import requirement been doubled of late did a go to keep the wheat market bearing higher as the day drew to an entd and so likewise did chances that the Canadian government crop figures this afternoon would be bullish. Rains in Argentina, where drought has been a handicap to the wheat crop, had but little influence on the market here, the moisture having apparently failed to reach the districts most in need of relief.

Surprise at the relative smallness of the reduction of the government estimate of the orn crop weakened the corn market. Besides, no great damage by frost last night was reported. Illinois and Iowa reports of bad conditions brought about price rallies which however, failed to hold wel. Oats were easy owing to sympathy with corn.

Provisions averaged lower in the absence of any important buying.

BISHOP SHAHAN TO MARRY BARONET AND SOCIETY GIRL

Wednesday's New York Times said: The marriage of Miss Anna Frances Levins, second daughter of the late Peter Levens of Drogheda, Ireland, and his wife, the former Miss Nanno Hale of Lismore, County Waterford, Ireland, and Sir Thomas Henry Grattan Esmonde, the eleventh baronet, will take place Monday morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The ceremony will be performed by Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic University of America, Washington, and a nuptial mass will be celebrated.

Sir Thomas, who will arrive in this city Friday, was one of the founders of Sinn Fein and an associate of the late Arthur Griffith. He has been a papal chamberlain for many years and the papal blessing will be bestowed upon him and his bride by Cardinal Hayes. In Irish politics Sir Thomas served the Nationalist party as a member of parliament from 1885 to 1891 repreenting South Dublin; from 1891 to 1900 he represented West Kerry, and from 1900 to 1913 as a member from North Wexford. He was the chief whip of the Irish parliamentary party, serving for many years. One of his sons was killed in the battle of Jutland during the war. His home is at Ballynastragh Gorey, County Wexford.

Miss Levins' father was an architect here. She was born in this city and attended St. Bricid's Academy. Her great -great uncle, Rev. Thomas C. Levins was pastor of St. Patrick's Cathedral 100 years ago. She is well known as a photographer of ancient documents.

John W. Goff, former justice of the Supreme Court will give the bride away. Her sister, Miss Julia Mary Levins will be bridesmaid, and Mary Reynolds O'Connor will be flower girl. Colonel David M. Flynn of Princeton, N. J., will be best man.

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING 50 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Blood of Fitchburg, Mass., parents of George F. Blood, formerly of this city, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary Monday night at their home with a reception from 7.30 to 10 o'clock. The house where they live is the same in which they were married and where Mrs. Blood had lived for the 10 years before her wedding. The reception was held in the same room in which they were married Sept. 8, 1874, by Rev. Samuel A. Collins, at that time pastor of the First Baptist church of Fitchburg.

Mr. Blood was born in Mason, N. H., the son of David E. and Mary J. (Loveland) Blood, and has lived in Fitchburg since he was 18 years of age. Mrs. Blood was born in Groton, the daughter of Samuel and Mary (Ames) Beard and came to Fitchburg when a small girl. She is a member of E. Victoria Morse, Rebekah lodge, Col. James P. Simpson's Auxiliary, P. M. and Puritan lodge, I. O. of I. O. I. The couple have four sons, Albert H. Blood of Leominster, Howard P. and Charles E. Blood of Fitchburg, and George F. Blood.

OFFERS FOR AROUND $2,000,000 FOR CITY GAS & ELECTRIC PLANT

While the discussion has been going on over the offer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. to buy the city gas and electric plant or to sell the city electricity, there have been other offers to buy the city plant, some of them of a tentative character, it became known Wednesday. In reply to inquiries, Mayor Milo R. Waters stated that an attorney of this city had approached him with the question whether the special committee of the common council would consider an offer of $2,000,00 for the property. The answer had been that the committee would not care to take action unless a bona fide offer were made. Several offers had also been received by the gas and electrical commissioners, the mayor said ranking from $1,800,000 to over $2,000,000.

All these offers have been at a higher figure than $1,374,837.55 which was the offer of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. based on the book value of Dec. 31, 1923, to which was to be added the inventory figures of $54,205.01 making a total of $1,429,042.56.

Regarding the method by which the special committee of the common council reached a value of $2,000,000 for the city gas and electric plant, Mayor Waters said that they had been advised by various electrical authorities that the value of a plant should be figured at three times the gross income, a method of reaching valuation in which he said General Manager H. D. Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co concurred, although general manager C. W. Taggart of the city plant claimed that the value should be figured at four times the gross income. As the gross income of the city plant is approximately $700,000, three times this would bring a value of approximately $2,000,000. Mayor Waters expressed himself as strongly of the opinion that the city plant was worth at least $2,250,000.

The Mayor said that in the course of the discussions he had at one time asked the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. representatives why they didn't submit a proposition upon which the city could buy from the power company as much electricity as was wanted, but to this there had been no direct reply. Through the contract with the Uncas Power Co. the city is already buying about 40 per cent. of its electrical energy from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., the mayor stated.

STEAMER CAPTAIN DISCHARGED FOR MAINTAINING CLAIM

Captain Edward R. Geer of Bank street, New London, master of the Fall River liner Commonwealth, operated by the New England Steamship Co., has been discharged following his refusal to withdraw a salvage claim against the Eastern Steamship Co., whose steamer Boston he claims to have saved from sinking on the night of July 21 after it had collided with the tank steamer Swift Arrow off Point Judith.

Captain Geer bases his claim on the contention that he dragged the disabled boat to safety after aid had been refused by others and that he was responsible for the rescue of 36 persons on board the Boston. He maintains he is unable to receive compensation for his efforts, but because he would not withdraw the enforcement of the claim, he has been discharged by th efirm by which he has been employed for the past 35 years.

His claim hereafter rests in the hands of the law firm, Hull, McGuire & Hull, which he has retained. Attorney C. Hadlia Hull, a member of the firm is to go to Boston to confer with representatives of the operators of the steamship Boston, and upon their refusal to come to terms will take steps to file a libel against the vessel.

The Boston was in a perilous condition after the collision, according to Captain Geer and was in danger of sinking. The Commonwealth, which was in the vicinity at that time, radioed for aid for the sinking steamer but other craft in nearby waters failed to respond, according to the master's claim, whereupon the Commonwealth went to the disabled vessel's assistance.

Passing a line to the Boston and towing her into Newport, she was beached upon the mud flats preventing her from sinking in deep water.

At the outset of the action against the steamship company which operates the Boston and which refuses, according to Captain Geer, compensation for the deed, the crew of the Commonwealth was with him in the claim. The operators of the Commonwealth however, subsequently issued a statement to Captain Geer and his crew that the entire ship's outfit should withdraw their action or resign from the steamship company's employ.

Every member of the crew but Captain Geer complied with the order and withdrew his suit. Captain Geer would do neither.

Captain Geer, whose father, like himself, was an able navigator, and is one of the best known captains in these waters said Wednesday that during the 35 years in the employ of the New England Steamship Co., he had never had an accident and, by that token, had never cost the insurance companies that supply the concern coverage against marine loss, a cent. He performed a feat, he states, that no other vessel available would undertake and, therefore, seeks to have his claim given the honor customary in such cases.

Legal action is pending. A libel against the steamship Boston will be filed if the operators default settlement, according to Captain Geer's lawyer. Settlements made in such claims are based on the value of the libelled craft. The Boston, which is almost a new boat, was built at the cost of $2,000,000, indicating that if judgment is given in behalf of the plaintiff the settlement will be a large one.

NEW LONDON COMMANDERY WILL ENTERTAIN TEMPLARS

Final plans for the huge parade and entertainment by Palestine commandery, Knights Templar, of New London, to Columbian commandery of Norwich and Narragansett commandery of Westerly have been completed. It was definitely decided to stage the event on Oct. 16.

The parade will move promptly at 4 o'clock.

Palestine commandery, headed by the Elks' band of Willimantic, will lead the procession, followed by the other commanderies, each headed by a band. The Templars will be attired in full regalia, Narragansett commandery wearing white plumes and the others black.

At Williams park there will be staged a review and display of Templar tactics.

Following the parade a banquet will be served in the armory and the Elks' band will furnish music throughout.

In all probability the Yale Glee club will furnish entertainment following the banquet and there will be addresses by various officers of the three grand commandery of Connecticut.

Delage, the Putnam police captain whose death followed injuries in an automobile accident.

Life insurance payments in 1923 in Connecticut cities included $187,000 in Norwich, $261,000 in New London, $100,000 in Willimantic, $91,000 in Putnam and $11,000 in Killingly.

SHOWS ROTARIANS WHAT CHINA CONDITIONS ARE

A very interesting and comprehensive talk on conditions in China was given at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club by Rev. Edward L. Smith, a Norwich boy who has been located in China in missionary work a number of years. Rev. Mr. Smith in his talk referred to the revolutions now raging around Shanghai. He said in part:

The civil war now being fought about Shanghai is but the annual outcropping of chaotic conditions that have existed for the past eight years The country is under eight generals or Tuchen over these military districts. Each general has become an irresponsible autocrat. Civil government has ceased to function and each general is seeking to overthrow his neighbor. Shanghai, the great international city of a million and a half people, is independent of the Chinese government and is rapidly growing in population and prosperity. With international protection there is little danger to the city.

But the country is being ruined economically and the suffering of the common people under the intolerable load of vast military establishment is pathetic and tragic.

Still, in spite of the adverse conditions, mission work goes on and was never more prosperous. The fact that thousands of missionaries are seeking to serve and help the people creates an atmosphre of confidence and good will. The old hatred of Boxer days is gone forever. Americans are today everywhere welcomed as brothers, because of the work done by American Christian schools and colleges, Y. M. C. A's, orphanages and relief work. There is every prospect of China's final emerging out of the present chaos into a new day when democracy, education and all the forms of a Christian civilization will be firmly established.

We have, during the past few years lived through the decline and fall of a great civilization. Politically, socially, economically and religiously, the old order dating back for 4000 years is dead.

The question now is whether as in Rome the Christian church will be ready to recreate a new and better civilization. America is today the ideal of the students and leaders. In the remotest provinces the name of America is spoken with admiration and love. The foundation has been well laid for a fine bond of international fellowship and cooperation but we must have more enlightened support on the part of the American congress.

The relation of the white and yellow race is one of the crucial problems of this century. There is a right way to meet it by Christian cooperation and service that will mean a blessing to humanity. They desire our friendship and our aid. Along the way of an enlightened Christian brotherhood lies peace and prosperity for all. For this we are laboring. To this we call upon all for support.

There is no Yellow Peril, that's all hokum. Japan knows she has no chance with us when it comes to war and they don't want war. When Congress took that action against Japan it kicked over much of the work that had been done there. China is going to get on its feet. If we can link ourselves with them and cooperate with them. But if we turn against them we will bring the yellow race together against us and then the world war will be a mere skirmish as compared to what will follow.

We can't treat them with fear, they are men and must be treated as such and when we do this there will be a different China.

At the business session Past President Charles A. Saxton presided in the absence of President Hugh B. Campbell and Alfred G. Bliven acted as song leader. Among the items of business transacted a resolution endorsing National Defense Day was adopted. The resolution follows:

Whereas, Our National government has designated, Friday ,September 12, 1924, as a day on which to take official notice throughout our nation of our military standing, equipment and defense strength; and, whereas we deem it highly desirable and a wise peace precaution that we should be aware and fully advised as to our status and strength, to the end that we may remedy our weaknesses and thereby secure the efficient functioning of our government in case of emergency.

Now, therefore, be it resolved that the Norwich Rotary club heartily approves the purpose and recognizes in every way it can the proper recognition of the day known as National Defense Day.

An invitation from the Norwich Lions club to attend a joint meeting of the Lions and Rotary club was accepted and the meeting will be held on the first Thursday in October. Lucius Briggs, chairman of the educational committee made a brief report outlining the plans of his committee for the coming months. Secretary Weymouth read the monthly communication from District Governor Alfred E. Lavery.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

LIFE'S BROKEN PLAYTHINGS

Beside a broken plaything
A child sat long ago,
And brushed away the tear-drops
That down his cheeks would flow.

And some that saw his sorrow
Passed on, and lightly smiled;
And only God remembered—
God, and that little child.

Oh, one by one have vanished
The years so filled with care,
The years with labors laden,
And burden hard to bear;

And now along the pathway,
Back toward his childhood days,
A man, at Memory's bidding,
Oft turns his longing gaze.

'Till lost in fond day-dreaming,
Once more he seems to see
In magic memory-pictures
The things that used to be.

And not in childhood only,
But scattered through the year,
There lie life's broken playthings,
Seen through a mist of tears.

Perhaps some time in heaven—
That land of cloudless day,
Where all earth's wrongs are righted,
And all tears wipe away,

The wise and loving Father,
Who knows each human pain,
Will mend life's broken playthings,
And give them back again.
—L. D. Tibbetts in Boston Transcript.

Autumn

Now that my way is toward the setting sun,
I enjoy that Autumn-time and I seem one;
And looking back along the ripened years
No day more fair than this, to me appears.

Aye, Spring was sweet, and gay with bursting flowers,
But ah, the storms of Youth—its April showers!
And summer, with her madd'ning moonlit skies,

But Autumn, like the mellowing touch of time,
Soothes me with gentle fingers—peace is mine.
And thoughts like tinted leaves of rose and gold,
Come to me, as the year and I grow old.
—Carmen H. McLaughlin in Kansas City Star.

DAWES EXPOSES FALLACY OF LAFOLLETTE PLATFORM

In Address at Milwaukee Mr. Dawes Asserted That the Purpose of Lafollette is to Vest Congress With Such Powers as to Make the Government the Plaything of Changing Political Parties — Maintained That the Lafollette Platform is Reactionary, Not Progressive—Would Undermine the Constitutional Foundation of the Government by Making the Executive and Judicial Branches Subordinate to the Legislative.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 11.—(By The A. P.) The LaFollette independent candidacy was attacked here in its organized stronghold tonight by Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential nominee, as "the quintessence of demagogism, animated by the single purpose of undermining the constitutional foundation of this republic."

Speaking in the Milwaukee auditorium, Mr. Dawes declared that "in the record of the clapping accompanying the LaFollette effort we can see one single purpose always in mind—the [illegible] the Constitution of the United States and those who would [illegible] essential laws," declaring the decision to be the greatest issue of the campaign, and appealed to Wisconsin to decide this [illegible] in full view of the record. [illegible] the first four years, has been [illegible] Wisconsin.

Mr. Dawes said he recognized that [illegible] when he [illegible] many men [illegible] disagreement but who [illegible] a menace."

[illegible] be opposed to certain [illegible] the existing order [illegible] opposed to the existing order [illegible] he added, "I warn them that they should not be deceived by the political phrases of this master demagogue, endeavoring to amalgamate them with the socialists, flying the red flag in an attack on the Constitution of our country.

"The republican candidate combined [illegible] look on the attitude of the whole movement toward the constitution as an assault on the statements of the Socialist LaFollette in his [illegible] Bay address.

In his strong appeal to the [illegible] and passions of the people, the [illegible] was unusual but in no other [illegible] asserted, "Never in the history of the United States, has the common sense of the average individual received a greater affront. LaFollette's speech should raise the question in the minds of the American people—'Does he consider us a race of fools?'"

Mr. Dawes in beginning his discussion of the LaFollette movement, which he characterizes as "the culmination of the most dangerous era of demagogism through which this country has ever passed," quoted the declaration in the LaFollette platform for a constitutional amendment providing that congress might by enacting a statute make it effective over a judicial veto.

"This proposition," he asserted, "is to abrogate the principle of threefold division of power—executive, legislative and judicial—which is the basis of our constitution, and make the executive and judicial power subordinate to the legislative power. It means that for our present form of government, we are to adopt another in which congress will predominate. The success of such a doctrine, which would mean that the constitution would be stripped of authority, would be disastrous, and government would become the plaything of changing political parties, with demagogues in the saddle."

The effect on the individual, Mr. Dawes told his audience, would be to place his bill of inalienable rights, evolved through centuries of struggle and conflict, "at the mercy of congres" and subject these rights to the threats of "mob action."

"The courts of the United States," he continued, "are the guardians of the inalienable rights of property and religious tolerance. They interpret laws passed by congress in their relation to those rights upheld by the constitution. What kind of a government would this be if congress had the right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he shall go to church, and undertaking to encroach upon the individual rights recognized by all civilization."

"The present constitutional government of the United States, Mr. Dawes said, provided in its system of checks and balances sufficient safeguard "to render certain that only the ultimate right and sound judgment of the people crystalizes into law."

"The government whose policy is determined by the ultimate judgment of the people will permanently survive," he added. "The government whose actions are determined by the passing phrases of popular opinion, as distinguished from ultimate opinion, will perish. The constitution of the United States establishes the rule of the people as distinguished from the rule of the mob."

Such doctrine could not be classed as reactionary, Mr. Dawes said, adding that all good citizens should condemn the reactionary as usually pictured—"one who stands against honest progress in government and in favor of some status quo from which he is supposed to derive an unfair individual benefit."

"The most dangerous reactionary is the man attacking the Constitution of the United States," he said. "Such a man would open the way for a condition of things under which again, in poverty, confusion and misery, the people must evolve among themselves, constitutional instruments of stable and free government, under which the inalienable rights of the individual one protected from the aggressions of the majority and from government itself. Let us not deceive ourselves! The doctrines of the socialists of the United States, headed in this campaign by Robert M. LaFollette, are the reactionary doctrines."

GUILTY OF THEFTS FROM CHICKENCOOPS ON FARMS

Bridgeport, Sept. 11.—Charged with having been implicated in scores of thefts from chickencoops on farms in Norwalk, New Canaan, Darien, Ridgefield, Stamford, Wilton and in New York state, over a long period, Peter Howard, 17, Frank Cook 22 and Fred Reddy, 21, of Ridgefield, pleaded guilty before Judge John W. Banks, in criminal superior court this afternoon to one specific count of theft.

Edward Howard, father of the [illegible] of the accused, charged in court with being the "master mind" of the theft plot covering two states, has been sentenced in the White Plains, N. Y. superior court to from five to eight years in the New York penitentiary for his part in the thefts as they concerned New York state.

Leniency for the three youths was asked by counsel because, they said, Howard, the elder had all three under his influence, forcing them to steal. His son, 17 years old, was described to be unable to read or write because of lack of proper home surroundings, and the boy's mother was declared to have been forced by Howard to accompany her son on some of the trips to pilfer coops.

Judge Banks deferred imposition of sentence until tomorrow morning.

GRANTED RIGHT TO ABANDON AN INTERURBAN LINE

Hartford, Sept. 11.—The public utilities commission in an order issued here today granted the Connecticut Company and the New York New Haven and Hartford railroad company the right to abandon the interurban line, run by the Connecticut company over the rails of the New Haven railroad between Rockville and East Hartford.

The decision follows the filing of a petition on June fifth in which the trolley company and the railroad company claimed they were losing $12,000 a year by operating the interurban line. It was pointed out that the Connecticut company is running a trolley line from Rockville to Hartford and that this line parallels the interurban line to be abandoned.

The June petition was the third filed in an attempt to secure permission to abandon the interurban line. The first was filed April 3, 1917 and a second on May 17, 1922. On the first two occasions the public utilities commission refused to grant permission to abandon the road when the city of Rockville and patrons on the line filed objections.

VIEWS OF CANDIDATE OF THE WORKERS' PARTY

Stamford, Sept. 11.—Benjamin Gitlow, vice presidential candidate of the workers' party, speaking here tonight, denounced the candidacy of Coolidge, Dawes, Davis, La Follette and Wheeler as being in the interest of capitalism as personified by the J. P. Morgan and company. He said that the third party as represented by La Follette was the growth and aim of the smaller capitalists and business men to cut in on the control of the country and to secure some of the monopoly on the earnings secured by the exploitation of the workers of America."

Gitlow denounced the records of each of the candidates of the three parties with the exception of Bryan on the democratic ticket. He did not mention the Nebraskan in any way. He was content to enumerate what he considered were the short comings of the other candidates and parties. He did not promise any legislation in case he was successful.

The Jacksonville (Ala.) State Normal School hereafter will issue no certificates to any students who smoke cigarettes, according to an announcement by President Daughette. This rule applies to both boys and girls.

Leopold And Loeb Are in Penitentiary

CONNECTICUT LIBRARY ASSN.

Were Accompanied on Trip by Sheriff and Half a Dozen Heavily Armed Deputies.

Joliet, Ill., Sept. 11.—(By the A. P.)—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb entered the gates of the Illinois state penitentiary at 7.54 o'clock tonight.

The two youthful murderers of Bobby Franks, were bundled into one of three waiting automobiles and whisked away on the forty mile trip which took them to prison. In the same car were five armed deputy sheriffs.

Heading the procession was Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman, with a half dozen other deputies, in another closed car. The deputies were armed with rifles and shotguns. The third automobile contained newspapermen.

Penitentiary, Joliet, Ill., Sept. 11—(By the A. P.)—Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, who killed 14 year-old Robert Franks for a thrill, narrowly missed possible death on their motor trip to prison tonight, the climax of their separation from society for the remainder of their natural life.

At the center of a five car convoy, traveling about 55 miles an hour, the powerful automobile carrying the two boys and deputy sheriffs was seen to swerve abruptly to the right, dive into the unballasted tracks of an electric railway, suddenly right itself and bounce fifty yards down the center of the right of way before it was stopped.

The brakes on the car ahead of the boys had burned and stuck, bringing it to an immediate stop. To avoid smashing into it, the driver of the Leopold-Loeb car gambled with death and steered at a right angle into the rails and ties.

Leopold and Loeb were unhurt, though badly jarred.

Deputy sheriffs shouldering shotguns and quickly leveling them at the principal car of the convoy, ordered a quick halt of the procession for an inspection.

An electric car which came into view was halted and its glaring searchlight focused upon the prisoner's car.

"Did you get a thrill out of that, Nathan?" a newspaper man shouted into the car. Leopold squirmed and laughed. He said nothing.

"How about you, Dickie?" the next query.

"I can't say anything," he replied.

The trip was quickly resumed but at a considerably reduced speed.

At the main prison gate the car containing the prisoners was surrounded by a cordon of armed deputies, the heavy gates opened wide enough to admit a man's body and in less than half a minute the young intellectuals were within the walls of the penitentiary and the doors closed behind them.

Entering the prison building nonchalantly, Loeb, who was ahead of his companion on the march through the yard, surveyed the dull grey room smilingly. A gleam of genuine interest showed in his features.

GEN. DUNN BECOMES HEAD OF VETS OF FOREIGN WARS

Atlantic City, Sept. 11.—By a vote of 454 to 336, Brigadier General John Dunn defeated Brigadier General Lloyd M. Brett for re-election as commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars late this afternoon. The Boston man won his victory on the third ballot after the name of Judge B. M. Holden of Hartford, Ct., had been dropped. Charles E. Dodson, of Norfolk, Va., was elected vice commander by acclamation.

The military career of General Dunn began when he enlisted in the Massachusetts militia in 1888. He served in Cuba and the Philippines, on the Mexican border in 1916, and as lieutenant colonel under Pershing in France. He was retired as brigadier general of the Massachusetts national guard in 1921.

ADDRESS IN DENVER BY DEM. NOMINEE DAVIS

Denver, Colo., Sept. 11.—(By the A. P.)—Putting to the people of Colorado and the west, "the plain question of honesty in government," John W. Davis asked them in an address here tonight to hold the republican party "to the accounting which is its due," on its record in the administration of the government.

Reviewing that record in some detail, particularly with reference to the leasing of the naval oil reserves and the handling of the reclamation problem, the democratic presidential candidate said he washed to keep constantly before the people of the United States the question of party government and party responsibility.

"Unless political parties can be be held to strict account," he declared, "party government itself is a base imposition and a fraud."

Accusing the republican party of having broken most of the promises made to the American people four years ago, Mr. Davis laid particular emphasis on the subjects of conservation and reclamation, as those artiking closest home to the people of this section.

This country recently placed a quarantine on cattle from Holland because of the hoof-and-mouth disease. As Niko was a perfectly sound animal and no contagion was to be feared from his passing through the infested region by airplane, France made an exception in this case.

Pershing's Advice on Day of Retirement

Believes We Should Look in Fair Weather to See How We Might Fare in a Storm.

New York, Sept. 11.—After 42 years active service, John J. Pershing, general of all of the armies of the United States and commander of the A. E. F., believes that "service is the highest gift of the individual to his country."

He expressed this belief in a signed statement addressed to his fellow soldiers on the eve of his retirement, published in the army's official paper, recruiting news, which made it public today.

Since the world war, General Pershing wrote to his fellow soldiers, the army has been brought closer to the people and has become almost as vital a peace agency as it has a war machine. "The popular mind has become disabused of the idea that fighting alone is the occupation of the soldier," he wrote, "and the great contribution of the army to the development and progress of the United States recognized and appreciated."

"On defense day, September 12, the date which marks my retirement, I shall have another consolation, one that will mitigate the thought of party, through the realization that the country has not allowed the lessons that cost so dearly in the world war to be forgotten. "With no malice, but with forethought that marks the wise man, we shall, I hope, look at ourselves in time of fair weather to see how we might fare in a storm."

"The Great war which put so many of our young men into their country's uniform awakened in patriotic breasts a feeling for the army, and interest in it and understanding in its real aims and purposes. The army's attitude toward its job has changed since the war. Service in peace or war has become the goal of its training, whether it be blazing an air route around the earth, or leading trucks and men to help an harassed and Christmas-package-smothered postmaster. Each man in the army should feel capable of expanding his usefulness, and, if necessary, becoming the instructor of an indefinite number of untrained men. That is the end eminently to be desired in all the activities of the army in times of peace.

"What a turning out of A. E. F. veterans the 12th will see. It would not be modesty but affectation if I did not recall with satisfaction having commanded the nation's great armies in the world war. And what patriotic, brave and aggressive men. What sacrifices and hardships they endured, that first American army that ever trod a battlefield of the old world. Such thoughts have been potent in inspiring the new spirit in the regular army. May that spirit continue to bring us the realization that service is the highest gift of the individual to his country."

DEFENSE DEMONSTRATION IS TO BE HUGE AFFAIR

Washington, Sept. 11—War department officials put last touches today to the detailed plans that will culminate tomorrow in a nation-wide demonstration of the decentralized defense machinery set up since the national defense act of 1920 was written.

In a formal statement today, issued on the eve of the first test of all the planning of the last four years, Secretary Weeks indicated that he found encouragement in the fact that it has been necessary, during the year in which plans have been maturing, to make very few changes in the original project. He empahsized the democratic character of the system, addding that its success depended wholly upon the wholehearted cooperation of civilians everywhere with the army authorities.

War department officials hesitated tonight to place any estimate upon the probable total of this voluntary enrollment. It may reach a million or more, if the estimates in the various corps areas are based on reliable information.

The aggregate number of men who turn out, however, is not a vital element of the test, officials say. The spread nature of the defense day exercises and the extent to which there is cooperation in all parts of every state, in cities, villages, towns or other groupings of population where reserve units have been allotted and reserve officers are assigned, is held to be of much greater importance from the standpoint of the officers charged with studying the results of the test with a view to correcting faults disclosed in the system.

The present organization tables of the army of the United States, which includes the regulars, National Guard, and organized reserves, provide for a total strength of about two million men. That is the aggregate of the three field armies for which provision has been made. If every unit of the three branches of the army was filled to war strength tomorrow that would be the aggregate of the defense test turn out. It is not anticipated, however, that every unit will be filled and local conditions in many cases make it impossible.

Both Secretary Weeks and General Pershing will talk over the radio tomorrow night, cooperation of the telephone and radio companies making it possible for 20,000,000 or more persons to hear what is said.

A BATTLE OF MAGNITURE IS IMPENDING IN CHINA'S WAR

Numbers of Wounded Are Arriving in Kashing, About Sixty Miles to the Southwest of Shanghai—Intermittent Rain Storms Have Checked the Hostilities of the Rival Armies on the "Eastern Front."

Shanghai, Sept. 11—(By the A. P.)—Indications that a major engagement in China's civil war is impending west of Tai Lake, about a hundred miles to the west of here, were supported with receipts of advices early today that numbers of wounded were arriving in Kashing, about 60 miles to the southwest, on the Shanghai-Hangchow railway.

The wounded, it was stated, are being taken into Kashing both from Huchow just south of Tai Lake, and from Kienping, further to the northwest, a short distance from the provincial border. Both towns are in Chekiang Province.

Intermittent rain storms in the low country around Shanghai in the past two days have checked the activities of the rival Kiangsu and Chekiang armies on the "eastern" fronts, and focused attention on the Tai Lake front, where Chekiang troops are trying to break through around the lake and cut off the Kiangsu source of supplies.

There was no fighting today.

FIGHTING TRANSFERRED TO THE "EASTERN FRONT"

Shanghai, Sept. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The center of interest in the Chinese civil war, active fighting in which thus far has been confined to armies of the Tuchuns, of Chekiang and Kiangsu, was transferred today from the sector immediately west of this city, referred to as the "eastern front" to the Tai lake district to the southwest.

Among the hills around Hangchow the Chekiang army is launching its chief offensive, driving towards the Shanghai-Nanking railway and the grand canal where they would strike the lines over which the Kiangsu armies are receiving their supplies and reinforcements.

The arrival of wounded at Kashing Chekiang from the Tai lake front indicate that the fighting has been some severity.

BRITISH RESERVATION IN COMPULSORY ARBITRATION

Geneva, Sept. 11—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain dramatically dropped a naval bomb into the Geneva conference today, and the new Anglo-French entente was appraised by many as approaching the character of an out and out aliance, when Sir Cecil Hurst, eminent jurist and British delegate, declared Great Britain's readiness to accept compulsory arbitration, provided she would not be brought into court because of some act of her navy performed in attempting to maintain or restore peace.

This declaration has set Geneva ago more than anything since premiers Macdonald and Herriot committed themselves in principle to the settlement of any and all disputes by obligatory arbitration by some world tribunal or tribunals.

The English reservation was interpreted as meaning that once the British navy begins to operate, her right of search and capture, which formed the subject of controversy between the United States and England before the United States entered the great war, cannot be questioned juridically.

The British statement is being given special attention because of the announced intention of the American government to adhere to the world court of justice, whose compulsory arbitration clause is under consideration. The effect of the announcement is that if the British reservation is accepted by the other powers, continental countries, led by France, will not only get economic help from England as part of the proposed pact of security or sanctions, but also he full and immense support of the British fleets in case any country in defiance of an arbitral decision, opens hostilities and attacks another state.

Sir Cecil declared that the British reservation suggested was not a machiavellian subterfuge. In times past there had existed an idea that Great Britain was the tyrant of the seas. Yet, he said, the British delegation was only seeking to discover some method whereby the great cause of organized peace and security could be advanced on terms insuring general progress.

The British representative was addressing the league commission which is studying revision of the world court compulsory arbitration clause and the covenant clauses referring to the settlement of disputes.

SON OF BRITISH PREMIER WAS VISITOR IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 11.—The Prince of Wales probably would have preferred to inform news reporters—had he known it—that Malcolm MacDonald, son of Great Britain's premier, was a visitor in New York this week.

His highness is reputed to shun publicity. He and his parents are pictured as constantly scheming to get the news hounds off his trail. It might have set a part of the press on young Macdonald's heels if he had been able to tip the reporters that the prime minister's son was here.

But he didn't and it was disclosed only today that Macdonald came here, via Canada, as England's representative of the Oxford Union, to debate with 17 colleges in the United States and Canada.

He spent a day as guest of Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. He visited a section of model apartments in construction in Brooklyn, he took a lesson in home management, visited Columbia University, the stock exchange and the J. Pierpont Morgan Library of valuable manuscripts and pictures, and he was guest of honor at a banker's club luncheon given by Albert H. Wiggin, president of the Chase National bank and attended by a score of Wall street luminaries such as Otto Kahn, Dwight Morrow of J. P. Morgan and Company, Gerard Tripp, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company and John D. Ryan, the copper man.

Last Tuesday Macdonald inspected the steel works at Bethlehem, Pa. Now he is in Washington, D. C., visiting the British embassy and Secretary of State Hughes before returning to Canada to prepare for his next debate of the collegiate societies at Chicago university.

His greatest desire was to avoid publicity as far as could be learned, he did not attend a theatre, a dinner dance, a yachting party, a horse show or a polo game. Nor did he express any particular enthusiasm for the international series of polo, the impending Firpo-Wills match, nor Long Island fox hunts.

FITZGERALD HEADS NEW HAVEN DEM. DELEGATION

New Haven, Sept. 11.—New Haven's 44 delegates to the democratic state convention to be held in Hartford next Wednesday and Thursday met tonight and elected the member of the various convention committees. Mayor Fitzgerald was named head of the city delegation.

There was little talk of the probable democratic nominee for governor at the meeting. Mayor Alfred N. Phillips, Jr., of Stamford, in a statement declared that he was a candidate for the lieutenant governor nomination and that he would accept the gubernatorial nomination if it was offered to him.

Mayor Fitzgerald made no public announcement of his intentions as to the nominations, merely stating that his private work and his municipal duties were keeping him too busy to think of other things.

WILLIMANTIC

Two manslaughter cases were disposed of and Philip Pagano of this city, charged with violation of the liquor law, was sentenced to jail and fined at the session of the Windham county superior court here Thursday. Fred Iuzvick of this city, charged with manslaughter and assault resulting in injury to his mother-in-law and wife and the death of his sister-in-law, Odella Marcoux ten days later, was to have been tried by a jury, but the disposition of the case took place without calling the jury. On the belief that the evidence on the charge of manslaughter was not strong enough, State's Attorney Searls agreed that that count be nolled, but he said that he would press the charge of assault. An autopsy failed to show conclusively that the woman had died from the assault and the court nolled the charge of manslaughter. Luzvick, whose past record was said to have been a clean one, pleaded guilty to the charge of assault and Judge Hinman imposed a sentence of four months in the county jail at Brooklyn.

The case of Felix McMahon of Jewett City, charged with manslaughter and driving while under the influence of liquor, was resumed. The case was started in court Wednesday and is the outcome of an alleged booze party and midnight ride which ended when his automobile overturned in the early morning hours of June 26, last, resulting in the death of Mrs. Mary Bennett, of Jewett City.

McMahon, the defendant, concluded his testimony by stating that Canaban and Blanche Petrola were to blame for the accident, insomuch as they leaned over his shoulder and pulled at the steering wheel. He was traveling about 35 miles an hour when the two caused the machine to zigzag and nearly collide with an approaching car. The Petrola woman had a grip of the wheel when the car went to the left of the road, where it got into soft dirt and overturned. McMahon was pinned under the machine and was released by Ferguson and Callahan. The taking of evidence in the case came to a close and Attorney Howard Bradford opened the argument for the state. He was followed by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey and William A. King for the defendant. State's Attorney Searls closed the arguments for the state. Stating that he had carefully summed up the case Judge Hinman announced that he could not find any evidence that McMahon was guilty of gross negligence in driving the car and that there was no evidence to show that he had been intoxicated at any time during the evening, or at the time of the accident. McMahon was pronounced not guilty of both charges and was discharged by Judge Hinman.

At the opening of the session at 10 a. m. the calling of the jury took place. Four out of the twenty-four names on the list failed to answer to the roll call. The panel was excused until 2 o'clock to hear the Pagano liquor case. The jury was picked to hear the case.

On Saturday, February 9, last, Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officers William J. Considine, Harry W. Avery and Seaton L. Beazley of this city and Deputy Prohibition Director William E. Jackson raided the store and tenement on Main street, then occupied by Pagano. An officer of the local police department remained on duty at the building while the raid took place. Officer Harry W. Avery came out of the closet in the store with a pint bottle containing some six ounces of liquor and Pagano immediately accused him of planting the evidence and claimed that he had seen the officer put the bottle into the closet. Counsel for Investigator Jackson took up the argument with Pagano and while on the way to the police station Jackson said that Pagano was abusive and threatening and that he had to strike first to avoid being hit himself. Pagano said that Investigator Jackson struck him on two different occasions, once in the store, twice on the way to the police station, a distance of two hundred yards and again at police headquarters. Pagano's case in the local police court was delayed on the appearance of United States marshal who took the case before U. S. commissioner at East Manchester, Norwich where he was bound over to the federal grand jury under bonds of $300.

On March 4 Pagano was represented in police court by Attorney King who entered a demurrer to a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell, which was overruled by Judge Foss and a fine of $200 and costs and jail sentence was imposed. Pagano gave notice of an appeal. At the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Hardy it was learned that one of the principal witnesses purchasing liquor at Pagano's store, a charge of selling liquor was dropped in the court. Pagano has 11 other charges of assault against Officer Jackson and in police court the latter demurred and was given a nominal fine. He took an appeal to the superior court and the case is now on the docket of the superior court.

Court recessed for luncheon and reopened at 2.35 o'clock. Attorneys King of this city and Jacob Ichwolsky of Hartford representing Pagano and noticed the court that their client desired to change his plea from not guilty to guilty, on the charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell, the first count, and to plead nolo contendre on the third count of keeping with intent to sell on another date that appeared in the first count. Reprimanding Pagano for waiting so long before changing his plea and making it plain that the ends of the court were to stop the custom of selling liquor, Pagano was given what the court deemed a fairly moderate penalty, considering the violations involved. On the first count Pagano was sentenced to 20 days in the county jail along with a fine of $200 and costs and on the third count a suspended thirty day jail sentence was imposed. At the expiration of the first jail sentence Pagano is to be placed on probation for six months and he is to pay the probation fees. In the police court last March Pagano was fined $200 and costs and sentenced to ten days in jail.

Judge Hinman thanked the jury for the excellent attendance and then notified them to report at Putnam this (Friday) morning a t10.30 o'clock when he would endeavor to relieve them for the remainder of the term, or at least excuse those whose business was most urgent. With the closing of Thursday's session at 2.45 p. m., all Willimantic cases on the present docket had been cleaned up.

He pleaded guilty through his guardian ad litem, S. Arnold Peckham. State Policeman Keith of Danielson barracks arrested Blouen on the North Windham road, Wednesday, when attracted by the manner in which the young man drove the machine. TELLS DYSPEPTICS WHAT TO EAT

Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble, say medical authorities, are due nine times out of ten to an excess of hydrchloric acid in the stomach. Chronic "acid stomach" is exceedingly dangerous and sufferers should do either one of two things.

Either they can go on a limited and often disagreeable diet, avoiding foods that disagree with them, that irritate the stomach and lead to excess acid secretion or they can eat as they please in reason and make it a practice to counteract the effect of the harmful acid and prevent the formation of gas, sourness or premature fermentation by the use of a little Bisurated Magnesia, at their meals.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antacid than Bisurated Magnesia and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and it is not a digestent. But a teaspoonful of the powder in a little water with the food will neutralize the excess acidity which may be present and prevent its further formation. This removes the whole cause of the trouble and the meal digests naturally and healthfully without need of pepsin pills or artificial digestents.

Get a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia from any reliable druggist. Ask for either powder or tablets. It never comes as a liquid, milk or citrate and in the bisurated form is not a laxative. Try this plan and eat what you want at your next meal and see if this isn't the best advice you ever had on "what to eat."

Palace Theater

Dante, the eminent European magician, who has recently come to this country, will be presented under the management of Thurston, famous American magician, at the Palace theater, for three days beginning Monday, Sept. 15th. Reserved seats are now on sale.

King Christian of Denmark, an ardent lover of magic, has invited him to the royal palace in Copenhagen many times, where he has given performances before his royal patron and the members of the court.

Dante has also given his presentations of mysteries and illusions before King Albert of Belgium and the members of his entourage at the royal palace in Brussels, before King Alfonso in Madrid and the Prince of Wales and his entourage in London.

Featured among his own marvelous European creations and the Thurston-Kellar mysteries and illusions which Dante presents are, the mysterious Chinese Fountain of myriad streams, a spectacle of ancient oriental splendor. Also such enthralling wonders as Creation, the Phantom Woman, the Miracle, the Great East Indian Rope Trick, the Vanishing Pianoand the Lady and the Lion, the Spirit Cabinet, and a score of other weird, mystical effects bordering on the supernatural.

Palace Theater

With Wallace Beery as the star, Unseen Hands is the current attraction at the Palace. It is a thriller in every sense of the word, with Beery doing the best work of his career. Unseen Hands is adapted from an original story by Walker Coleman Graves Jr., and tells the unusual story of a man, who fell in love with a beautiful woman and in order to ply love without any interruption, causes her husband to die when he turns off the electric lights during an operation that would have saved his life. The scenes open in Northern France and then shift to the United States with some exciting climaxes taking place in an old Spanish rancho in Arizona. In the cast appear Joseph Dowling, Fontaine LaRue, Cleo Madison, Jack Rollins and Jamie Grey. Jacques Jaccard directed the picture.

Added attractions, Sport Light, Earl Hurd, cartoons and New Telephone Girl story, No. 3, with bewitching Alberta Vaughn.

Broadway Theater

What was considered as one of the best programs of the year was presented at the Broadway theater yesterday. An all star bill of Keith vaudeville and pictures was featured.

Harry Gee Haw, the celestial impressionist, offered a very cleverly constructed monologue after which he gave a splendid program of his impressions of how George Arliss, Johnny Ford, Eddie Cantor, Al Johnson, et. al. appears on the stage.

Jack Hughes Duo, the versatile instrumental virtuoso offered a surprising concert act. They are accomplished with trumpets, banjos, violins, piano and saxaphones. They are artists of an exceptional sort.

Opportunity for laughter was unlimited when Jack George and Mae Normandie offered a comedy skit entitled Two Bits.

The Operatic Duo, who are equilibrists, closed the vaudeville program with a series of sensational feats.

Anna Q. Nilson gives another fine portrayal to the screen in her presentation of the role of Fay Leslie in Innocence, the new motion picture at the Broadway theater. Her acting of this role adds another triumph to Miss Nilson's career, which has been distinguished by much fine work. Her recent successes have been in Poniola, Thundering Dawn, and The Spoilers.

Strand Theater

Wanderer of the Wasteland, a Zane Grey Paramount production, directed by Irvin Willat and featuring Jack Holt, Kathlyn Williams, Noah Beery and Billie Dove, comes to the Strand on Monday next to remain for three days.

Even if it weren't for the great story it really is, you should go see this picture just for the novelty of the thing. Remember, it's the very first really practical all-color production to be shown on the screen anywhere. But it's more than just a novelty—much more. It's Zane Grey's greatest story brought to life. They say you can even see the different shades of sunburn on the players!

Skeptical? Why not take it in?

Breed Theater

Tom Mix faces more perils than the well known Pauline herself in Eyes of the Forest, his latest William Fox starring vehicle, which is the feature at the Breed theater today and tomorrow.

How close he came to being blown to the place where all good movie actors go may be realized from the fact that about two hundred pebbles were extracted from his back as the results of the premature explosion of dynamite in one scene in which the roadway was blasted. But Tom, rode through on Tony, and finished the scene, despite his wounds.

At another time in the picture, Mix, riding to escape a vicious band of lumber thieves, leaps from Tony to an airplane. He clutches the axle between the landing wheels of the plane, which dives to within ten feet of the ground and is lifted thousands of feet into the air to "safety."

There are other stunts performed by the intrepid Tom that are said to exceed in daring anything he has attempted heretofore.

Other pictures on the bill include William Duncan in The Fast Express, Round the world with America's Army Fliers, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

Music of the Week.

At last Americans are to have the long-anticipated opportunity of hearing Toti Dal Monte, the famous coloratura soprano of the celebrated La Scalt Opera Company of Milan. Her first records appear this week, in anticipation of her first personal appearance in the United States which is scheduled to take place this month in San Francisco, whence she has come direct from her most recent triumph with the Melba Opera Company in Australia. Later this year she will make her debut with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Dal Monte makes her initial bow to American music lovers with the always-popular "Mad Scene" from the beautifully melodious "Lucia di Lammermoor"—being heard, on one side in Part I (Round Us, the Guests Assembled) and on the other side, Part II (Cast on My Grave a Flower) of the same number.

A good many of the lighter songs of the day are deserving of much better interpretation than they so often get. Happily two such compositions—"What'll I Do," by Irving Berlin and "Love Has a Way" by Victor L. Schertzinger, are escaping that fate through the beautiful voice of Frances Alda, who sings these two light and gracious waltz songs with all the charm that is so characteristic of her work.

If you are one of these delightfully frank human beings who admit—aye, even assert, that you still like the "old tunes" as well as the new ones, you will welcome Frika Morini's two new violin records—"Flower Song" and "Hearts and Flowers." Incidentally you will enjoy these numbers not lolly because of the favorite old melodies that they are but for the really excellent technical skill which the artist displays.

Two of them—"The Chantyman's March" and "Ancient and Hoflorable Artillery Company—March.", composed by the great march king—John Phillip Sousa, and played as only Sousa's band can play his stirring compositions. The former is based on a group of chanteys or old-time sailormen's songs, while the latter is dedicated to the famous old Boston Mill tary organization.

Two additional march records made by the Victor band especially for promenaders or "get-together" marches at community gatherings, are included in this week's list. Known as "Popularity March—Part I" and "Part II" they include such familiar airs as "Washington Post March," "Up the Street March," "American Patrol," "When the Guards Go By," "The Assembly" and "Yale Boola" "Estudiatina" and "Carmena"—both favorite Spanish waltzes for years, are now heard in an entirely new arrangement—a whole light opera company, in fact, the popular Victor Mixed Chorus, with solos, choruses, castanets and a big orchestra.

The Shannon Quartet will win new popularity with "I Wonder What's Become of Sally?" which as might be expected introduces a strain of "Sally In Our Alley," and includes a tenor love song. On the other side of this record is another, the popular Henry Burr's appealing solos, "I'd Love You All Over Again." Paul Whiteman and his irresistible orchestra offer two new fox trots—"Somebody Loves Me" and "Lonely Little Melody" — the former from "George White's Scandals" and the latter from "Ziegfeld Follies."

"Comes then"—as they say in the cinema, Art Hickman's orchestra with two more new fox trots, and exceptionally tuneful ones, too—"Patsy" and "G'wan With It."

Say it quick—"Helen Gone" is the new fox trot with vocal refrain, contributed by Vincent Rose and His Montmartre orchestra, with "Rip Saw Blues," another fox trot offered by Art Landry and his orchestra.

Strand Theater

Local film fans present last night at the Strand theatre had the pleasure of welcoming back to pictures one of screendom's most popular luminaries. After an absence of more than a year William Farnum returned to the world of lights and shadows in The Man Who Fights Alone, his first starring vehicle under the Paramount banner.

The picture was adapted by Jack Cunningham from the powerful story The Miracle of Hate by William Blacke and James Shelley Hamilton. It is a gripping drama of a strong, virile he-man, a civil engineer who becomes warped in soul and body by a strange combination of circumstances, in which all the people he loves best — his wife, his child and his best friend—seem to become his enemies.

Lois Wilson, lovelier than ever, is featured in the principal feminine role opposite the star. Edward Horton also has a featured role as the "other man." He gives an unusually excellent account of himself. Others in the strong supporting cast include Barlowe Borland, Lionel Belmore, George Irving, Dawn O'Day, Rose Tapley and Frank Farrington.

What more need be said for the direction than that Wallace Worsley who made the Hunchback of Notre Dame is responsible for the production.

By all means see this one!

A new Andy Gump comedy and news were the short subjects.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Someone who contributed an item, printed under the Plainfield news in The Bulletin Thursday morning, and pertaining to the Moosup Pond casino, did not get all his facts straight. As to the state police closing the place, the statement was 100 per cent wrong. The state police did nothing of the kind. The Casino was closed by the manager on his own initiative. Sergeant Field, officer in charge at the Danielson barracks, is authority for this statement, and he requested Thursday that this matter be made clear.

Sergeant Field said that the manager of the Moosup Pond Casino had conferred with the state police relative to the difficulty being experienced at the pond in keeping everything as orderly as it was desired should be the case there. After the talk, and in view of the fact that the end of the Casino dancing season was near at hand—only two or three more dance nights being scheduled—the management, of its own free will, decided to close the Casino.

These are the facts. The Casino was not closed by the state police. Such an impression should not be allowed to gain ground.

The management of the Casino did its best to keep the place orderly and inviting. There were difficulties, however, largely arising from the isolated location of the dance hall and its wooded surroundings, that made this an extremely onerous task. It was finally determined by the management that closing for the season was the best way to solve the problem. The state police did not force this solution, either by order or suggestion. In justice to everyone concerned this statement is published.

Let her, for the purpose of this little item, be called Miss Lucky Strike. She lives out at Danville. She has just received $1,000. It came to her through a clearance certificate, or something of that kind. It's the biggest prize of the kind ever taken down by a lucker in this immediate vicinity, in so far as can be recalled. Rest of it—the little girl needs the money. She is represented as being a thorough-going little worker, bearing a large share of the family problems of support. In her case a day dream came true. Her friends wish that her figure might have been ten times as great.

The temperature touched 40 degrees in Danielson and vicinity, early Thursday morning, giving owners of unharvested field crops that are particularly tender a bit of worry over the possibility of frost.

Dr. Hugh B. Camobell of Norwich is about to resume his monthly clinics in Danielson, coming to the health station in the town hall building next Tuesday from 9 to 12 o'clock.

Gurdon E. Withey added another five points to his team's score in the Danielson Rod and Gun club when he brought down a large hawk on Thursday morning. The hawk had a wing spread of about five feet.

Two motor vehicles, both pleasure cars, came near to disaster Tuesday morning when the Interstate truck was wrecked at Dolly Cole bridge at Hopkins Mills. The driver of one car was negotiating the racing track down the hill had a race for life to keep ahead of the big truck, which is believed to have been going at least 50 miles an hour, opening, when it struck the bridge abutment.

There likely will be a very general display of flags in Danielson today—Defense day—by those who believe that a militant spirit still remains essential to the safety of the nation.

A sidewalk corner has been cut off and will be rounded out, a fine improvement, at the corner of Main and Academy streets, where Attorney Arthur G. Bill is having a new sidewalk built along the frontage of property that he owns at that point.

In the first district of the town of Killingly, which includes Danielson, 151 applications to be made voters have been received and in the second district of the town 100 additional applications have been filed. Up to Thursday afternoon registrars here had not received any reports as to the number of applications received in the third district—the East Killingly section of the town.

Republicans of Killingly will name their candidates for town offices this evening, and tomorrow the democrats and the citizens' party will do likewise. The stake then will be set for the annual campaigning that precedes the town election, held on the first Monday in October.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Comiskey arriving today from Westboro, where they have operated a summer resort during the past season, and Miss Nellie Sullivan of Hartford are to be week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy.

And now the report is that a hooded order is going to clean up the neighboring town of Foster; i. e., that instead of having two stones to one dirt, Foster is to be made a land of milk and honey and righteousness.

Danielson does not get much street music of late, but the "ladder man" hit town with his cornet Thursday afternoon, and tuned things up a bit for a time. Ladders ought to sell good just now—there are so many climbers after political plums.

Talk about the disappearance of snow before the warm sun of early spring! A weak comparison to the manner in which bathing girls have disappeared from the windshields of automobiles since New England states hereabouts have said that the drivers of cars bearing such devices would be liable to arrest. The bathing girls have simply vanished into winter quarters. But it was getting too cold for them, anyway.

W. Irving Bullard of Boston was in Danielson Thursday to attend the annual meeting of the Quinebaug company and the annual meeting of the Wauregan company.

Attorney E. L. Darbie, Henry Lague, Thomas J. Aylward and N. Lorne Greig were members of the Killingly delegation Thursday afternoon to the meeting of representatives of towns in the 28th senatorial district to elect, at Putnam, a successor to G. Harold Gilpatric on the republican state central committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Eloi Getty of Fougement, P. Q., are visiting friends in Danielson for a few days. Mr. Getty for many years was engaged in business in Danielson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Burrowe have closed their cottage at Oakland Beach for the thirty-second season, and have returned to their home here. They are among the oldest cottagers at the Rhode Island shore resort and built the first cottage in the section where they own property.

A big motor truck bearing a New York registration and decorated with flags, carried a delegation of the Sons and Daughters of Liberty through Danielson Thursday morning.

Tonight (Friday) the officers and enlisted men of the Service battery will observe Defense day by holding a regular drill and by receiving their pay checks for their camp service, recently performed.

PUTNAM

All of the school and stores in the city will close this (Friday) afternoon and business will come to a standstill for the observance of National Defense Day. The committee in charge of the arrangements has perfected the following program for the afternoon:

G., member of the G. A. R., in automobiles; Anselm Mayotte Post, American Legion; High Schole cadets; Engineers company (recruited for one day); Putnam fire department; Wappaquasette Tribe of Red Men, Putnam band.

Dr. E. F. Perry will be marshal and the line of march will be, South Main street to Front street, to Main street to Providence street to School street, to high school athletic field.

Under the supervision of Captain John J. McGarry of the Headquarters company, Lieutenant Rosario Beausoliel and Private Francis Murphy athletic events will be staged following the parade. These will include a mile road race, 250 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 50 yard dash, running high jump, running broad jump, and shot put for men; 50 yard dash, potato race and baseball throw for women. Ribbons will be awarded the winners and the events are open to all. There will be a tug-of-war between the firemen and member of Headquarters company.

Evening classes at the Putnam State Trade school are to begin Monday, October 6th. This school affords, without tuition, machine shop practice, tool making, carpentry, cabinet making, weaving, loom fixing, cloth analysis and design, yarn calculations, electricity—theory and practice, architectural and mechanical drafting, shop mathematics, building estimating, millinery and dressmaking and unit courses in various phases of cooking. The enrollment at the day school is the largest since the school opened. Enrollment night for the night classes is Friday, Octobr 3rd, 7.30 to 9.30 o'clock.

The superior court will come in at Putnam this (Friday) morning at the o'clock and will be opened on the civil side, with Judge William M. Maltbie presiding. After the short calendar list is disposed of and assignments made adjournment will be taken and the criminal session will be opened, Judge George E. Hinman presiding. The court will continue in session paying no attention to National Defense day and Putnam's half holiday.

The jury will be in attendance and the three cases assigned for trial are all Putnam cases. Frank W. Russell, held for the superior court by the Putnam city court, probable cause being found when he was arraigned on a charge of perjury, is the first case on the list. The second is that of Zepherin Bergeron, who appealed from a conviction of a violation of the liquor law in the city court. The third case is that of Patrolman John T. Ryan of the Putnam police force who is charged with violation of the liquor law. This case is of especial interest in Putnam and will draw a large gathering of spectators to the court room.

The opening gun in the local republican campaign was fired Thursday night when the first rally of the G. O. P. was held in Odd Fellows' hall with a good sized audience, including a large number of women voters, to hear Hon. W. O. Conway of New York speak on national issues and compare the principles of the parties.

The rally was held under the auspices of the Putnam Coolidge club and the chairman, Miss Clara Larned, presided.

The speaker of the evening was met at the railroad station by a reception committee composed of John A. Dady, chairman of the republican town committee; A. Macdonald, Jr., and Dr. G. T. Lamarche, who escorted him to the Putnam Inn for dinner.

As the gathering was arriving an orchestra, furnished music and campaign songs, written by Miss Anna Levitt, including a rally song and a Coolidge song, were sung during the evening.

Miss Larned welcomed the gathering and presented the speakers. Miss Katherine Byrne, of Putnam, vice chairman of the state central committee, spoke briefly. Mr. Conway's speech was punctuated with applause and the meeting developed into a most enthusiastic one as the evening progressed.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, has submitted his report for August as follows:

"The repairs ordered at the May meeting, including redecorating the the high school and Israel Putnam school assembly halls, taking out a partition in the superintendent's office and adding a men's room in the Israel Putnam school have been completed satisfactorily. The work of painting the State Trade school is in progress.

"School opened with more pupils in all buildings than on the first day last year. The enrollment figures for the opening day have appeared in the public press. All rooms are on a comfortable working basis, except the upper grade room in the Sawyer school. This has 52 pupils enrolled in grades 5, 6 and 7. The room will not accommodate over 35 pupils. I recommend that the platoon plan be put into operation similar to the plan now in operation in grades 1 and 2 at the County Home. I have taken up with the county commissioners the matter of employing an extra teacher for that school.

"Cards have been sent to all pupils entering school who have not been vaccinated and the school physician will begin the work of vaccinating such of these pupils as desire it. Others will be vaccinated by their own physicians.

"Putnam High school is beginning a most promising year. The work of organization was completed in an unusually short time and next week the pupils will be in readiness to commence the years work in earnest."

Miss Sybella Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gilman, of Ravine street, is teaching in the public school at North Grosvenordale. Miss Gilman is a graduate of Putnam high school, class of 1922 and of Baypathe Institute, last June.

The republican women of Pomfret are to organize a Woman's Coolidge club. There is such a club in nearly every town in Windham county.

E. L. Davis has been up from his summer cottage at Lord's Point for a few days. He will soon close his cottage and store at the beach.

CITIZENS' BANK CHARTER TO BE GRANTED, THE RUMOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 11.—It became, unofficially, known in Putnam Thursday afternoon, that the CiCtizens' National Bank of Putnam, is to be granted a charter. In a despatch from Washington, relayed to a member of the citizens' committee, it was stated that the charter would probably be granted immediately. Since that time nothing official has been received, according to Judge M. H. Geissler, chairman of the committee. Judge Geissler admitted that he had learned that the charter was to be granted and seemed pleased at the prospect. As a number of the citizens' committee, which was empowered at a mass meeting to go ahead and take the necessary steps to organize a new bank, are out of the city Judge Geissler said that he did not anticipate a meeting being held before Friday night, for which time a meeting had already been called.

While pleased at the unofficial news, the committee members are awaiting to be officially notified, as it may be that some provisos are attached to the granting of the charter.

If it is possible the new bank to take over the sound assets of the old bank, it would relieve the receiver of a considerable amount of work by disposing of these assets in the entirety rather than in small or individual lots.

As soon as it became known that the charter was to be granted there was an expression in certain quarters that Putnam might eventually have two banks, but this is only speculation at this time. However, the news of the afternoon portends that Putnam will have banking facilities at an early date.

Stock subscriptions to the amount of $200,000 received so that this feature has been taken care of. Members of the committee admitted that they were not prepared for the news of the granting of a charter so soon and were not prepared to discuss details of future steps to perfect a banking organization.

Recovering somewhat from the shock following the announcement that the shortage at the First National bank was $700,000 the aspect was slightly brighter. It was a freely expressed opinion that in making up this total all documents of evidence of indebtedness of the least bit doubtful nature had been included in the grand total. It is now the belief that there will be a substantial salvage from investments that have been put in the loss column and that an encouraging amount will be realized to reduce the estimated total shortage.

Nathan D. Prince, Hartford banker, and John B. Byrne, state bank commissioner, with Attorney J. F. Carpenter, who has been acting for the stockholders of the old bank, went into the bank about three o'clock this afternoon, upon the arrival of Prince and Byrne from Hartford. The committee was granted the privilege of checking up the assets of the bank by the representative of the comptroller of the currency at the meeting, Tuesday evening, when that permission was requested. It is believed that the large shortage disclosed Tuesday night dispelled all hope of reorganizing the old bank. It is also said that 100 per cent. assessment of the sctockholders of the bank will not be collectible in its entirety, that probably a third of the amount will be collectible. This would bring the amount to be realized from this source from $150,000 to $100,000.

While Putnam is still rocking from the shock it has sustained within the month, the citizens are going forward in an effort to readjust business conditions as rapidly as passible. It is fully realized that Putnam can not emerge in a day, a week, a month or even a year from under the cloud now hanging threateningly over it; but the people have made up their minds to be patient and have not lost an iota of confidence in the ultimate salvation of their home city.

It takes a strong-minded spinster to believe that the reason men don't propose to her is because she never gives them a chance.

MRS. MORAN WOULD GO FROM HOUSE TO HOUSE

"If it was so I could, I would go from house to house and tell everybody what a grand, good medicine Tanlac is," is the appreciative statement of Mrs. Lina Moran, 5 Leighton Ave., Portland, Me.

"Before taking Tanlac I hardly had energy and strength to dress and go up town. I had no appetite, a little exertion would get me all out of breath, and my heart would palpitate until it frightened me. My nerves were so excited I couldn't sleep half the night and I felt so worn-out during the day that my housework was a burden to me.

"I had become discouraged almost to despair, but three bottles of Tanlac increased my weight 9 lbs. and left me looking and feeling like a new person. Tanlac has won my lifelong praise."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Danny Fox Gets Hit

"Now I've got you," snarled crafty Danny Fox, drawing closer to Little Jack Rabbit, who had suddenly met this wicked old robber in the last story, you remember, little reader.

"Oh dear, Oh dear," sobbed the little frightened bunny boy, "Mother will never see her little rabbit again."

"Yes she shall," shouted a friendly voice, and the next minute, cracko!

right on Danny Fox's cocoa fell Mrs. Squirrel Nutcracker's flat-iron,—the one which she used, you know, to iron clothes.

"Blinkerty blink! went the old fox's eyes. Crinkerly crink! turned his long, bushy tail. Wabberly jink! shivered his four legs, and the next minute the bunny boy had hopped right over Danny Fox.

"I fear I've lost my flat-iron, but I've saved the little rabbit," exclaimed the good lady squirrel watching the old fox rub his eyes. "I hope he doesn't see it."

"Whew-" growled Danny Fox, feeling the bump on his head. "Who hit me, I wonder," and he looked about him. All of a sudden he noticed the flat-iron.

"Flat-irons don't grow on trees like nuts," he grumbled. Then he looked up into the tree nearly "Ah, ha!" he exclaimed. "Squirrel Nutcracker's bungalow is up there. Now I have it," and picking up the iron he started off for his little rocky house on the wooded hillside.

"Maybe Mrs. Fox can use it," he said to himself. "At any rate Mrs. Nutcracker shan't have it. I'll teach her a lesson not to throw things at honest folk."

Just then a voice began to sing:

'Old Danny Fox has a bump on his head
As big as a wooden wash tub.
He'd better go home and ask Mrs. Fox
To give it a rubby, rub, rub."

"Keep quiet, whoever you are," snapped Danny Fox, stopping short to find out who it might be.

"Why not?" asked Danny Fox angrily. "I have two pretty good eyes, let me tell you. And a set of mighty sharp teeth you'll find out quick if I catch you."

"Well, I'll give a wiggle," answered the voice, and the next minute the sharp eyes of Danny Fox saw Tommy Treetoad clinging to a limb overhead. So like its color was the little toad that only the wiggle had caught the old fox's eyes.

"Botheration," growled Danny Fox. "I've no time to waste on a midget like you," and away he went up the hillside to his rocky little bungalow.

"Gracious me!" exclaimed Mrs. Fox, on seeing the bump. "I must rub on Dr. Quack's famous Pond Lily Salve," and she hurried to the medicine chest. After that she tied a linen cloth over Danny Fox's head and made him lie down on the divan.

"I always have bad luck when I try to catch Little Jack Rabbit," he sighed, and closing his eyes, he fell asleep to dream that he had caught a big fat duck and was on his way home when, chimpferty, thump! something hit him on the head.

FORMER HEALTH COMMISSIONER RECOMMENDS FRENCH DISCOVERY TO TAKE OFF FAT

Dr. J. J. RUDOLPH and other Physicians advise SAN-GRI-NA for FAT PEOPLE.

Up to now, reducing had been an almost unsolvable problem. It was either a question of losing a few pounds and ruin your health with dangerous drugs or remain fat. To-day a French physician of unquestionable reputation has to his credit a discovery called "SAN-GRI-NA," which quickly does away with most obstinate cases of obesity and at the same time improves the health and appearance and rejuvenates the entire system. "I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' not only a remarkable fat reducer," says Dr. Rudolph, former health commissioner, but I advise it as a general tonic and health-builder for fat people." Physicians here used "SAN-GRI-NA" themselves, and have prescribed it to their immediate family and patients, thus proving that it is absolutely harmless and effective. "SAN-GRI-NA" is a small tablet which should be taken three times a day. It does not contain any dangerous drugs, and has been used by the discoverer in his own practice with most remarkable success. It is now recommended and sold in America, by reliable druggists only, with guarantee of satisfaction or money refunded. "SAN-GRI-NA" does not reduce fat people over night. There is no miracle about it. It is a safe, gradual loss of flesh which varies from 4 to 6 pounds a week, leaving the patient stronger and healthier with every pound of fat lost. No flabby tissues or wrinkles will follow the use of "SAN-GRI-NA."

READ THIS LETTER

"For years I had tried everything advertised to reduce, but without success—I weighed 180 pounds, and was considered a most obstinate case of obesity. I had spent a small fortune on pills, creams, girdles, etc., but they never helped me; then I found out about 'SAN-GRI-NA.' I used it for eight weeks and lost 38 pounds; at the same time I as transformed my appearance and improved my health that to-day I look ten years younger. I consider 'SAN-GRI-NA' the one treatment every fat man and woman should know about. It is a most wonderful discovery, and I can truthfully recommend it to all fat people." (Signed) Mrs. H. A., Box 19, Station N, New-York City.

NOTE—Since "SAN-GRI-NA" has been introduced in America, it has created such a sensation that imitations cannot be avoided. If you want results, make sure that YOU ASK AND GET "SAN-GRI-NA." On sale at

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

The republican state convention resolved itself into an harmonious session, contrarily to some indications, imaginary or otherwise. Whatever differences there were were smoothed out effectively and the result is that there has been presented for the action of the people of Connecticut a ticket made up of strong and able citizens, whose qualifications are such as support the placing of full confidence in them.

For the head of the ticket, and unanimously chosen, there has been nominated Hiram Bingham of New Haven and Salem. New Haven knows him as an educator and New London county knows him as a farmer. The state knows him as a man of sound judgment, high standing and an admirable selection for the head of the ticket following two years as lieutenant governor.

For the office of lieutenant governor, John H. Trumbull of Plainville, a manufacturer and state senator, who has been a valuable member of the legislature, gets a well deserved nomination. The state will appreciate the opportunity to vote for him.

For the position of state treasurer, Ernest E. Rogers, of New London, is an excellent choice. Long a successful business man and accustomed to administering positions of trust, his career gives assurance that a man well fitted for those duties has been chosen.

Good service during their incumbency fully warranted the renomination of State Secretary F. A. Paletti and State Comptroller F. M. Salmon of Westport, and they aid in rounding out a well balanced, and impressive ticket, to which the voters of Connecticut can rally with a feeling of satisfaction and a feeling that their interests will be well looked after.

The state convention likewise named men of high standing for presidential electors and in its endorsements and platform made a good impression. It is a ticket picked to give Connecticut the best possible, sound-business administration as well as to win.

BACKING THE CONSTITUTION.

When General Dawes spoke to the people of Milwaukee concerning the importance of loyalty to country and loyalty to the Constitution of the United States he selected an excellent place and picked a fitting time—the eve of Defense day. In going to Milwaukee to oppose the attacks that are being made upon the Constitution he bearded the lion in his den, and in no uncertain terms he discovered the dangers that are threatened through the undermining of the constitutional foundation of this republic.

In the denunciation of the whole scheme for breaking down the Constitution General Dawes placed the responsibility upon La Follette, terming him the master demagogue in the effort to rip out those essential parts of that great instrument which established and insures the rights of the people.

Truly does he say that "the courts of the United States are the guardians of the inalienable rights of individuals, including the freedom of the press, the rights of property and religious tolerance. They interpret laws passed by congress in their relation to those upheld by the Constitution," and in a manner that brings the matter home to everyone he asks, "What kind of a government would this be if congress had the right to pass a law taking property from one man and handing it to another, directing a man where he shall go to church, and undertaking to encroach upon the individual rights recognized by all civilization?"

The Constitution is a protection to the people. Provisions are made for changing it if the people so desire, but most unwise would it be to delegate the power of altering it to the members of congress, swayed by one influence or another of a political nature, and especially after the exhibition which was given in the last session.

General Dawes cannot bear down too hard upon the dangers involved with congressional tinkering with the Constitution, and in speaking in Milwaukee he not only entered the state which is guided by La Follette to express his views and make his plea but he as well to the nation, which desires the Stars and Stripes to continue to fly and not to be replaced by the red flag of socialism, La Follettism, demagogism or whatever other ism it may be called.

General Dawes has a habit of hitting the nail on the head, hitting clean, but hitting hard.

PRIMARY RESULTS.

Following the Maine election interest has been centered upon the primary contests which have been held in Massachusetts and Michigan because of the manner in which they reflect the sentiment of the people as bearing upon the election in November.

In Massachusetts Speaker Gillett of the lower house of congress was the republican candidate for United States senator. He is an avowed supporter of President Coolidge, it has been freely claimed that his choice would be pleasing to the administration and Chairman Butler gave his endorsement to his candidacy. The last named has, however, been referred to as a personal rather than an official act, since there is no desire on the part of the national committee to interfere in the matter of a state's choice.

The nomination of Speaker Gillett by such a handsome plurality, after the three-cornered fight, not only discloses his strength in his own state but gives that hearty endorsement to Coolidge support and to the president which was expected.

Out in Michigan there has been a heated contest, which resulted in the renomination of Senator Couzens, but not until he had pledged himself to support President Coolidge. Senator Couzens has been giving the impression that he was to be rated among the radicals. He found out during his campaign how the people of his own state were reacting to it, and he found it desirable to give expression to the statement that he would support President Coolidge if returned to congress. The state of Michigan outside of Detroit put more confidence in Judge Tuttle, as to whose support of the administration there was no question. Detroit, however, of which city Senator Couzens was formerly mayor gave him such a large vote as to offset the remainder of the state and he is nominated by a handsome plurality. But it is to be noted, and Senator Couzens is aware of it, that this action followed his promise of support to President Coolidge.

It has been made clearly evident that the support of such common sense politicians is what the people are demanding. The primaries show it.

THE CHICAGO VERDICT.

Probably there has been no verdict in a criminal court in a long time that has created more talk than that rendered by Judge Caverly in the case against the two Chicago young men, who pleaded guilty to kidnapping and murder.

In giving a life sentence Judge Caverly doesn't hold that it was a crime of extenuation circumstances. He doesn't take the position that fiendish act was entitled to leniency. He doesn't say that capital punishment is against the law of the state. He fixed the penalty he imposed because of the age of the accused, a course which he considered his right under the law though others minors have been hanged and the law fixes no age limit when such punishment should not be operative.

It is difficult to conceive of a crime calling for capital punishment where the imposition of the death penalty would be more justified than in the Loeb-Leopold case. There was full knowledge of what was being done and it was a clear case of premeditation.

That the result should be regarded as a complete victory for the defense creates no surprise. Judge Caverly has advised against the paroling of the murderers, but that has no binding effort upon the pardoning or parole boards. While the verdict is what many thought it would be, because of certain developments during the trial, it is not believed, however, that it meets the requirements of justice or gives the proper protection to society.

THE ZR-3'S FLIGHT.

The ZR-3 isn't going to touch Greenland, according to the plans, but from the fact that the ship which serves as a tender for the Shenandoah, and which has been ordered to a post 300 miles south of Greenland during the flight of the German-built dirigible to this country, it is due to pass through some cold weather.

There will thus be given a chance to note how it behaves under such conditions, and there are reasons to believe that those who were prepared to back Locatelli's flight by airplane to the north pole, as well as the intrepid Italian aviator himself, will be deeply interested in this passage of the Atlantic scheduled for this month.

When Locatelli completed his flight into the north Atlantic, after being picked up by the United States naval vessel he was convinced of the lack of wisdom in undertaking a flight to the pole by airplane. His experience was sufficient to prevent him from taking any desperate chances, but he committed himself to the extent of declaring his belief in the possibility of a dirigible successfully accomplishing such a trip. In that view there are many who will join. How soon it will be before a dirigible will be employed for such a purpose no one knows, but the coming of the ZR-3 to this country bids fair to have a bearing on such an eventuality in view of the plan to cross at a northerly point.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Isn't it about time for the appearance of the political banners?

Have you shaped your plans for a proper observance of New England week, Sept. 15 to 20?

The man on the corner says: If you've got any patriotism don't be afraid to let it be known.

September doesn't gain in popularity by forcing the consumption of that fuel which was intended for next winter.

With 20-year-old brandy selling for a dollar a bottle in Armenia the expense attached to getting there means nothing.

If you are under age, have no respect for law or the rights of others and want to commit murder Illinois is holding out inducements.

If Illinois has eight times as many bank robberies as New York it will probably be boasting soon of the rapid increase in its premeditated murders.

The republican convention developed an unexpected harmony, but a wise one and one that gives greater promise of the desired results on election day.

Armenia knows the value of the tourist trade. If it can draw it by building a railroad up Mt. Ararat, and can "locate" the place where the ark grounded they ought to do as much business as is done at Plymouth.

JOYS OF TRAVEL

"I just saw that wonderful new train the Hippityhop railroad is putting on for summer travel," remarked the man who made a point of never missing anything. "My, but it is great! It has everything for the traveler's comfort that he would get if he stayed at home.

"Why, that train has barbers, beauty parlors, shower baths, newspapers and magazines, mah jong teachers and I expect there was a costume shop tucked away somewhere. If I had money enought I'd buy a season ticket and just ride back and fourth all summer myself!"

"And at that you wouldn't have nearly as good a time as did your immediate ancestors," insisted the man who had lived longer than most of them. "I mean the people who knew that one whistle of the engine meant go ahead, two afforded the information that a cow was on the track and would the owner kindly come and remove her, three warned the ox team to hasten across the track and four meant that the engineer was just sort of showing off and the railroad ought to be careful putting a smart aleck like Jonas Bipps in charge of a ramp-roaring affair that went fifteen miles an hour.

"When a person decided to take a railway trip in those days he was a pleasantly marked man in the community told everybody else how Hippolitas Wheeme was going to New Amsterdam, twenty miles away, next Thursday, and all who could do so flocked to the Wheeme homestead to bid Hippo a fond farewell and safer return from such a dubious enterprise. His wife served elderberry wine and seed cake and altogether it was almost as satisfactory an entertainment as a wedding or a funeral.

"No matter if one took a trip every five years or so he never outgrew that thrill of stepping into the little cardbox coaches with their redhot stoves in the ends, warranted to roast one alive in case of an accident, and with the bell cord running full length overhead, warranted to strangle you if the car turned over fast enough down the embankment. The seats were nice and chummy, too, and even if you sat in the end of the car you could tell beyond a doubt that the pretty woman up at the farther end was reading a paper-covered novel instead of her Sunday school book and that she had six hairpins showing beneath her hat.

"You were able to see what other people had to eat, too, because they carried it with them in boxes and baskets and if you looked hard enough occasionally a generous woman would beg you to accept half a fried chicken, as they couldn't possibly eat the six that Jonathan had killed the day before. Lots more human than modern practice.

"To this day I take great interest in noting that the bankerish-looking man across the aisle is dining off scallops, tomato surprise and rhubarb pie and that the ethereal little creature whom I had so admired back in the Pullman is putting away everything from soup to nuts and double orders at that. It gives you so much to turn over in your mind and wonder about. But nobody hands out homefried chicken to you, no sir!

"There is too much luxury nowadays.

"Why I knew a man who rode through the royal gorge and never knew it because he found three luxuries on the train he had failed to use and as he was getting off at the next stop he had to hurry to get through with them, but if he hadn't done just that he'd have felt to his dying day that he had been wastonly extravagant.

"I tell you that in the old days you enjoyed a trip because you just settled back with nothing to occupy or distract your mind but the fact that you were on a trip! The only thing that ever bothered me was that I didn't have the nerve to pull that infernal bell cord and see what would happen! I always was crazy to do it!"—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Internal Strife Is Bad.

Mr. Editor: As to the relative merits of whether the Pachaug Fair association as some would like to call it, or the Pachaug Grange Fair association as it is now known makes but little difference to the public in general, but when two groups try to get control of an organization of that kind, which depends upon the public for support, then that organization cannot long endure. Internal strife has disrupted more organizations of that kind than lack of public support. If the farmers of Griswold want to put on an exhibit of its agricultural products and of its industries and are willing to co-operate as a body to make a venture of that kind worth while then they should be encouraged to do so. A fair is not judged by its midway or its wheels of fortune, where it is a 10 to 1 chance the player is a loser, but upon the exhibits of agriculture and industrials. If the fair is to continue as a representative of agriculture, and industries of the town of Griswold, regardless of whether it is a grange fair association or not, it needs reorganization, and only those officials retained who are working as representatives of the farmers of Griswold and its industries, and not for their own personal interest and gain. Until something is done, the Pachaug Fair association or the Pachaug Grange Fair association; or whatever you might have it, is headed straight for the cemetery, (and by the way the Pachaug cemetery is just across the road).

AN OBSERVER.
Jewett City, Sept. 10, 1924.

The Armenian Refugees.

Mr. Editor: The plight of the Armenian refugees in and around Constantinople is pitiful in the extreme, notwithstanding some of the desperate conditions of the earlier days have been greatly mitigated. I visited several of the eight camps through the courtesy of the near east relief, and saw hundreds of the 15,000 men, women and children who seem to be suspended between heaven and hell so far as their future is concerned. In the meantime they are living under conditions that permit but a bare existence.

I saw families in little tepee tents, under the boiling sun, with hardly floor space sufficient to lie down. In a good-sized square room I found a family of three in each of the four corners of the room with all their earthly belongings huddled around them, a few tin dishes and ragged bedding. An old Armenian church was crowded full, every inch of floor and galleries being occupied by these patient, self-respecting, industrious and ambitious people. Deprived very largely of the opportunity to work, with no certainty as to what lies ahead of them, existing on a bare substance, it is amazing how they stand it and remain orderly and patient and hopeful.

The effort they make toward cleanliness in the midst of impossible conditions is pathetic. On that crowded church floor, with a family in every few square yards, there wasn't an unsanitary odor discernible.

I was struck with the faces of the men and women; indicating strength, capacity and self-discipline. And many of the children were wonderfully attractive. That such people should suffer so much, for so long, a time, through no fault of their own and with every desire and capacity to do for themselves, is a sad comment on our blundering humanity. Thank God for those in better circumstances whose hearts have been touched and who give generously to help keep these people alive until the sway opens for their complete restoration. No American, whatever his racial antecedents, can look upon these scenes of poverty and humiliation and not respond to the call of his heart to lend a hand.

GEORGE W. COLEMAN.

The Gas and Electric Plant.

Mr. Editor: The theory of valuation of the gas and electrical department, as advanced by Mayor Waters, in an interview with a Bulletin reporter, yesterday, is not entirely sound for it fixes value wholly upon a certain relation to gross revenue, overlooking the fact that through excessive charges for electricity gross revenue may be much more than it should be, and if price of service is based upon cost of production then the poorer and more inefficient the property is the more it is worth. There are other factors that enter into the value of such a property, but using the mayor's theorectical basis, let us examine the offer made by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

This offer would realize to the city for the gas and electrical property, $1,692,896.96. Coupled with this was an offer to reduce electrical rates 20 per cent., which would, on the 1923 figures, mean a reduction in gross revenue and a saving to the users of electricity of $84,211, making the gross business $597,990.05, and three times that equalls $1,793,970.15, very close to the suggested sale price.

Now, let us assume the department instead of charging 20 per cent. too much (which is virtually conceded by the reduction effective September 1st had been charging 40 per cent. too much—then, on the 3 to 1 basis the property would be worth $292,633 more than is now estimated, which is of course falacious.

If the property is sold it is to the interest of the citizens to sell at a fair price, for the owners, whoever they may be, are entitled under the law to a fair return, and only a fair return, on the cost of the property, and is the people of Norwich. If the city is to develop industrially, it is infinitely more important to secure effective service at a reasonable price, benefitting the citizens year after year than to secure any excess in price above actual value, which would mean a temporary benefit resulting in a permanent burden.

Doctor Eliot Was Called "Cold"

Surrounded by practically everything to assist in the attainment of success in the educational field, Dr. Charles W. Eliot early won prominence, then made mistakes, was misunderstood, and had to change some of his views.

Born in Boston, the son of the treasurer of Harvard College, he spent his childhood in the shadow of that institution. He attended Boston Latin School, entered Harvard, from which he was graduated at 19, and completed a post-graduate course three years later.

After serving four years as tutor of mathematics and as student in chemistry, he became assistant professor of those two studies at the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard and was married at 24.

Five years later he went to Europe and spent two years in the study of chemistry and investigation of educational methods. Upon his return he was appointed professor of analytical chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and was so successful that it was predicted that he would win success as a scientist or inventor.

When he was elected president of Harvard the choice was criticised by those who rated him as merely a layman or scientist, but he plunged into the work and started toward success. That year his wife died.

In a short time his reforms began to attract attention. He introduced the elective system and other advanced ideas. His rule that it was bad form to encourage social contact between instructors and undergraduates, and brought a wave of criticism upon him. He was called "cold" and "distant," although his high character and sincerity never were doubted. Friends interceded and gave counsel. Dr. Eliot saw his mistake and changed his plans to those that made Harvard more "human" than ever before.

Taking up the work of improving secondary schools, he became known as one of the country's leaders in educational reforms. His ideas were successful and he was honored. Then came the shadow in the death of his beloved son.

At 74, Dr. Eliot retired from the presidency of Harvard, and when recently he celebrated his 90th birthday, felicitations came to him from all parts of the world.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Viscount Gray of Fallodon, who is now retiring from the Liberal leadership in the House of Lords, is young as politicians go, for he is only 62. He is unique among modern British statesmen in one respect. Though he has held office in Liberal ministries for nearly 14 years in all, his experience has been confined to one department, the government. He was Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs from 1892 to 1895, and Secretary from 1905 to 1916. He has many friends in America, gained by residence of some months in Washington, where he served as temporary official representative of Great Britain near the close of the World War. For several centuries the Greys of Fallodon have been conspicuous in English history. The Earl Grey who was the present Viscount's great-grandfather is remembered as the Prime Minister who passed the "Great Reform Bill" of 1832.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Worried By the Farm Problem.

A was ordered to investigate a complaint against a certain condition on an outlying farm. He started in a machine and at length reached a fence that blocked his way. Thence, the only route was by foot through a field of high weeds and bottom lands that rivaled the jungles. Bravely he started on the uncharted course. Apparently he did not reach the goal. He was called on by his chief a short time later.

"Well, I got into a swarm of green jumping bugs that spit green stuff at me, and I was afraid they were poison, so I beat it," he said. He was called on to describe the bugs more minutely. They were grass hoppers. A is city bred.

Seeing Not Always Believing.

They had a good sized glass and were observing Mars. The astronomer spoke of a peaklikepoint on Mars which might be observed through the big glasses. He adjusted the telescope and left the spot for a few minutes. The skygazers looked and wondered, but one man stumbled in the dark and moved the machine. Some one attempted an adjustment, but got the telescope focused on another star.

Later on others came and looked and the astronomer, not knowing the machine had been moved asked several whether they observed the points of interest he mentioned.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Floating Islands

"Steamers threading the lanes of the alluring Pacific occasionally report the appearance of mysterious floating islands, a phenomenon which has stirred the imagination of man since the ancients wove the romantic story about the chaining down of the floating island of Delos," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Within our times a floating island 100 feet square, upon which trees 30 feet high were growing, drifted 1,000 miles out into the Atlantic, probably from the coast of the United States.

"During July, 1892, this island, the tall trees of which made it visible for seven miles, was first seen about 250 miles southeast from Nantucket. By September it had drifter about 6 degrees farther north and 22 degrees farther east, with the Gulf stream, and it may have eventually landed on the coast of Europe.

"Scientists feel the lure of the secrets these drifting islands hold and cudgel their wits over the part they might have played at various times in the history of the earth. Some believe these tangled masses of trees, brushwood and water plants, when they floated away and finally landed upon the shores of some other land, have been instrumental at various times in transmitting squirrels, field-mice, insects and land shells to other parts of the earth's surface where certain species did not originally exist.

"The formation of these 'jack-o'-lanterns' of the oceans and rivers comes about in a very simple way. The grasses and rushes which grow along the edges of the water begin pushing their way farther and farther out from shore and in time moss grows over this decaying vegetable matter. Soon water-loving plants such as alders, sheep-laurel and sweet gale grow with the moss, and the cranberries and pitcher plants push their way out on the shelf until the mat becomes about tree feet thick. When it has become firm, black spruces and larches begin anchoring it together firmly with their roots.

"When the water rises the floating mass rises also, but the surrounding shore cannot, and when the wrench is great enough the mat breaks off and floats about. These floats are often met with in tropical waters, particularly in the Amazon, among the Moluccas and the Philippines.

"On the Mississippi and its tributaries these islands are called 'rafts.' Along the seashore they are often broken off by the action of the waves. In ponds where the mats have surrounded the edges, this vegetation sometimes breaks off and forms an atoll or ring-shaped island.

"One of the most remarkable of the Mississippi rafts began forming in the Atchafalaya, a lower arm of the river, in 1778. By 1816 it had become 10 miles long, more than 600 feet in width, about 8 feet deep, and had become solid enough to support a growth of trees, some of which were 60 feet in height. Finally the state of Louisiana had to remove the obstruction at great expense, the work occupying four years.

"The United States government has since that time removed a raft which blocked the channel of the Red river for 45 miles.

"The mysterious bits of flotsam were known in the days of Pliny who wrote that there was a dark wood in the lake of Vadimonis which was never seen in the same place for a day and a night together. He also described some islands made of reeds in Lydia which were driven about by the wind and which could be pushed about from place to place by poles.

"There are thousands of floating islands in Klamath lake, Oregon, upon which the tules grow 12 feet high, but which will seldom bear the weigh of a man.

"In Sadawga lake, Whitingham, Vermont, a large floating island broke off from the west shore, drifted across the lake and has now become attached to the eastern side.

"Floating gardens, which are the cultivated variety of floating islands, have been known in various parts of the world from early times, particularly in regions where gardens planted on terra firma would be flooded, such for instance as the floating gardens of Kashmir and of Xochimilco. The latter supply Mexico City with practically all its vegetables and flowers.

"Sometimes these mats are so firmly anchored to the shore that they do not break off with high water but become submerged. For them to appear above the surface the water must subside or some agency must push the vegetation upward. Marsh gas, which has a light specific gravity, occasionally does this, when it is present in large quantities and can escape only at the surface. After the gas has escaped the island again becomes submerged.

NORWICH LIONS' LADIES' NIGHT WITH BANQUET AND DANCING

GEORGE A. FINN
President of the Lions

The big dining room at the Wauregan house rang with the roar of the Norwich Lions, their songs and their merrymaking Thursday evening when the club observed ladies' night with a banquet from 8 to 10 and dancing for the remainder of the evening. Novelty paper caps for the Lions and their guests to wear, varied colored balloons to be tossed about, and the singing, directed by George Madden as song leader with Thumm's orchestra furnishing a popular programme, kept things at concert pitch all through the evening, and confirmed the Lions in their intention to have more of the ladies present on occasions.

The singing of America opened the evening after President George Finn called the assemblage to order after they had taken their places at the banquet tables. The blessing was asked by Rev. R. B. Day and the following menu was served most acceptably by the Wauregan house staff, covers being laid for 60:

Fruit Cocktail
Celery Pickles
Olives
Cream of Tomato Profiteroles
Roast Vermont Turkey
Dressing
Cranberry Sauce
Saratoga Chips
String Beans
Combination Salad
Ice Cream Cakes
Coffee Double en Tasse

President Finn officially received two new members into the club, Dr. Jean Keffe and Fred Patten who were welcomed with applause by their fellow Lions.

Song Leader Madden brought out many groups of the members to show their ability in the musical line and revealed two feature numbers when he called on Fred Watson for a whistling solo and Konnie Markoff to yodel.

Pete Ethier as the newest father in the club was given special attention when President Finn presented him a big doll and called on him to demonstrate how a fond father should sing Rock a Bye Baby. "Pete has a lot to learn," the president remarked as the demonstration was concluded.

A greatly appreciated feature of the evening was the soprano solo Parted (Tosti) sweetly rendered by Mrs. Finn in her first appearance in public in Norwich. She was enthusiastically applauded and gave as encore My Mary, after Max Hanover, in behalf of the club, had presented her a beautiful bouquet of pink roses.

"I am indeed very proud of the privilege of presenting to you these beautiful flowers in behalf of the members of the Lions' club. I was probably selected for this honor because, socially, I am known by the appellation of "God Bless the Ladies" and I hope that God's blessing upon you and yours will follow what I am going to say to you. The Lions' club is deeply beholden to you for your noble interest in our organization. Knowing how George—our George—cherishes your counsel and how he esteems your opinions we are certain that he could not make such sacrifices for our club, both in time and effort were your inclinations and interest adverse to our organization. In the short period of the existence of our club it has risen to the highest pinnacle of civic, patriotic and social achievements, and we of the Lion's club know that a very great part of the credit is due to George Finn, our president. We also know that the man who is doing things and who makes his personality felt in the community can only achieve complete success when encouraged and assisted by his partner in life. We therefore feel that our citizens and our club owe you a great obligation and we believe that we can best express our appreciation by these flowers in a symbolic manner. May the path of your life be a bed of roses. May beauty and fragrance attend you and your family all through life. May the deeds accomplished by your husband grow under your incentive and co-laboration and tend to make your life very pleasant and very happy. May all your handiwork bloom like these beautiful flowers which I present to you in the name of the Lions' club."

Early in the evening a special Lions' Edition of the Norwich Evening Record was distributed and was received with much applause as the boy came in shouting "Extra" and handing a paper to each person at the tables.

The banquet was concluded with the singing of Till We Meet Again, the Lions' roar and the Star Spangled Banner, and votes of thanks were passed during the evening to the banquet committee, to Ben Pullen and the ladies.

The dancing programme continued until after midnight to the snappy music provided by Thumm's orchestra.

The programme arrangements were successfully planned and carried out by the committee consisting of John Barry, Fred Watson and "Kopie" Markoff.

SEEK EXTRA MONEY FOR VETERANS' AID

Major Clarence C. Scarborough, who has charge of the disbursements from the state relief fund under the American legion, appeared Thursday before the board of control and said that, owing to the increase in the number of calls from soldiers in need of help, he was afraid the income of the fund, amounting to a little more the $160,000 would not be sufficient to meet the demands. He asked the board if it would vote an extra appropriation if one were needed. Attorney General Healy was absent from the meeting and the board said that it could reach no decision until he could be consulted.

James Curry, cook at the state hospital for the insane at Middletown, applied for a pension. He has been in the employ of the state for twenty years. His pension, if granted, would be $552 a year. The board postponed action to await word from the attorney-general.

The board added $5,000 to the refund account and authorized the printing of the report of the tax commissioner and also the report of the department of health for the year 1915 to 1918, inclusive, and the vital statistics for the year 1918. The board votes $270 to the town of Roxbury for railroad indebtedness and $5,000 to the New Haven county superior court at Waterbury to meet expenses of costs.

The sum account of the comptroller to meet the obligation of Windham county courts until the state's balance in the First National bank of Putnam is available.

WILLS SMASHES HIS WAY TO VICTORY OVER FIRPO IN ONE-SIDED FIGHT

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 11—(By the A. P.)—Harry Wills battered his way to a smashing, one-sided victory tonight over Luis Angel Firpo in a gruelling 12-round battle before a throng estimated at 75,000 in Boyle's Thirty Acres.

Dominating the fight from the start to finish with an exhibition of ring craft that completely spiked Firpo's heaviest gun, his famous righ. Wills beat the giant Argentine into decisive defeat with a bruising, relentless attack to the head and body.

Firpo was knocked down for a count of four in the second round, staggered in several others by lightning-like thrusts to his jaw and subjected to a succession by savage, weakening drives to his body. Shorn of his chief and only potent weapon, the Argentine fought a losing battle all the way His gameness carried through the terrific punishment his negro rival administered, but he had neither the boxing skill, speed or versatility of attack to cope with the crafty resourceful and relentless campaign of his opponent.

No official decision was rendered as none is permitted under New Jersey ring laws, but there was no question of the outcome. Firpo, in the opinion of some critics, barely held his own in one round, the third, while the big majority of newspaper critics gave every round to the big negro.

The crowd which filled the big bowl close to capacity had come in expectation of a knockout, with opinion about evenly divided as to which of the two ring giants would score it. But instead they saw Wills, the ring master and wily veteran batter and wrestle his way to a convincing but unexciting victory.

The Brown Panther was at his best, employing all his strategy to completely baffle his opponent, but Firpo was not the wild bull he had been in his other battle. Short of the mighty smash that sent Jack Dempsey flying out of the ring a year ago, the South Americans attack was impotent and his defense was too crude to avoid the continual barrage of Wills blows.

Several times during the fight Firpo complained of Wills tactics. His handlers, too, protested to Referee Danny Sullivan that Wills was unfair, but Sullivan refused to heed them, pointing out that they had agreed to fight in the clinches as long as one hand was free.

This agreement, as the fight progressed toward an apparently inevitable end, became of increasing advantage to Wills. Faster and shiftier the big negro dug rights and lefts into Firpos body at close quarters, occasionally using the Argentine with upper-like shots to the head and raised and lowered his on the South American's left side with powerful overhand punches.

Firpo, on the other hand, was too awkward in his maneuvering, to profit from the ruling that governed close range mixing.

Firpo's knockdown in the second round came as the fighters were sent to it from a clinch and aroused an outburst of disapproval from the crowd. Firpo, at the break unsuspectingly dropped his arms and as he did so Wills whipped over a smashing right to the jaw, that sent the Argentine toppling over backwards. Firpo climbed to one knee as the referee counted and rushed back to the fray after the count of four.

Firpo gamely withstood a shower of blows until the bell sounded, and he walked unsteadily to his corner. This was the closest he came to a knockout at any stage of the fight. He was staggered in at least three other rounds, the third, seventh and ninth, from similar blows to the head but he refused to go down.

Wills, although he kept up a steady fire, fought cautiously and seldom took chances at long range. Throughout the early part of the battle he was wary of Firpo's right but when he finally became convinced that he had this blocked he became more aggressive. The negro tried hard at times in the closing rounds to score a knockout. Opening up his drive as Firpo weakened and was slowed up under a relentless onslaught, Wills bent Firpo almost double at times with his right handers to the body, mixed with swift jabs to the head, but his heaviest blows were not strong enough to bring the Argentine down.

Firpo's gameness was his only asset in the last analysis, for he was beaten, out-generalled, out-boxed and outpunched at every turn. The Argentine's remarkable recuperative powers enabled him to weather the storm but that was all he could do.

Jack Dempsey was in the crowd of notables that witnessed the battle and saw Wills stamp himself as the outstanding contender for a title match the negro has been seeking for three years.

ROUND ONE

They met in a clinch in the center of the ring and wrestled to Wills' corner. They clinched again in the center of the ring, the referee prying them apart. Wills staggered Firpo with right to jaw. They exchanged blows at close quarters. Wills got in three heavy blows without a return. There was much wrestling. Firpo staggered Wills with his heavy right, first to the body and then to the jaw but the negro was unhurt. Firpo landed a right uppercut but the negro only smiled. Firpo missed a right and Wills rushed him across to the ropes with a panther-like leap. They were fighting furiously at the bell.

ROUND TWO

Firpo landed four rights to the jaw as they met in the center of the ring. He staggered the negro with a body punch. Firpo was landing his right consistently to all parts of Wills' body and head. They clinched. Wills knocked Firpo down with a left to the jaw but he was up at the count of three, apparently unhurt. Firpo fell into a clinch when he got up. Firpo was wild with his right. Wills missed a right. They continued to clinch. Firpo landed his right solidly to Wills' head as the bell rang.

ROUND THREE

Firpo rushed out of his corner with a characteristic leap but Wills immediately fell into a clinch. They exchanged blows at close quarters, Wills tying up the Argentine whenever possible. Firpo landed to the head and body with his right and took a right to the body in exchange. Wills landed effectively to Firpo's body when the Argentine attempted to hang on. Firpo landed a beautiful uppercut to Wills' jaw, but the negro countered with a barrage of body blows. Firpo missed a lunging right just as the bell sounded.

ROUND FOUR

They fell into a clinch at the bell. Firpo's right found Wills' body and the negro immediately clinched. The referee used his knee to pry the two apart. The referee warned Wills for holding on. Both landed pretty uppercuts. Firpo was wild with his right. Wills staggered Firpo with a right flush on the face, but the negro did not follow up his advantage. It was the best blow of the fight. Firpo uppercutted with his right. Firpo missed a right and got a right uppercut to the jaw in return. They were in a clinch at the bell.

ROUND FIVE

Wills' left staggered Firpo and the Argentine clinched. Both landed to the body. They clinched. They wrestled around the ring, pulling and hauling at each other. Firpo landed twice to the head. Wills was blocking beautifully. Firpo could not get set for a blow. Wills hammered Firpo's kidneys. Wills right stung Firpo, the Argentine countering with another right to the head in return. They were sparring for an opening at the bell.

ROUND SIX

They exchanged rights and lefts to the head. There was plenty of body punching at close quarters. Firpo landed weakly to Wills' head. The negro smiled as he blocked Firpo's leaps. Firpo rushed half way across the ring to evade one of Wills' rushes. They continued their wrestling tactics. Wills right found Firpo's jaw again but the South American got in a sweet uppercut which sent Wills head backward, just as the bell rang.

ROUND SEVEN

ROUND EIGHT

Wills left found Firpo's body and his right went to the jaw as they met in the center of the ring. Firpo landed weakly with his left but Wills blocked a right cross which followed. A straight right sent Firpo's head backward. The negro was hitting superbly. Wills landed effectively to the body in a clinch. Wills' punches were carrying more steam than his rival's. Firpo was short with a right uppercut. The negro landed twice to Firpo's body. They broke from a clinch as the bell ended the round.

The negro tied Firpo up when he started one of his rushing attacks. Firpo led with his right and fell into a clinch. They exchanged body blows at close quarters. The negro's reach was bothering Firpo. Wills stood off and peppered Firpo at long range, landing effectively six times without an absolute return. Firpo was going away as Wills' right struck his jaw. The negro was gaining confidence. Firpo led with his right but Wills clever ... blocked the blow and caught Firpo on the side of the head coming in. Firpo's right hit Wills hard on the head but the negro only smiled. The bell stopped the fight in the middle of a clinch.

ROUND TEN

They exchanged body blows. Firpo protested to the referee for hitting in the clinches. Wills heavy right was finding Firpo's body consistently. Wills landed a one-two punch to Firpo's head and the Argentine clinched. Wills landed to Firpo's body but took a stiff one in his wind in return. Firpo danced away from a right and then clinched. Firpo landed weakly to Wills' jaw and followed it with a right to the body which stung the negro. Wills took a beautiful right on the jaw just as the bell rang.

ROUND ELEVEN

Wills rushed to meet Firpo but the Argentine clinched. Wills hooked his right to Firpo's jaw as the referee attempted to part them. Firpo landed his right to Wills' jaw and followed with a right to the body, but the blows lacked steam. There was much wrestling and hanging on by both principals. Firpo stung his right to Wills' jaw twice in rapid succession but the negro kept concentrating to Firpo's body which was pink from the heavy battery of blows which he had absorbed. Firpo was getting his right over better but also taking plenty of body punishing. They were tied tight at the bell.

ROUND TWELVE

They shook hands. They immediately clinched, Firpo hanging on desperately. Wills was opening up trying frantically to put over a finishing blow. He continued his relentless body attack. Firpo was hanging on savagely. Wills missed a right but landed two successive rights to the head a moment later. Firpo landed his right straight to Wills' face but the negro continued to smile. They continued their clinching and wrestling tactics, Firpo getting the worst of the exchanges which followed.

They were clinched at the bell.

The Preliminaries

Charles McKenna, of Greenwich Village, outboxed Miguel Ferrera, Argentine sparring partner of Firpo, in the first preliminary to the Wills-Firpo program. The crowd of 60,000 saw considerable action but little science in the four rounds which newspapermen credited to the New Yorker by a decisive margin.

Carl Johnson and Joe Silvani, two light heavyweights, battled to a draw in the opinion of most critics, in the second four-round preliminary. Both took considerable punishment but were going strong at the finish. They are both from New York.

Bill Tate, negro sparring mate of Firpo, who rivals Jess Willard in mountainous proportion made short work of John Casanova, another negro, in the third preliminary. Whether Tate's 240 pounds, which gave him a 40 pound advantge in weight seemed to disgrace Casanova, and he went down for the count of ten from a short right uppercut after two minutes of the first round had elapsed.

Despite disadvantages in weight and reach, Jim Maloney, of Boston, outpunched Joe Stoessel, of New York, former amateur heavyweight star, in the fourth and last preliminary before the main event. Maloney floored his opponent for a count of six in the last round and had the New Yorker badly beaten. Maloney weighed 197 and Stoessel 213 1-2.

Newspaper men gave Charlie Nashert, of Jersey City, the decision over Mike Burke, of Greenwich Village in the eight-rounder that followed the main fight. Burke weighed 171 1-4; Nashert 161 1-4.

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain New York Giants

Runners on first and second. Two out. Ball is hit so har to the second baseman that all he can do is knock it down. It rolls some 5 or 10 feet away from him. He has no chance of throwing runner out at first.

What play should the second baseman make?

Many times during a season balls are hit so hard to the infielder that it is hardly possible for him to field them clearly. Now when the above play comes up, the best way to play the ball would be to knock it down, and, then retrieve it and throw the runner out. Usually there is time for this. But when the infielder in knocking to ball down knocks it so far away that he sees he has no chance to catch the batter at first, he should keep in mind that the runner on second in such a situation will take every possible chance to score, so the second baseman should always be prepared to make the throw to the plate in order to catch this runner.

AMERICAN NET STARS TAKE LEAD OVER AUSTRALIANS IN PLAY FOR DAVIS CUP

Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—(By the A. P.)—In clear cut fashion, the United States Lawn Tennis team won the first matches of the challenge round of the Davis cup competition today on the courts of the Germantown Cricket club, and gained a commanding lead over Australia.

William T. Tilden, II. of Philadelphia, the American champion, completely outplayed Gerald L. Patterson in the first match, in straight sets by scores of 6-4, 6-2, 6-2.

Vincent Richards, youthful New Yorker, who replaced the veteran William . Johnston, of California, on the American team, justified his selection by the masterly manner in which he won his first match in the Davis cup singles play.

Gaugling the game of the Australian veteran, Pat O'Hara Wood, Richards, by a superlative display of volleying, raced through the match in straight sets to America's second win. The scores were 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

The double victory makes the retention of the Davis cup a certainty, experts believe. Tomorrow Tilden and Johnston will meet Patterson and Wood in doubles. Should the team from the antipodes prevail in this match, the clinching of the championship Saturday by Tilden or Richards, who again play singles, with their opponents of today reversed, is undoubted.

The Tilden-Patterson match was a battle at long range. Patterson remained in the backcourt throughout Tilden Matched this style of play and defeated the Australian at his own game through superior driving and greater accuracy.

The champion's service had sufficient snap to make it possible for him to put his opponent on the defensive after each delivery. From the outset, the American pounded his rival's backhand, and keeping him in the back of the left court was able to finish off the points by drives down the side line unless Patterson netted the ball.

Petterson opened the match by winning three successive games. After that he never had a chance with the lean Philadelphian. Tilden made a total of sixteen clean placements for points in the match, his erring being mainly to net shots from Patterson's high bounding service.

Richards and O'Hara Wood furnished the sparkling match of the afternoon. After a slow start, due to probable nervousness and a slight uncertainty, Richards began charging the net. O'Hara Wood, himself a master of the volley game, was out-matched in this style of play by the American.

For two sets, Richards rattled off points on full and half volley shots. His ground covering was brilliant, his strokes forceful and sure, and his judgment splendid.

With the match in hand and with a lead of five games to one in the third set, however, he faltered slightly, and showed signs of tiring. O'Hara Wood, quick to sense the change, speeded his play, kept Richards running, and scored frequent piints with well-timed cross court shots.

As a result he won three straight games and seemed on the way to a victorious set when Richards made his final effort and with a stand at the net rolled up the sixth game and the match.

O'Hara Wood tallied a greater number of clean placements than Richards mainly on thrust off Richards backhand when the American was at the net. But Richards' crashing forehand shots and his swift volley's came with such cannon-ball force that the Australian was constantly hitting over the backline.

HEYDLER DENIES THREE PROTESTED GAMES

New York, Sept. 11.—Three protests of National league games played in August were denied today in formal decisions handed down by President John A. Heydler.

They involved protests by Cincinnati in a game against New York against Pittsburgh. Two were turned down by President Hedler on the ground that the umpire's decision, upon which the protests were based, were ones of judgement and not of rules, while the third was denied when investigation failed to substantiated cdaims filed.

Cincinnati's protest of the game played at Redland field against New York on August 19 was based on calling a hit ball foul and then a reversal of the original decision by the umpire-in-chief after a consultation with the umpire at third base. The Reds contended that the original decision of foul caused the Cincinnati players to slow up in fielding the ball and therefore allowed two New York runners to score, but the evidence presentd, acccording to Mr. Heydler, showed that the fielding was fast enough to hold the runner who had been on first base when the ball was hit to third base.

New York's protest of the game played at Pittsburgh August 15 also involved the matter of a fair or a foul ball. Maranville, Pittsburgh short stop, was on third base when a ball was hit down the third base line. Maranville, running toward the plate with the pitch, slowed up as he saw the ball running foul and left the base line to pick up the ball and throw it to a New York player. The umpire ruled the ball was foul but the New York club protested, claiming the ball was fair and that Maranville's act constituted a violation of the rules in interfering with a batted ball. The umpire's decision was upheld by President Heydler.

The third protest was filed by Pittsburgh on a game played at Forbes field August 26 against Philadelphia. In the third inning of the game with two men out and none on base, morrison, of Pittsburgh, drove a hit to right field. The ball went out of the Park but was returned in time to hold him on third base. The Pirates contended that outfielder Harpar ran out of the Park, fielded the ball and tossed it over the fence in time to hold Morrison on third, thus violating the ground rules, but President Heydler failed to find evidence to support this claim and ruled the game should stand as played.

DODGERS BEAT PHILLIES AND ARE WITHIN HALF GAME OF TOP

Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 11.—The Dodgers were forced to eleven innings to win the farewell game of the season from the Phillies today, 8 to 7. That made 16 victories for Brooklyn out of 22 scheduled between the two clubs and sent the Dodgers to within half a game of the Giants again. The visitors landed on Doak for five hits and five runs, tying the score at 7 to 7 in the eighth. Then the game went to the eleventh inning when High's single, Wheat's intentional pass and Johnston being hit by a pitched ball filled the bases with one out. Brown who had previously connected for a triple, a double and a single, came through with his fourth safe hit, a drive to right that sent High home with the winning run. The Phillies used eighteen players including five pitchers in the melee and while Mitchell and Weinert allowed seven runs in the first five innings Carlson was charged with the defeat.

Credit for the victory went to Reuther, Doak being knocked out of the box in the temtuous eighth and Decatur pitching to only one batter. Doak who had a run of eight straight victories, was saved from a defeat. Zack Wheat had batted safely in 24 seccessive games until stopped today, an intentional pass in the eleventh preventing him from a try at his 25th.

YANKEES CUT SENATORS' LEAD TO AN EVEN GAME

Boston, Sept. 11.—The Yankees gained half a game on the leading Washington team today by taking a double header from Boston, 4 to 3 and 8 to 3. The issue in the first game was decided in the ninth when Meusel doubled, went to third on Pinch Hitter McNally's infield single and scored on Wambsganss sacrifice fly. In the second inning, Meusel had hit a homer over the left field fence. With Dugan on second in the eighth and two out, Ruth hit his 45th homer of the year off Ehmke, into te right center field stands.

The second game saw the Yankees gave Shawkey a four run lead in the first inning. Meusel hit for a total of ten bases in the two games. Scores:

ANOTHER TEAM WANTED FOR NEW BOWLING LEAGUE

Another team is wanted for the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league to round out an eight-team circuit. Already there have been seven teams signed up for the league but there has been difficulty in securing an eighth team. If there is any bowling alley or organization in the Eastern part of the state that would like to enter this league, for which eight cash prizes are offered, they con do so by communicating with Roy Fillmore at the Aetna Alleys, Norwich or with Fred Dugas, at the Taftville Alleys in Taftville today.

The teams already in the league which opens Monday night regardless to whether an eighth team is secured or not, are Willimantic, Moosup, Plainfield, Taftville, New London, the Aetna and Palace of Norwich.

DUNDEE IS BARRED FROM FEATHERWEIGHT CLASS

New York, Sept. 11.—Johnny Dundee, uncrowned king of the featherweight division, was forever barred from further participation in the 126 pound class by the State Athletic Commission today when that body officially recognized his withdrawal from further participation as a featherweight.

Dundee can fight as a junior-lightweight and as a lightweight, but he cannot, anywhere in the United States, again contest as a featherweight under penalty of being barred in this state and as a result be on the commission's black list.

Charlie Johnston, Dundee's manager, who was suspended pending Dundee's acceptance of the challenge hurled at him by Louis Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., was reinstated by the commission following Dundee's withdrawal from the featherweight ranks.

Jackie Snyder of New York, who fouled Micky Garcia (Rushie Graham) of Utica at the Queeneboro A. C. on Monday night, was called before the board to explain the foul. He claimed it was unintentional and the commission allowed him to go without punishment due to his previous good record.

Frank Genaro, American flyweight champion, appeared before the commission and announced himself in good shape for the match with Pancho Villa, flyweight champion, Sept. 23. The commission announced that deputies would be appointed to visit the camps of the two rivals from now until the fight is held.

WASHINGTON MAKES IT 3 OUT OF 4 FROM ATHLETICS

Philadelphia, Sept. 11.—Washington made it three out of four in its series with Philadelphia by taking today's game 7 to 4. For seven innings Marberry and Rommel engaged in a hurling duel with the fromer having slightly the best of it, but Rommel weakened in the eighth and the Senators scored 2 more runs. A homer by Buck Harris with two on in the ninth made victory sure. Marberry eased up in the closing innings, allowing the locals to score a run in the eighth and two in the ninth. Score:

Freezing with carbon dioxide is a new method of fish refrigeration being tested at the Atlantic biological station in Canada, according to reports received by the American Chemical Society. The use of solid carbon dioxide, it is asserted, has several advantages. The lowering of temperature by this means retards spoiling, and the cooling can be controlled within wide limits. The carbon dioxide gas also excludes the air while the penetration of the juices of the fish by carbon dioxide gas has an additional preservative effect. Weight for weight solid carbon dioxide has twice the cooling power of artificial ice, and it is believed that the cost of production can be kept down to about the same figure.

Odd Superstitions.

A curious custom is practiced in Norway, where those in search of a drowned body row to and fro with a cock in the boat, fully expecting that the bird will crow when the boat reaches the spot where the corpse lies. In Persia the crowing of a cock is the sign of some event affecting the family, and the master of the house hastens to feel the bird's feet. If they are cold it is a premonition of death, but if they are warm the sign is propitious, and the master rejoices in coming good fortune.

"WHY THE FARMER IS POOR"

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

I've just been reading a long disquisition in a New York free-trade organ, on "Why the Farmer is Poor." It is or purports to be written from an obscure hamlet in rural New York, and the implication from its date line and its phraseology is intended to carry the idea that it is the carefully thought out explanation of a real farmer as to why he and other farmers are poor.

Perhaps this may be the fact and the writer may be a real farmer. But, if he is I feel sure that he was "handicapped" by the free-trade editor. For while he is sane on side issues, admits that high transportation rates and exorbitant wages are detrimental to farm interests, he "lays his heft," as the saying is, on the importance of the "world-market" and the inevitable effect of its wonders far [illegible] principle of free-trade [illegible] and finally gets lost [illegible] up in a self-contradiction [illegible] that the government give [illegible] equal protection with other [illegible] and yet the same time [illegible] tariff and cut down transportation rates.

This is about as intelligent a plan [illegible] of those county commissioners who are said to have voted [illegible] new fall, which was to [illegible] site of the old one [illegible] new one was completed [illegible] s in the old one. [illegible] retained in use till [illegible] was completed.

Again, you'll not fail to note, this [illegible] sees an altogether [illegible] sentiment that "the guv'" [illegible] should remedy the ad- [illegible] and unjust de- [illegible] agriculture by some sort [illegible] Perhaps the writer [illegible] intimated or [illegible] advised since he doesn't [illegible] ten-to-one demand [illegible] of greater farm [illegible] and say a word about [illegible] the editor care- [illegible] seem the point. Let [illegible] for that small relief.

"Why the Farmer is Poor." Well, [illegible] like so the boys have said, let's [illegible] few minutes [illegible] the real trouble [illegible] whom a certain [illegible] are so fond [illegible] and unions [illegible] ever seems to [illegible] on.

[illegible] in the short- [illegible] manner beginning [illegible] right up to [illegible] then on. Finally, and [illegible] eventually to In

[illegible] is the farmer really "poor?" [illegible] question requires us [illegible] what we mean by the word

Now I happen to live in an almost [illegible] town. Ninety-five out [illegible] people are [illegible] I [illegible] who [illegible] This [illegible] that [illegible] are [illegible] But [illegible] [illegible] adm[illegible] that I know several who [illegible] a good [illegible] I refuse to house [illegible] I [illegible] in [illegible] those [illegible] [illegible] instead [illegible] I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] are apt to be more or less [illegible] to say ragged. I have [illegible] taken any census of these farmers but roughly estimated, perhaps one out of every ten in the town [illegible] fall within one or the other or the shack dwelling shingle-nail us- [illegible] clothes wearing classes. An [illegible] of these classes might be reckoned "poor" by the casual observer. Some of them undoubtedly are. But at least one who lives in a shanty [illegible] starting in its disreputable appearance, owns a fleet of six or eight automobiles; another who goes about his daily work looking like a [illegible] scarecrow has a phonograph in the best room and a radio set in the dining room; while I once saw one of the shingle-nail contingent, when confronted with a demand for "change," pull several wads of green and yellow backs from various pockets till he had "broken" the $100 bill offered him. You can't 'most always sometimes tell what the meat of the nut is like from the outer shell. I must not fail to add that three or four of the other near-paupers I have classified keep themselves in a state of practically constant intoxication on the vile "hootch" which prohibition has evolved, and that it takes all they can earn in their comparatively sober times to pay the steep prices charged for the stuff.

Now, leaving these few aside for the moment. I don't know any other farmers in this particular town who aren't comfortably housed, decently clothed, adequately fed. The question is whether such men are "poor" or not. Admittedly, none of them are rich, in the sense in which that word is used by the merchant princes, the bankers, the capitalists of the cities. Furthermore, none of them obtain an income comparable in any way with that of the coupon-cutter, the 50-per cent profit dealer, or the $2-an hour plasterer of the metropolis. As a rule, and reckoning in proportion to value rendered and service done, they earn bigger incomes than any of the three sorts I have mentioned. But they don't get 'em. Why? This brings us neatly and briskly to our

Secondly.—Even if we boggle at the word "poor" we must own up that none of these farmers I'm talking about are rich. Why aren't they? Some of them, at least?

Thirdly.—I think you'll agree with me that such unusual profits take too big a toll from their products. But don't for — that these high railroad rates are the direct and inevitable consequence of an attempt by an incompetent administration during the war, to take the roads under government control. We are paying, today, and shall continue to pay for many days hereafter, the bills which reckless and extravagant governmental operation caused. Why should any intelligent man want more of such blundering?

Fourthly.—Again we will mostly agree that the simply exorbitant many mechanical industries are absolutely impossible on the farm at any present or probable prices of farm produce. No farmer, more than any other man, can afford to pay $110 wages to raise a $100 crop. But once more note that these impracticable wage rates are the direct and inevitable result of governmental interference, by the so-called Adamson and other laws, in the conduct of business. Why should any intelligent man want more of that sort of thing from Washington?

Fifthly, Sixthly and so on un to Fifteenthly.—So long as we continue to permit our government to be managed by politicians, so long it will continue to be managed for political purposes and ends.

Under those circumstances, the very less government muddling we have the better.

Jefferson's maxim that "the best government is that which governs least" is as true today as when he said it.

Self-interest may still be relied upon to get effectively for the protection of the individual, and open competition, unfettered by interfering legislation may still be counted on to give the public better protection than all the laws, fair the congresses and parliaments and canhedrims that are of ever were will be.

The attempt to obtain by some trick of legislation undue preference for one class of business or work over another, is not only subversive but stupid. It is like the action of the fat hog, who thinks to get a bigger portion of swill by sticking both forefeet as well as his snout into the common trough. It is not intelligent; indeed, it is scarcely decent.

Even if other classes of workmen, misled by their own greed or the demagogism of self-seeking malcontents, wans such governmental pap, the independent farmer should be the last man in America to side with them or join in their stampede. If he hasn't got brains enough to see that much, it's no wonder he can't succeed at farming. For successful farming requires the use of brains, now-a-days.

The "world-market" must, of course, be taken into consideration. But to the farmer of eastern Connecticut, the "world-market" is a very minor consideration compared with the Norwich market, and the New London market, and the Willimantic market, and the Danielson market, and the Putnam market and the score of other local markets right near him. And that consideration brings me, rather abruptly, to my

Lastly.—While admitting at their full force the importance of other things, the stubborn fact remains that the farmer, even if he doesn't become actually poor, is effectively prevented from becoming rich by just one reason,—

He sells in a wholesale market and buys in a retail market.

You may remember the case of the Georgia peach-growers, told about in this column, the other day. They had to let their peaches go to waste, millions of bushels of them, because they couldn't get enough, at wholesale, to pay the cost of crating and packing. Meanwhile, the northern farmer, whose climatic conditions preclude the production of peaches at home, had to pay at retail just ten times as much, per crate, as the Georgia growers were offered. The Maine potato grower who sells by the carload rarely if ever gets a quarter of the money his spuds finally bring in New York city retail stores. The western wheat-raiser, who likewise must sell by the carload or the trainload gets, we are informed by investigators, less than two cents from every dollar paid by the city hotel guest for his breakfast toast.

And so it goes through the whole discouraging list.

Finally and To Conclude.—The farmer to whom such a course is open must, for his own sake, seek a local market to which he can transport his own products in his own ways, in which he can sell direct to the consumer; and from which he can bring back in his own pockets the full value of his goods, unshared with peculator or profiteer.

The farmer who can't thus get into direct touch with the consumer must eventually resort to co-operative selling, like the Citrus associations of California, the Berry co-operatives of the Hudson Valley, the butter and bacon farmers of Denmark, and various others.

Since he can't control the market in which he has to buy he must, by some means or another dominate the market to which he sells.

If he must sell at wholesale, he must be permitted to buy at wholesale. If he, on the other hand, must buy at retail, he must be permitted to sell at retail.

At present, he is in precisely the position of the penny-pitcher who hears his opponent lay down the rule, "Heads I win, tails you lose."

He may not bring up in the poorhouse, but he'll never own a house on Easy street till that sort of thing is ended.

THE FARMER.

5 Operations—15 years suffering with constipation—Kellogg's Bran restores health

Mr. Lancing's case is typical of thousands of others. He found permanent relief from constipation in Kellogg's Bran because it is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective. Read what he says:

Dear Sir:

I have been afflicted with constipation for the past 15 years, and during that time I have been in four different hospitals and submitted to five different operations that were the result of constipation. I was getting so bad that every meal I ate soured on my stomach. Two months ago I was advised to eat your Kellogg's Krumbled Bran. I tried it, as I was trying everything I could hear of. From that day on I have never taken a physic. My stomach does not sour any more and my bowels move regularly morning and evening. Yours sincerely,
Frank Lancing,
1306 Jefries Ave., Marion, Ind.

For permanent relief, eat Kellogg's Bran regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. It is guaranteed to bring results, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the delicious nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran—so different from ordinary brans, which are unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Try it in the recipes given on the package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is served by leading hotels and clubs in individual packages. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.

		Number	DOUBLE-FACED List Price
What'll I Do (Irving Berlin) / Love Has a Way (Victor L. Schertzinger)	Frances Alda / Frances Alda	1032	$1.50

Light, gracious waltz songs. The first number is slow in time but catchy in style, with a celesta interlude. The second is more dramatic, with subtle phrasing and timing.

Lucia di Lammermoor—Mad Scene—Part 1 (Donizetti) In Italian / Lucia di Lammermoor—Mad Scene—Part 2 (Donizetti) In Italian	Toti Dal Monte / Toti Dal Monte	6466	2.00

First records by this world famous colorature soprano of La Scala in Milan. The records, made with chorus, exhibit the most extraordinary vocal power, agility, and truth of pitch.

Flower Song (G. Lange, Op. 39) Violin Solo / Hearts and Flowers (Theo. M. Tobani, Op. 245) Violin Solo	Erika Morini / Erika Morini	6454	2.00

Old-time favorites; two slow, tender melodies. The technical possibilities of the violin are shown—harmonics, double-stops and the like, but pure melody prevails.

Melodious Instrumental

The Chantyman's March (Sousa) / Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company—March (Sousa)	Sousa's Band / Sousa's Band	19400	.75

Stirring marches, the first based on actual sailormen's songs. Clear, sweet, brass, bubbling wood-wind, crashing drums—these combine with true skill and power.

Popularity March—Part 1 (1 Washington Post—March (Sousa) 2 Up the Street—March (Morse) 3 Our Director—March (Bigelow)) / Popularity March—Part 2 (1 American Patrol (Meacham) 2 When the Guards Go By (Costa) 3 The Assembly (Smith) 4 Yale Boola (Hirsch))	Victor Band / Victor Band	34745	1.25

Issued as educational records—two marches arranged for promenades or "get-together" marches at community gatherings, with directions and whistle calls. Clear and loud.

Light Vocal Selections

Estudiantina Vocal Waltz / Carmena Vocal Waltz	Victor Mixed Chorus / Victor Mixed Chorus	19382	.75

Records to stir the blood—two waltz songs in the Spanish style, for a whole light opera company with a big orchestra behind. The voices are fresh, pure and inspiring.

I Wonder What's Become of Sally? / I'd Love You All Over Again	Shannon Quartet / Henry Burr	19415	.75

A ringing male quartet, with orchestra, introducing a strain of "Sally in Our Alley;" and a tenor love song in waltz time—a song of melting pathos.

Dance Records

Somebody Loves Me—Fox Trot / Lonely Little Melody—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19414	.75

Fox trots which are strongly contrasted in everything but their finish—so characteristic of the Whiteman style. The first has a long, smooth swing and interesting contrasts of melody.

Helen Gone—Fox Trot with vocal refrain	Vincent Rose and His Montmartre Orchestra	19398	.75
Rip Saw Blues—Fox Trot	Art Landry and His Orchestra

Clever fox trots; the second, with special "rip-saw" effects, introduces the first Victor Record by another famous California dance organization. "Helen Gone" is light and graceful.

Patsy—Fox Trot / G'wan with It!—Fox Trot	Art Hickman's Orchestra / Art Hickman's Orchestra	19399	.75

If you are looking for a melodious fox trot, try "Patsy;" it is smooth and highly rhythmic. "G'wan with It" is in very similar style, with plenty of saxophone harmony.

WESTMINSTER

Sunday was a perfect day for an automobile trip from Danielson to this place and church. Deacon and Mrs. A. C. Greene and members of their family, Miss Alice, who is now with her parents; George M. Greene, his wife and a son of Belmont, Mass.; Mrs. A. Greene from Fort Wayne, Ind., came in glad recognition of the 25th anniversary of Deacon Greene's reception by baptism and confession of faith as a member of Westminster church. The pulpit and the church, organ and sacramental table were decorated with hydrangea blossoms and Miss Frank S. Linnell, not yet able to attend the service, with pansies, asters, geranium, sweet peas and asparagus blossoms. During the worship, Deacon Greene spoke briefly of the many holy memories clustering around him on this sacred anniversary of persons and events of the remarkable span of life (he attains 95 years the 23d of this month) which he owes to his Christian living, and advised all desiring long life to decide for Christ and live wholly for Him. In closing, Deacon Greene pledged increasing loyalty to Westminster church and community. Then followed the communion service conducted by the pastor, Deacon Greene occupying the deacon's chair, used by him for 25 years while living here. Deacon Arthur Edmond passed the elements to the communicants. The full service was beautiful, as several remarked at its close, when all clustered around Deacon Greene and his family to exchange greetings and good wishes.

Among recent visitors in Westminister at Elm Arch farm were Mrs. Andrew Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stevens and Mrs. George Satton, all of Darien, making the trip by automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Nash expect to reside permanently at their farm in Hampton next year, when Mr. Nash expects to be retired from the employ of the New Haven railroad, where he has been a train despatcher for the past 24 years.

Miss Medora Galloway and a friend, graduate nurses of Bellevue, and formerly head nurses there, who have spent the summer at the home of Miss Galloway's parents, have returned to New York.

Last week, Thursday, Miss Willa Linnell, head of the English department in one of New York's high schools, and Miss Minnie Frost, the teacher in a New York junior high school, left to resume their work, after a summer vacation spent as usual in Rose cottage, home of Miss Linnell's parents. Miss Frost, during this time, has looked over and corrected the final proof of a work on English, written by herself with collaboration in several chapters by another teacher, and, which is already accepted as a text book by the New York city board of education.

Friday, Mrs. Amanda Stahlberg, her son, in third year high, and three little daughters, left for their New York home. Mrs. Stahlberg, a sister of Mrs. Helstrom, and family, have been here summers for seven years, and have become a part of the place by their friendly relation to church and community.

Monday evening, the town caucus was held at town hall with a good attendance.

He will be greatly missed in his home and the neighborhood.

He leaves his wife, a daughter, a son and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Caroline Palmer of North Stonington visited Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Marsh a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sweet, of Manchester were callers at the Marsh home Sunday.

WATCH CELERY WITH CARE OR BLIGHT WILL COME

Blight may appear now at any time on celery. The plants should be watched very carefully from now on. If any indication of the yellowish-brown blight spots appear, the plants should be thoroughly sprayed or dusted with copper sulphate mixture. In the case of the spray, one can use "Pyrox," Bordeaux lead, etc., or home-made mixture of four pounds of blue vitriol and four pounds of lump lime, or six pounds of hydrated lime of 50 gallons of water. In the case of dust one should use the 6 per cent copper dust mixture.

COW POX FOUND ON CATTLE, EASY TO REMEDY, HOWEVER

Cow pox is found on some cattle. It is a germ disease in the form of contagious inflamation of the udder. It is also found attacking the heels and lips of horses. This disease is first noticed by a slight fever, then the teats become tender, red in color and hot to the touch, then, blisters form which later develop into brownish-yellow scab. When milked they become raw sores. This disease will spread rapidly from one cow to the other from the hands of the milker. It is harder to control in the fall and winter because of the cold weather. If any cattle have the pox, now is the time to clean it up. Milk as gently as possible and do not wet the sores with milk. Mix up a solution of an ounce of hyposulphite of soda in a pint of water and wash the sores frequently. This will prevent the sores from developing.

DON'T CUT SECOND CROP OF ALFALFA, SAYS EXPERT

Prof. L. A. Dalton of the New York State college of Agriculture says many New York state farmers are now harvesting or have just completed harvesting their second crop of alfalfa, and are wondering whether or not to try to take another cutting this fall. His advice is, don't. He points out that in most cases the second crop of alfalfa has been cut at least two weeks later than usual, and that if a third crop is harvested, the alfalfa plants will go into the winter with only a scanty growth to protect them.

Prof. Dalton says that it would be better to have a fair crop of hay from the first two cuttings than to cut three times or a little larger crop and leave the field barren when cold weather comes, for a good stand of this legume is worth taking care of.

If the field is old and is to be plowed up and cultivated the following spring, of course these warnings need not be heeded, Prof. Dalton says, and the owner can take his choice of cutting a third crop as late as he wishes.

LAWNS CAN BE STARTED THIS MONTH

It is possible to start the lawn in the fall. If the weather continues normal, anytime between now and the middle of September will be satisfactory for sowing grass seed.

The lawn to be seeded should be prepared by loosening and pulverizing the soil before the seed is sown. On a quiet day just before a rain is the most preferable time. The seed should be broadcast at the rate of from three-fourths to one pound a square rod, a light sowing being made in one direction and being duplicated at right angles to the first sowing, to insure a more effective distribution of the seed. The seed should be covered not over a quarter of an inch, and this may be done by raking lightly or scattering a thin covering of loam after the seed has been broadcast.

After the grass is well up it would be wise to roll the lawn, in order to firm the earth closely about new roots, but the grass should not be cut until it is four or five inches long.

Recovering old lawns depends considerably upon the amount of sod already established. If there are poor spots, reseeding is preferable. If, however, the lawn is simply thin and the grass very scanty although well distributed, it is probably better to try to encourage new growth from the plants already established, by top-dressing with fertilizers and mulching thinly for the winter with barnyard manure.

A good seed mixture consists of four parts by weight of Kentucky blue grass, one part red top, two parts English rye and one part white clover. This mixture is recommended by the Massachusetts Agricultural college. A more expensive seed mixture, but one to insure a beautiful lawn, combines four parts by weight of Rhode Island bent grass, two parts English rye and two parts red top.

A healthy lawn and well established sod will not permit entrance of weeds.

It is only when the lawn is poorly seeded and ill cared for that weeds will creep in. It is important that the grass seed mixture be first-rate quality.

SAVE SOME CORN FOR SEED— SHORTAGE LIKELY THIS YEAR

A probable shortage of good seed corn in some sections is predicted by the United States department of agriculture in consequence of the unusually late spring and continous cool weather, factors which have caused corn to be very late. Much of this year's crop may not mature enough to make the best seed before a killing frost. Then too, many farmers have had to replant their spring planting, drawing heavily on their supply of old seed corn. The higher prices being paid for old corn at the present time are tending also to deplete this supply of corn from which seed could be selected in an emergency.

It is suggested that before selling or feeding old corn apparently good seed ears be picked out. These should be saved for testing later in the event that corn does not mature this fall.

The best seed corn is that which has matured on the stalk. Corn gathered in the milk stage, if carefully dried and handled, will germinate under favorable conditions, although it will not have the vigor that mature corn would have. Satisfactory seed corn can be selected, however, any time after corn is in the harddough stage. The same points should be observed in selecting seed from immature corn as would be observed under ordinary conditions. Select seed only from normal, vigorous plants; avoid smutted plants, stalks that are down, and those that are prematurely dead.

Corn which contains much moisture must be handled very carefully. It should not be put in piles or stored in such a manner that the ears touch each other. Hang the ears separately in a loft that is well ventilated and where the temperature will not reach freezing. Even if not of the best, using early selected seed of a strain known to be good will be safer than having to buy seed of unknown adaptation and productiveness.

Most communities are in touch with reports from the weather bureau to such an extent that a coming frost may be known somewhat accurately. At the first suggestion of frost, therefore, it is urged that farmers make at least a small selection of seed. If frost holds off longer and seed can be selected from mature corn, the immature seed can be used for feed, the only loss being the labor of gathering and drying it.

COCKLEBURS FOUND POISONOUS TO LIVESTOCK AND POULTRY

Cocklebur plants are poisonous to swine, cattle, sheep and chickens, according to the United States department of agriculture. This weed has long been suspected, but many persons thought that deaths reported from this cause were produced by the mechanical action of the burs rather than by the toxic effect of the plant. While the seeds are very poisonous, stock poisoning, the department says, is caused by feeding on the very young plants before the development of true leaves.

To avoid losses from this cause the most important thing is to prevent the animals from eating the weed. If there is a shortage of good forage, they may eat enough of the young cockleburs to cause serious results. Feeding milk to pigs immediately after they have eaten the weed has proved beneficial probably because of the fat content. Good results also may be expected by feeding them bacon grease, lard, or linseed oil.

Sept. 6th recalled the Groton centennial 43 years ago, which was also the yellow day. The 7th of Sept. that year was the hottest day of the summer and there was a severe drouth as well. The yellow day was thought by many to be sent by Providence in memory of what happened at Groton Height 100 years before on Sept. 6, 1781.

The parade will pass through Bank street, to State, to Broad, to Hempstead to junction of Mercer street and then come to a halt. All the national and organization colors that were massed at the head of the column will then be grouped about the speakers' stand in Williams Memorial park and the bands will mass with other bands in front of and facing the speakers' stand. The two divisions will form line and halt at Hempstead and Division streets. The speaking program will then be carried out.

The condition of William Pelton, 32 Golden street, who was struck by an automobile owned by L. Henry Saxton, 327 Broadway, Norwich, and operated by Mrs. Saxton, in this city, last Monday, has taken a change for the worse and tonight his recovery is doubtful. At Lawrence hospital it was stated that Pelton's condition had grown considerably weaker and that his condition was considered much worse than during yesterday. Pelton was walking across the crosswalk at the corner of Huntington and Church streets when the automobile came along and before Mrs. Saxton could cause the speed of the car to be greatly reduced Pelton was struck and knocked to the highway. He was injured internally besides sustaining lacerations and bruises.

The New Haven police tonight requested the New London authorities to be on the lookout for a Ford touring car stolen from the former city this evening. The car bears registration X-3007.

Mrs. Ida Williams, 410 Pequot avenue, was struck by an automobile, owned and driven by Richard Morris, 18 Mountain avenue, this evening. The woman was taken to Home Memorial hospital, where her injuries, which consisted of contusions and lacerations were treated. Mrs. Williams was walking across the highway south of Thames street, when injured.

Mrs. Robert Andrews and infant son, of 18 Lewis street, and Mrs. Richard Brigman and infant daughter, Hartford, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Charles B. Bradley, a sailor at the submarine base, went down to Shaw street last evening to get some liquor. He had been there before, but he was free from drink then and knew just where he was going. That was not the case last night, for though he remembered that he procured liquor he did not know just where he obtained it. Finally he wandered into the yard of a tenement occupied by Italian people and he endeavored to open the door, but he met with resistance from the man of the house and a police officer was called. Bradley was down and out. In the police court today he was fined $10.

The same penalty was meted out to Patrick Kennedy for the same offense. Patrick sent for his wife and she produced the wherewith that kept her husband from going to jail. But she told Patrick some things that he should pay heed to, when she gave up her money.

People who have uncertain employment have come to the conclusion that they cannot pay the rents for tenements that they have been paying for during the period when there was abundance of work and when wages were higher than they ever were and higher than they are ever likely to be again. So they are seeking homes a little removed from the city. They have also concluded that they must skip carfare payments too, and thus save nearly half their rent in that way.

Samuel Harris, manager of Hart's Fur Shop, State street, late this afternoon was ordered to appear in the police court by Sergeant John Cavanaugh, upon instructions to do so issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin. A young woman, until recently employed by Harris, is the complainant against him. It is alleged that the young woman recently went on a vacation and at the time she was away from her employment a coat belonging to her was stored in the place. When the girl returned from her recreative trip and went to the store Harris is alleged to have insisted that the young woman was indebted to him in the sum of $15 as a result of the vacation. The girl denied the accusation and demanded her coat, but Harris is said to have refused to allow her to take it. The young woman then visited the office of Prosecuting Attorney Cronin, who caused Harris to be summoned into court when he heard the girl's version of the affair.

Mrs. Robert Jones, of 115 Green street, complained to the police late this afternoon that she had been robbed of $97 by a woman, who visited the house in the guise of a fortune teller. Mrs. Jones stated that the supposed fortune teller appeared at home about 3.30 o'clock and desired to tell the fortune of the occupant of the house. Mrs. Jones finally consented and during the delving into the past, present and future of the patron, the fortune teller managed to obtain knowledge of where the money was secreted, and watching her opportunity, stole it. After the "fortune teller" had disappeared Mrs. Jones discovered her loss and reported it to the police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case, but he was unable to obtain clues that would lead to the apprehension of the female crook. The "fortune teller" was described by Mrs. Jones as being 35 or 38, dark complexion, slim build, about five feet, four inches in height and weighing about 140 pounds. She wore shell glasses, a blue jersey suit and, brown satin hat.

The traffic sign at the approach to the Hamilton street bridge was found demolished late this afternoon. It is believed that the sign was struck by an automobile and tossed to one side of the structure.

An automobile, registration N-7613, listed in the name of Thomas J. Thomas, 26 Belden street, was operated through the streets of Willimantic this evening at a reckless rate of speed. William E. Jackson, county detective for Windham county, detected the car speeding and when he signalled the driver to stop the latter refused to do so, even failing to stop when Jackson blew his whistle. A search here for Thomas failed to locate him. The man is employed as cook in a Bank street restaurant.

Ernest Roff, colored, of Matthews county, Hick's Wharf, Va., and employed on a bony fish steamer, showed his honesty this evening when he stumbled and fell through a window of the Marsh building on State street by leaving money at the police station to pay for the damage in spite of the fact that the window was broken through accident.

Roff went to the building to have repairs made to his clothing and as he descended the stairs, stumbled and fell against the glass in the door entrance. The glass was shattered, and Roff offered to pay for the damage, making the offer to the tailor. The tailor insisted on $20 being left in his possession and when Roff reported his acts at the police station the police station the police took charge of his money. It was then revealed that the replacing of the glass probably would cost less than $15. If the repairs cost in excess of that amount the owner of the building will pay the difference.

Miss Helen Gilmore, Hope street, employed in the office of City Treasurer Herbert J. Hungerford, has resumed her duties after having her vacation of a fortnight.

Mrs. Annie B. Peckham and Mrs. Mary J. Rogers, 604 Bank street, are in New York, to remain two weeks.

A persistent rumor has been in circulation yesterday and today which connects a former New London resident with having committed an assault on a young girl, while the couple were passengers on one of the New London line steamers recently. No confirmation of the report could be obtained, however, either at the office of the New London line here or in New York.

The rumor was to the effect that the New Londoner boarded the steamer here for New York and while the trip through the sound was being made he became acquainted with a woman and her young daughter. The New Londoner had a stateroom, but the mother and daughter had not made their reservation. The man offered to allow the young girl to occupy a berth in the state room and the mother allowed the girl to do so. When the steamer reached New York the New Londoner was among the first passengers to leave and when the mother went to the stateroom she was informed of the daughter's assault. When the mother and daughter left the steamer the girl's condition became such that she was taken to a hospital where she has been under treatment since.

The body of John Dombrowski, whose death occurred yesterday at Norwich State hospital, was forwarded today to Bridgeport, where the funeral and burial will take place.

John Dunfee, a soldier, who was dishonorably discharged from the army a short time ago, will be given a trial in the police court tomorrow on the charge of attempting to steal an automobile and intoxication. This afternoon Dunfee was in the act of driving the automobile owned by Richard Hendel, 20 Home street, but a short time before Dunfee's attempted theft was discovered.

Mrs. Hendel operated the machine to a point on North Bank street, midway between State and John street, where she parked it while she did shopping. While Mrs. Hendel was absent Dunfee, who was formerly a chauffeur, looked the car over and then entered it. His act was observed by Patrolman George Perkins, who informed motorcycle officer of Dunfee's apparent intent to steal the machine. Officer Babcock went to the car where Dunfee was seated at the wheel and detected that the occupant had turned on the switch and was about to start the engine. Dunfee was taken from the automobile and locked up.

A woman may gain her point, but she seldom acquires it at the end of a lead pencil.

Over and Gone Is the Summer

Over and gone is the summer, and over the reign of the rose;
Rapt moments that rippled in meter, now pass to the plainest of prose;
For the myriad melodies rising, at morn, from the leafy hill
The continuous chirp of the crickets, at night, when all is still.

With the first faint breath of autumn, southward the swallow goes;
Over and gone is the summer, and over the reign of the rose.
From the withered weeds by the wayside, the web of the spider is spun,
And the sunflower droops in the garden, that yesterday looked on the sun.

But their heads are heavy with sorrow, their eyes are blurred by the rain.
Over and gone is the summer, and over the reign of the rose.
And with her foot on the threshold waits, our lady of the snows.

With his golden largess lessened, "the light of the whole world dies."
The beautiful story is ended! With a sigh, the volume we close;
Over and gone is the summer, and over the reign of the rose.

My Skin
Is due to a super-clay
By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 40 years in the limelight—after 25 years as a stage star—I still look a girl of 19. The thousands who see me daily know that, and wonder how this came about.

The chief reason lies in a new-type clay. I started years ago with the old-type clays, crude and muddy, which so many still employ. They brought me amazing results. But I have kept in touch with scientific progress, and in 20 years it has brought me a clay which gives multiplied results.

Today I have what experts call the last word in facial clay. It is white, refined and dainty. And it embodies many new discoveries. Until I obtained this, I never knew one-tenth what clay could do.

Now I am supplying this clay to others. I call it my White Youth Clay. All druggists and toilet counters have it—exactly the clay I use. And I am stating its results to girls who want more beauty and to women who want youth.

My White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights. Many women seem to drop ten years with one application.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. No girl or woman who once enjoys its results will ever go without it.

I want you to know what it does. My good fortune obtained it for me. I was famous as a beauty, so every expert sought to give me the greatest aids to beauty. Now I wish to bring like benefits to millions.

Write me for my Beauty Book and I'll send with it something else to please you. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, Sept. 11.—Rallying tendencies characterized today's stock market. Selling pressure was applied soon after the opening against some of the grangers and a few industrial specialties, but it failed to bring out much long stock and eventually was lifted with the result that prices moved irregularly higher.

The scarcity in the floating supply of popular stocks at current price levels generally was construed as an indication that stocks were in strong hands after the recent sharp reaction. Omission of the Eaton Axle and Spring dividend was the only adverse news and was offset by an ease of time money rates and higher commodity prices.

Trading in United States Steel common was unusually light, although the stock closed 3-4 higher at 107 1-2, its top price of the day. Baldwin, American Can, Dupont, General Electric, Allis Chalmers, Allied Chemical, Davison Chemical, Mack Truck, National Lead, Tobacco Products and Union Tank Car showed net gains of to 2 1-2 points.

Oils again appeared to be under accumulation, net gains of a point or more being scored by Marland, Houston, General Asphalt, Mexican Seaboard and Atlantic Refining. Buying of these issues was based on reports of a further curtailment of production in some of the principal mid-Continent and western fields.

Active selling of Great Northern Pfd., which broke 3 3-4 points to 60 1-2, undoubtedly reflected speculative disappointment over the semi-annual earnings, but good buying support was provided and the stock rallied to 62 3-4.

Another attempt to depress the St. Paul issues failed to make much headway, the net losses being limited to small fractions. Northern Pacific and Chicago and Northwestern lose 1 1-4 and 1 3-4, respectively. Southern Railway common, the regular dividend on which was declared today, closed a point higher.

Schulte Stores was in brisk demand, closing at a net gain of more than four points. General Baking jumped 7 3-4 to 130 and International Telephone closed nearly 3 points higher at 83 7-8.

Call money was unchanged at 2 per cent. Time money rates showed an easier tone, but business was quiet. Commercial Paper held steady.

Foreign exchange rates pointed upward with some short covering reported as a result of the extension of the Morgan $100,000,000 credit to the Bank of France. Demand sterling rallied about a cent higher around $4.44 3-4 and French francs were active around 5 1-8 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 11.—Dullness characterized today's bond market, which was featured principally by partial recovery of St. Paul Railway issues after yesterday's drastic decline. Foreign obligations held firm but fractional price recessions were general in domestic issue.

Official denials of a rumored recapitalization by the St. Paul allayed the uneasiness of bondholders today, although liquidation of the road's 4 per cent bonds maturing next year continued in heavy volume. The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound 4s also extended their decline.

French government bonds responded slightly to announcement that the $100,000,000 credit granted by J. P. Morgan & Company to the Bank of France for stabilization of the franc had been renewed for another six months. This development, however, appeared to have been discounted several days ago. Activity continued unabated in the new Belgian 6 1-2s, which attained a new top price at 96.

Conflicting price movements marked trading in other sections of the list, advances of a point or so in Chicago & Alton 3s, Wilson 7 1-2s, Atchison General 4s and Steel & Tube 6s being offset by similar losses in Baltimore & Ohio 4s, Grand Trunk Railway 6s and the Wilson convrtible 7s.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 11.—Speculative interest in today's curb market was confined to a half dozen issues, the general list showing irregular price changes.

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal company, one of the recent strong spots, closed three points lower at 48 while the Pittsburgh & West Virginia Railway company rights were unchanged at 9 7-8. Hudson & Manhattan railroad climbed more than 2 points to 22 1-4 and Dubilier Radio advanced 1 1-2 to 49 1-2. Ward Bakine, Class B, was again active on merger rumors, touching a new high on the movement at 27 7-8.

Active Oils showed little change, Gulf of Pennsylvania, up 1, making the best showing in that group.

Bond prices displayed a firm tone with the bulk of the buying in the foreign and public utility groups.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Huge export sales, said to total as much as 7,000,000 bushels, hoisted the wheat market today. Corn, oats and rye were also sharply advanced. All grains closed strong at virtually the day's top figures, wheat 3 7-8 to 5 cents net higher, December 132 3-8 to 132 1-2 and May 138 7-8 to 139, corn 3c to 4 3-8c up, oats at 1 3-8@1 1-2 to 1 5-8c gain, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 17c.

It was evident that the Canadian government crop report was largely responsible for the unusual activity on the part of foreign buyers. The Canadian report, although taking no account of damage by frost since Sept. 1, pointed to a greatly reduced yield compared with 1923, and was associated with an unexpected upturn in the Liverpool quotations.

Despite reports of general rains in Argentina, the volume of wheat buying here continued to broaden as the day approached to an end. It was said the breakup of the Argentine drought has failed to prevent damage which would mean less than normal production. On the other hand, reports of wet weather in Canada causing damage to wheat in shock as well as delay to harvesting and crop movement acted as a further stimulus to the rush here for the buying side of the market.

Wet weather and predictions of frost did much to enhance in the corn market the influence of wheat strength. Besides, a leading crop expert who has made a tour of the corn belt, predicted a greater scarcity of the contract grade corn this year than has ever before been experienced. Oats followed wheat and corn upgrade.

Provisions, although weak early, were later responsive to the bulge in value of grain.

METAL MARKET.

New York, Sept. 11.—Copper easy. Electrolytic, spot and futures 13 3-8. Tin easy. Spot and futures 51.00. Iron steady and unchanged. Lead steady. Spot 8.00. Zinc steady. East St. Louis spot 6.20; futures 6.20-6.25. Antimony, spot 7.75.

SELECTMEN ACCEPT BID OF $525 FOR DWELLING HOUSE AND BARN

The two and a half story frame dwelling house and the frame barn that are to be removed from the premises at 536 Main street, East Side, where the new $100,000 school building is to be erected, will bring the town of Norwich $525; this amount being the highest bid for buildings which the selectmen have received. The bids from those who wanted to buy the buildings were opened Thursday morning by the board of selectmen, William S. Murray, Charles P. Bushnell, and Patrick T. Connell, and the award was made to Clarence F. Lynch of 509 Main street, whose figure was $525. The second highest bid was from Warren W. Chapman of Fowler avenue for $400 and there were two other bids at smaller figures.

It is required that a certified check for at least 5 per cent. of the purchase price accompany the bid and that the balance shall be paid on or before Sept. 15, while the two buildings must be removed from the land on or before Oct. 1.

WATERFORD MAN IS SUICIDE BY DROWNING

General despondency over his health and the prospect of an operation for kidney trouble which was to have been performed Thursday morning are conditions to which are ascribed the suicide Thursday morning of John H. Miner, 62, of Station 13, Waterford. He drowned himself about 5 o'clock in a pond near his home.

Arising before neighbors had begun to stir, he threw himself into a small pond in the rear of his garage and was found floating face downward five hours later by his brother, Willis Miner, and a neighbor.

Mr. Miner left a note on the kitchen table of his home where he lived alone which read: "I am worse. Am going to mother. Will find me in the pond. Can't stand it any longer."

He was missed when the family of Arthur Davis living above him, failed to see him about. The shades were drawn of the Miner place and the doors locked and suspecting that something might be wrong they notified his brother, Willis E. Miner, living next door. Mr. Miner entered the house and after searching the premises, found the note on the kitchen table.

Accompanied by George Gallup, William Copeland, Howard Barnes and a Mr. Harris, Mr. Miner went to the pond at the rear of the premises where the body of the elderly man was found. Dr. Ross E. Black arrived shortly afterward and Health Officer Dr. G. S. Allyn of the town of Waterford was called on the phone, but was out of town and could not be reached. Acting in his capacity as deputy health officer for Waterford, Dr. Black viewed the body and gave permission for its removal.

Mr. Miner was a highly respected citizen of Waterford, deeply interested in Boy and Girl Scout work and in everything pertaining to the best interests of the town. He was unmarried, leaves a brother, Willis E. Miner, and one niece, Mrs. William Copeland. His mother died about ten years ago.

John H. Miner was born in Waterford Jan. 8, 1862, the son of John B. and Mary H. Miner. He was a farmer as a young man and later engaged in the poultry business. He resided in Waterford during his entire life and since the death of his mother 10 years ago lived alone on the first floor of the old family homestead at Station 13.

He had not been in the best of health for some time and about a week ago was taken ill of kidney trouble. His physician, Dr. Ross E. Black, had advised an operation and endeavored to have him removed to the hospital. Mr. Miner preferred to undergo it at home and Dr. Black was on his way to the Miner homestead Thursday morning when the body was found in the small pond which is about the size of an average kitchen but close to six feet deep.

Following the death of his mother, to whom he had been affectionately devoted, Mr. Miner took up scout work and had come to be recognized as a loyal friend of the boys and girls of Waterford. Almost every afternoon, when weather permitted, he could be seen traveling over the roads of Waterford with a big group of boy or girl scouts.

He was a member of Konomoc grange, No. 61, of Waterford, and of the Waterford lodge of Odd Fellows, in both of which organizations he took an enthusiastic and active interest. For several years he had canvassed for the Waterford Public Health Nursing Service and gave liberally of his means to that and to other charitable organizations.

Mr. Miner was a clean living, respected citizen, valued as a neighbor and friend, charitable and affectionately known to his townsmen as "Johnny." He was connected with the Bible school of the Waterford Baptist church conducted by the pastor, the Rev. George H. Strouse, but he never affiliated with the church. He was actively interested in nature, a lover of plants and regarded as exceptionally well posted on horticultural subjects.

HOW TO DETERMINE INCOME TAX PAYMENT

Persons paying their federal income tax on the installment plan either have or soon will receive their bills for the quarterly payments due not later than Sept. 15. Although the matter was explained in this and other papers at the time the 25 per cent. reduction in taxes was ordered, many people are prone to forget. If the total of your tax was $100, for example and you are paying in installments, the amount of your first payments was $25. By the tax reduction of 25 per cent., made June 2, the total amount of your tax was cut to $75. On $75 your quarterly instalments would be $18.75. As you already had paid $25 on the first installment, you naturally overpaid $6.25. Your June 15 payment, therefore, would be $12.50, you taking credit for the $6.25 overpayment. The law provides that half of the tax should be paid by June 15. Therefore, the $25 paid on the first installment, plus the $12.50 on the second, brought the total to $37.50, or half the $75, the total tax with the 25 per cent. reduction included. On Sept. 15, therefore the amount due is $18.75, and the same on Dec. 15, making total of $75 paid for the year. The suppositional $100 tax is, of course, used for purpose of illustration.

DELEGATES REPORT TO CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

At the close of the regular Thursday evening prayer meeting at the Central Baptist church interesting reports were given on the Ocean Park Assembly by the delegates from the local church, Miss Edith Ellis, Miss Genie Dean, Miss Viola Hill and Charles Hagberg. The assembly, which is held at Ocean Park, Me., and is the New England Baptist summer assembly, had an attendance of 1,000 delegates from various sections of New England. It was held the last ten days in August.

During the evening Deacon C. E. Smith was called on to voice the sentiment of the church membership regarding the valuable work done the past year by Miss Ellis, the pastor's assistant. Miss Ellis has just completed her first year as pastor's assistant at the Central Baptist church and in recognition of the anniversary a reception was held in her honor.

Refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by the social committee of the Intermediate B. Y. P. U. of the church. Courtnay Pitt was chairman of the committee and was assisted by Austin Covey, Laura Shields and Viola Hill.

Flynn, chancellor and secretary of the diocese of Hartford and Rev. John Neale, LL. D., pastor of St. Rose's Catholic Church at Meriden, to be right reverend monsignors has been made. Also the announcement of appointments to pastorates recently made vacant by deaths.

Rev. Peter H. McLean, S. T. L., pastor of St. Mary's Church at Milford formerly of Norwich and Colchester has been assigned to the pastorate of St. Augustine's Church in Bridgeport, an irremovable rectorship, succeeding Rev. James B. Nihill, deceased.

Rev. Michael J. O'Connor, pastor of St. James' Church at Stratford, has been appointed pastor of St. Peter's Church in Danbury, filling the vacancy caused by the death of Rev. John F. Ryan a native of Norwich. This is also a permanent rectorship.

Rev. Matthew J. Traynor, pastor of St. Mary's church, Bridgeport, has been appointed to the pastorate of St. Mary's Church, New Britain, succeeding Rev. John T. Winters, deceased.

Rev. Jeremiah J. Duggan, pastor of the Blessed Sacrament Church of Hartford, has been named as pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Meriden, where Rev. John T. Lynch, who died recently, was pastor.

Rev. John J. Burke, pastor of St. Paul's church, Glenville, succeeds the late Rev. John H. Walsh who was the pastor of St. Thomas' Church Thomaston.

Rev. M. Ernest Wilson, pastor of St. Patrick's church, Farmington, has been appointed successor to Rev. M. J. Traynor, pastor of St. Mary's of Bridgeport.

Rev. John J. Kennedy, pastor of St. Mary's Bethel, has been transferred to the pastorate of the Church of the Blessed Sacrament at Bridgeport, succeeding Rev. Jeremiah J. Duggan.

Rev. Otto Beaumister, assistant at St. Joseph's Church, Willimantic, has been appointed to the pastorate of St. Paul's church at Glenville as the successor of Rev. John J. Burke.

The vacancies caused by the transfer of Father McClean from Milford and Father O'Connor from Stratford have not yet been filled. It is possible that pastorates may be established among some of the mission charges now connected with St. Mary's Church in Milford.

The numerous changes in parish assignments are due to the death of five priests of the diocese during the last three or four months.

MOTORISTS REQUIRED TO KNOW HAND SIGNALS

Though the giving of hand signals is not required by law, examinations in the use of such signals are given by the state police who are charged with the duty of examining applicants for licenses. Failure in the proper use of signals is sufficient cause to bar the applicant from receiving a license, it was explained by Motor Vehicles Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel.

The use of hand signals in the operation of automobiles, however, is not required by law and when they are used imperfectly they only serve as a warning to the operator of the machine following that the one signalling intends, in some manner or other, to change the motion of his car to use such precautions as may be necessary to prevent accident.

The commissioner had previously pointed out in a prepared statement, that from the standpoint of education and experience the use of the hand signal had progressed to a state where it may be said to be universally used throughout Connecticut it being rare to find a person who drives on the road giving no signals whatever. From the viewpoint of the person who has to interpret that signal, however, it is not yet safe to assume that it means any particular action as it has been found that signals as given are not always exact and are not certain indication of what is going to be done in the operation of a car. It is, however, a cautionary signal that the person giving it is to do something and it is therefore incumbent on the part of the person receiving such signal to refrain from acting until he has assured himself of what the intended movement of the other car actually is.

The code of signals in use in the eastern states is effective if they are properly given, in the opinion of the commissioner and the code used in the western group of states, though materially different in the manner of giving them, is just as effective. The increased use of closed cars has made it difficult for the adoption of any universal system of hand signals, but the commissioner believes that education along the lines of caution and intelligent use of the mirror, now a part of the equipment of closed cars, eliminates the necessity for the giving of many signals.

Despite the fact that signals are not required by law, the department is making every effort to see to it that signals, when given, shall be correct in the information intended to convey. This is shown by the vigilance of the inspectors charged with the examination of applicants for licenses. A bulletin issued by the department of motor vehicles on August 15, indicated that of 10,264 accidents in the state from January 1, 1924 were directly attributed to failure to signal, and 1,331 were caused by inattention. In this latter class the failure to signal and 1,331 were caused claim several of the enumerated accidents.

PAGEANT TO DEDICATE LITCHFIELD COUNTY FOREST

On Saturday afternoon, Oct. 4, the first unit of the People's Forest will be dedicated by a historical pageant, given by the Connecticut Forestry Association, which has raised the money for the forest, and the State Forestry Department. Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins of Norfolk, Connecticut, is patroness. The Hartley corporation, of which she is president, cooperated with the Motor Vehicle Department and Yale University in the important automobile traffic conference held recently in New Haven.

For nearly two years the Connecticut Forestry Association has been collecting funds for the purchase of this memorial forest. It is known as the People's Forest and has now reached sufficient size to justify its transfer to the state, the idea being that a public forest, given by popular subscriptions would be a fitting memorial to the great forests, which made up the background of our history. The value of land in the vicinity is about $8.00 per acre, so that the slogan "Eight dollars buys an acre," has been the battle cry of the association in its campaign. Many women's clubs and D. A. R. chapters of the state have subscribed.

The forest is located along the banks of the Farmington River, near New Hartford. It is easily reached from all parts of the state and roads will be posted leading to it. It is part of what was the last great body of primeval forest to be cleared. It remained the haunt of the red men and the wild animals until after the Revolution. The site is a beautiful one for camping and will help supply recreation as well as to grow timber. It is, therefore, fitting that it be restored to public ownership.

The pageant, which is entitled The People's Forest—A Forest of Refuge, has been prepared by Mr. Elliott P. Bronson, a native of Winchester, Connecticut, who had had much experience in pageantry. He produced the "Spirit of Winchester" pageant, recently on the 150th anniversary of the settlement of that town.

The story involves much of the interesting history of the region about the forest, the selling of the land by the Indians to the white men; the removal of the last area of virgin forest by the settlers and the subsequent return of the forest.

The place chosen is a natural amphitheatre with the forest-covered hills serving as the body of the theatre; the forest for the wings, with tall pines for a proscenium arch and the Farmington River for the scenic background.

Many prominent people from the state will take part. Boy and Girl Scouts and Campfire Organizations will provide the choruses. The historical costumes will be furnished by the Winsted Historical Society and the Indian costumes from the private collection of Mr. Bronson of Winchester, which is one of the best in the country.

At the conclusion of the pageant, officials of the Forestry Association will formally convey the forest to the state officers.

The committee in charge consists of Austin F. Hawes, state forester; P. L. Buttrick, secretary of the Connecticut Forestry Association; Mrs. F. W. Gerard of New Haven, Conservation Chairman of the State Federation of Women's Clubs; Miss Katherine Netleton of Derby, vice regent of the State D. A. R.; and Elliott Bronson, Sr., a prominent lumberman of Winchester.

REARDON SUCCEEDS GILPATRIC ON REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE

Putnam, Sept. 11.—John F. Reardon, agent of the Grosvenordale company mills in Grosvenordale and North Grosvenordale and president of Putnam Rotary club, was today elected a member of the republican state central committee from the 28th senatorial district by the district delegates, who met in Putnam this afternoon.

Mr. Reardon succeeds G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer and cashier of the wrecked First National bank of Putnam, who resigned a week ago. He always has been active in republican affairs in this section of Connecticut but has never held office on town, county or state committees. Before coming to Putnam he served in executive positions in mills in Fall River, New Bedford, Manchester, N. H., Norwich, this state, and Millville, N. J.

EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS ARE BETTER IN ENGLAND

A bulletin just received by the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce from the British Chamber of Commerce for August, 1924, gives a more rosy picture of industrial conditions in England than has generally been presented since the war.

It says: "British trade union returns indicate that at the latest date available, only 7.8 per cent. of their members were unemployed. This is the fifth successive report showing a decrease of idleness. To put the matter in another way, employed working people constitute ninety-two per cent. of the total. This compares with 86 per cent. at the close of 1922, and 83 per cent. when conditions were at their worst in August, 1921. Better yet the British workman's pound or shilling buys more now than before. In 1920 it would purchase only 40.29 per cent. of what it would buy in 1913. By successive steps the value has advanced with but temporary interruption until now the workman's pound is worth about 57 per cent. of the pre-war measurement. In the interim wages have also been keeping step. That conditions are really improving is borne out by government and commercial banking statistics, dealing with savings.

This corroborates a similar bulletin received by the State Chamber some time ago from the International Chamber of Commerce at Paris.

Recovered Strayed Dogs

C. V. Pendleton recovered two stray dogs Thursday morning. They came to the place of Mrs. Rix in Chesterfield in the morning and took care of them, fed them and notified Mr. Pendleton where they were. The birddog, Pete, was footsore and weary, but the hound had stood the wanderings together since Sunday in better shape.

Adolphe J. Dery of Grosvenordale has been appointed postmaster to succeed J. E. Surprenant, announces the post office department in Washington.

September Roses

Mrs. Addie Davis of Fox Hill picked a rose Thursday from a bush in her yard that measured five inches across. The bush bearing the rose was only six inches high.

GOOD NEWS FOR AILING WOMEN

Much has been said for and against proprietary medicines by the medical profession. It will interest every woman to know that in a recent country-wide canvass of over 121,000 purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as to the results received from its use, the replies received showed that ninety-eight out of every one hundred women had been benefited by its use. Therefore every sick and ailing woman owes it to herself to give this remedy a fair trial.

DEFENSE DAY OBSERVANCE CONDUCTED ON VAST SCALE

More Than 1,000,000 Citizens in the New England Area Joined With the Military Organizations in the Activities—In More Than 150 Cities Defense Day Programs Were Carried Out—It is Estimated That 100,000 Citizens Enlisted For the Day in National Gaurd Organizations—Practically Every City and Town in Connecticut Observed the Day—In Washington and New York Imposing Celebrations Were Held.

Boston, Sept. 12—All estimates of the numbers who would take part in [illegible] day observances in New England fell short of the actual response to the country's call, army officers in charge of registration in the first corps area, comprising the New England states said tonight. Public interest in the nation's first "defense test" far surpassed the expectations of its managers these officers said, and many more than the estimated 1,000,000 citizens in the New England area joined with the military organizations in the activities of the day.

At the army base, South Boston, headquarters for the registration of the services, hundreds of telegrams were received from reservists in all parts of the United States proffering their services "any time, any where." The possession of automobiles all day long brought thousands eager to register for service, while a special staff was kept busy answering telephone messages from those who could not come in person. Colonel George S. Goodale, in charge of registration at the base, said that exact figures would not be available until tomorrow but that reports indicated that the response here and in other New England centers was most satisfactory.

"It is safe to say," he added, "that the defense day movement has been supported to a far greater degree than we expected. We estimate that at least one million citizens enlisted for the day in national guard organizations in this area."

Reports received at headquarters here from more than 150 cities and towns in New England where defense day programs were prepared indicated generous cooperation by citizens with army, national guard and reserve organizations. A feature of the program in Cambridge was the enrollment of citizens between 20 and 40 years of age in an effort to estimate the potential man-power of the city in time of emergency. Other centers held military parades and patriotic exercises.

Speakers from military life addressed a noon-day meeting in the historic Old South Meeting House in Boston explaining the meaning of defense day and preparedness. Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole presided and among the speakers were Attorney General J. E. Benton, representing Governor Cox, Major General Andre W. Brewster commanding the first corps area, Mayor Curley and James T. Williams, editor of the Boston Transcript.

OBSERVANCE WAS GENERAL THROUGHOUT CONNECTICUT

New Haven, Sept. 12—Connecticut mobilized her man power in a most encouraging manner today in observance of national defense day, and celebrations were held in practically every city and town in the state. As a display of the State's defensive machinery under call in the event of a war emergency it was a success in every way and as a military spectacle it exceeded every expectation. Indeed as in other cities throughout the nation, the feature of the program was the parade this evening when National Guardsmen from this section of the state marched through the principal streets of the business section. The parade was reviewed by Governor Fitzgerald and the citizens' committee from the steps of the court house.

Following the parade exercises were held on the central green with the [illegible] Lieutenant Colonel Ode C. [illegible] former Mayor Samuel Camp[illegible] and Philip Troup as the speakers. All of the officers of the regular army, National Guard and reserve in this corps area were present. A dinner of the local sector of the association of the Army of the United States after the green ceremonies. Exercises were held in most of the towns here today.

A feature of the program in this city was the Colonial Dames of America presented a stand of colors to the [illegible] division. The presentation followed a parade of [illegible] and patriotic and fraternal organizations. Following the parade Adjutant General George [illegible] and Colonel D. Gordon Hunt[illegible] the military units and [illegible] called at the armory. [illegible] ceremonies were held in [illegible] and Waterbury and programs of an elaborate nature were [illegible] Stamford, Danbury, New [illegible], Bristol, Middletown [illegible] towns and towns through [illegible]

It was estimated that more than five [illegible] were assembled in the [illegible] throughout the state today.

The [illegible] National Guard today made up of approximately 4,[illegible] officers and men, many of them [illegible] three years have spent [illegible] one night each week drilling [illegible] receiving instructions and preparing themselves for call should the [illegible] be faced with an emergency. [illegible] these men assembled today were members of the 26th Infantry and [illegible] units of the reserve seventy-[illegible] Regulars of the United States army and navy also were [illegible] parts in the state's programs. [illegible] coast artillery men from Fort H. [illegible] were given a prominent [illegible] the parade at New London, [illegible] navy men at the Submarine [illegible] at that city.

The Connecticut National Guard, it is claimed in the ceremonies today, is well equipped, well drilled and ready for any emergency. It consists of the [illegible] fifth infantry brigade, a regiment of field artillery, which has [illegible] batteries and three combat trains [illegible] the three battalions, a squadron of cavalry having four troops, two in Hartford and two in New Haven, an [illegible] squadron with one of the finest aviation fields in the country, located at Hartford, a medical regiment with full hospital and ambulance facilities, a tank company, a motorcycle company, with fifteen motorcycles and cars, a battalion of reserve naval militia, a national guard reserve and a coast artillery (242nd artillery) battalion with three batteries.

The seventy sixth reserve division which includes this state and Rhode Island, assembled nearly four hundred officers and men in Connecticut today. The following have headquarters in Hartford: Seventy sixth division, special troops of the division, 304th infantry, seventy sixth air service, 301st medical regiment and seventy sixth division train. Other units are: 417th infantry, Bridgeport; 418th infantry, New Haven, both forming the 151st infantry brigade; the 151st field artillery, New Haven; 355th field artillery regiment, New Haven, and 301st engineers, New Haven. These units are all part of the seventy sixth reserve division and do not include coast artillery corps units or corps area troops assigned to Connecticut.

HOW DEFENSE DAY WAS OBSERVED IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Sept. 12.—An ununiformed army of plain American citizens tramped by a reviewing stand here today to be greeted by the plain citizen who is commander-in-chief of all the armed forces of the nation—the president.

The route lay up Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the great eclipse south of the White House, where the marchers formed in a solid mass to hear Secretary Weeks and General Pershing speak. At one side stood the reviewing stand with a great cluster of amplifiers. There President and Mrs. Coolidge stood through all the time the column was passing, flanked by Secretary Weeks and General Pershing and with other high government officials.

The parade was punctual to the moment. Behind the police escort came the officers of the general staff. They were followed by the staff reservists, many in civilian clothing, and then the regulars. There were groups of civilians among the regular commands. Infantry, cavalry and artillery rolled by, and their appearance and bearing delighted the president's eye, he said to those about him.

Then came the National Guard. More civilians were needed here to fill out the ranks. Behind these were the organized reserve units assigned to the capital. Barely a handful of reserve officers and a great mass of volunteers filling the ranks, composed each.

Behind the military formations, were the auxiliary agencies, the nurse corps, the Red Cross and many fifers, and throughout the marching line were banners showing what units were filled up for the day and in many cases where the men to fill them came from. There were engineer regiments with personnel drawn from power companies and engineering concerns, bakery units filled up by employes of big bakeries, motor transport detachments with full strength drawn from the automobile industry to the city.

When the last unit had moved by to its place on the eclipse, the president and Mrs. Coolidge returned to the White House while Secretary Weeks and General Pershing stayed to express their gratitude to the waiting host.

General Pershing told the marchers that "without your support, the country would soon drop back into our pre-war attitude of inaction and neglect."

"Remember that these plans contemplate a citizen army composed of men who in peace times go about their ordinary business; otherwise, in their stead a much larger standing army would be required," he said.

General Pershing also declared that the defense test was "not a show of strength aimed at any power," asserting that any such conception was "baseless, not to say childish."

Before the parade, the trio of American world girdling planes, piloted by the officers who have carried them practically around the world against every obstacle, circled over the city in an aerial parade of their own in honor of Defense Day. They later rode in machines in the marching column. As they passed the reviewing stand, President and Mrs. Coolidge both singled them out for greeting with smiles and waves of the hand.

NEW YORK SIMULATED DEFENSE OF INVASION

New York, Sept. 12.—The nation's metropolis put on war paint today and, just for fun, played it had been called upon overnight to muster all resources to the defense of an enemy invasion.

Coast defenses were bombarded by make-believe hostile airplanes dropping flour-bag bombs. Forts of the harbor belched harmless black smoke in retaliation.

Human elements of warfare, in full uniform, marched through the streets in step with martial music; chieftains of industry sat saboards of strategy solemnly mobilizing on paper, war's material requirements.

Churchgoers attending special services were admonished to shun alike the war-slacker and the vote-slacker. Admirals and generals addressed cheering throngs in all the parks and public meetings places. From one sunrise to one set the ormories felt once more the thrill of their importance.

At Fraunce's Tavern thousands met for parade formation at the spot where George Washington long ago bade farewell to his officers at the close of a war that was not make believe.

The parade wound through the streets of financial Manhattan to the board steps of the old sub-treasury. There patriotic service of songs and speeches was held.

Demonstrations were also staged throughout the city during the noon period. At Staten Island there was a parade of military and civilians, terminating at Fort Wadsworth in a sham battle.

Meanwhile, squadrons of army trucks drove up from the battery and along Broadway, accompanied throughout the rout by bands and uniformed marchers, while off on a side street, the foremost captain of industry—potential dollar-a-year men—met at the Engineer Societies building as boards of strategy to compute war needs.

PRINCE OF WALES TAKES HIS FIRST RIDE IN SUBWAY

Syosset, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The Prince of Wales today had his first ride in a New York subway, and for the second time ascended to the pinnacle of the Woolworth building to have a look at New York and the harbor.

Though he was accompanied only by Captain A. F. Lescless his secretary, and Major O. N. Solbert, the aide assigned to his party by the United States war department, he was recognized several times and twice had to use his wits to avoid being surrounded by large crowds.

While the three sat in a Brooklyn-bound sub-way train—it was mid-afternoon and the royal party had no trouble getting seats—two girls at one end of the car started with startled eyes. One turned and whispered: "It's the Prince of Wales." The other was doubtful. While both continued to stare the three young men left the train.

A few others appeared also to have spotted the Prince on his unexpected appearance in the tube trains, but whether they knew who he was or not, the were undemonstrative.

CHARLES W. BRYAN OPENS CAMPAIGN IN HOME STATE

Madison, Neb., Sept. 12.—Amid picturesque rural settings, Governor Charles W. Bryan launched his home state campaign at the Madison county fair grounds here today with a renewed attack on the republican administration for "unfriendliness" to th efarmer, and with an outline of the principles for which the democratic party stands to improve agricultural conditions.

The administration in power, he said, had given th epeople the "highest tariff the country ever saw," which resulted in the elimination of the farmers market abroad for his surplus products and increased the price for what he buys in this country.

Special interests, Mr. Bryan said, put th erepublicans in power in 1920 and these interests were instrumental in having passed "class" legislation, including the present tariff law, which the agricultural interests of the south and west were now protesting against.

In addition, 11,000 children were baptized and underwent preparation for church membership, during the year, which swelled the total to 172,000 minors receiving Christian instruction.

The Towner report indicated an increase of 438 Sunday schools in the foreign mission field in 1923, making 11,095 in all; and an increase of 244 churches, bringing the total to 3,134.

PERSHING BADE FAREWELL TO COMRADES OF THE ARMY

Washington, Sept. 12. — John J. Pershing bade a soldierly farewell tonight to comrades of the army to which he was given all the active years of his life.

Tomorrow, at noon, on the 64th anniversary of his birth, he will pass automatically to the retired list. To the last moment tonight, he worked nard and long for the cause of national defense, to which he turned with single-handed vigor when the great army he commanded in France had passed back to civil life, its victory achieved.

There will go to the nation presently an executive order signed by the president telling of this soldier's retirement and his services to the flag. It is a signal honor reserved for soldiers who reach the highest rank, a friendly parting touch of official appreciation. But tonight to old friends, army comrades some of them since cadet days at West Point, and through them to the rank and file of the regular forces, that Pershing said good-bye, his words being carried over thousands of miles of telephone wires and borne from coast to coast and border to border by radio to listeners everywhere.

There was nothing to regret in honorable retirement, he said, although there was something of sadness in the breaking of old ties and comradely associations of long years in the service. But he reminded his comrades that they, too, soon would pass the age line, adding cordially:

"And, remember, my latch-string will be always out for you."

BRITISH COMMENT ON LEOPOLD-LOEB SENTENCE

London, Sept. 12.—Throughout the hearing in the Franks kidnapping and murder case ayt Chicago, the British press regaled the reading public with columns of sensational descriptive stories, but few of the papers made editorial comment when Judge Caverly passed sentence upon the culprits, Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr.

In a column editorial, the Daily Telegraph says:

"Whatever may be thought of the sentence imposed, it seems to us that moral courage was not wanting in the judge who pronounced it."

After declaring that "if the crime was unique, so, unquestionable, was the trial," the editorial concluded:

"Loeb and Leopold believed in the power of money to save them from the scaffold and plainly said so. It is among the most deplorable features of this trial that it will have confirmed millions besides themselves in that belief."

The Result of Advertising

Ideas on many things have undergone a decided change in the last 75 years, and today these changes are taking place more rapidly than ever before. There has never been a time when evolution hit such a furious pace—when conditions change so quickly—when standards of living were raised so consistently.

You may not realize it but advertising is responsible for much of this improvement. Advertising has taken its place as a leading force in solving the wants of the people.

Stop and think how many appliances you use, the foods you eat, the clothes you wear and other articles entering into your daily life, were popularized through newspaper advertising Then you will realize what a debt you owe to advertising.

The advertisements mean a lot to you. Don't fail to read them in The Bulletin.

Reorganizing Con. Textile Corporation

On the Assumption That B. B. and R. Knight Will Be Taken Over By the Bondholders.

New York, Sept. 12.—Reorganization of the Consolidated Textile Corporation, it was learned in Wall Street today, is proceeding on the assumption that B. B. and R. Knight, its principal cotton goods manufacturing subsidiary, will be taken over by the bondholders as a result of the recent default on the September 1 interest payment due on the outstanding 7 per cent. gold bonds. If this is done, the manufacturing business of the corporation will be centered in the south, where it has nine mills, as the only New England property owned outside the Knight company, of which it owns the entire common stock, is the Windsor Print Works in North Adams, Mass.

The regorganization plan also involves the formation of a new selling company as the sales-end of the Consolidated organization was handled through Converse & Co., the common stock of which is owned by B. B. & R. Knight. Converse did a large business not only of Consolidated but for other mills, and it is likely that a stiff competition will develop between it and the new sales organization, as well as wth the other selling companies already in existence.

The Knight Co. has 17 New England mills with an aggregate floor space of 3,000,000 square feet and they are equipped with 533,547 spindles and 13,310 looms. They are located in Providence, Woonsocket, Warwick, West Warwick, Cranston and Scituate, Rhode Island, and Dodgeville, Hebronville, Sutton, Douglas and East Douglas, Mass.

The Consolidated Mills are located in Raleigh, Burlington and Shelby, North Carolina, Lynchburg, Va., Pelham and Lafayette, Ga., Henderson, Ky., and Bonham, Texas.

BUTLER SPIKES STATEMENT IN ATTACK BY LAFOLLETTE

Chicago, Sept. 12.— William M. Butler, chairman of the republican national committee tonight issued a statement constituting an attack on the address with which Robert LaFollette opened his campaign for the presidency Labor Day.

"There is not a single soup line in the country" said Mr. Butler, after quoting Senator LaFollette by saying "the consumption, per capita of such a staple food as bread is very much less than it was a few years ago. It means that there are many people in the United States today who are hungry for bread," Mr. Butler added.

"Bread consumption has been decreasing, but Mr. LaFollette distorts the fundamental reason therefor—the increasing prosperity and higher standard of living of the people. Every population decreases its bread consumption by an increase in proportionate consumption of meat, fruits, sugar and other more varied foods.

"There is a growing danger of monopoly in that some 70 per cent. of the production of Cuban sugar is controlled by four or five groups who can readily get together out of reach of our Sherman act. These are the groups which are clamoring for a reduction in the duty on sugar, which Mr. LaFollette is also demanding. The American beet sugar industry protected by the republican tariff, is the only reason they are unable to control the price."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE MAY SPEAK AT PHILADELPHIA

Washington, Sept. 12.—President Coolidge expects to speak at Philadelphia on the night of September 25 at the exercises celebrating the 150th anniversary of the meeting of the first continental congress, although he has not yet definitely accepted the invitation.

The president also made it known today, he expects to announce his decision very soon on the tariff commission report on sugar duties, a reduction in which is understood to have been recommended by a majority of the commission.

PROPOSAL FOR SETTLEMENT OF FRENCH DEBT TO THE U. S.

Provides For Payment of the Debt in 67 Years at the Rate of $100,000,000 a Year and Interest—Plan Prepared by Edward N. Hurley, Member of the American Debt Funding Commission and War-Time Chairman of the Shipping Board—Mr. Hurley Has Found French Reaction to the Proposal Favorable.

Washington, Sept. 12—Edward N. Hurley, member of the American debt funding commission and war-time chairman of the shipping board, today submitted to Secretary Mellon a plan for settlement of the French debt to the United States, and informed the secretary he had found French reaction to the proposal favorable. Mr. Hurley, who returned from a visit to Paris two days ago, discussed the whole problem while there with French government officials.

The plan, basicly, provides for payment of the debt in 67 years at the rate of $100,000,000 a year and interest, together with an agreement by this government to reinvest half of the annual payments in French industrial bonds. Other features of the proposed terms were not disclosed by Mr. Hurley, who left Washington today for his home in Chicago.

It is the hope of the author of the plan to create a basis for settlement that will serve the double purpose of liquidating the French debt to the United States and, at the same time, provide help for French industries similar to that expected to result for Germany through the Dawes settlement. Mr. Hurley declared the reinvestmen feature should mean a revivification of French industries which he regarded as necessary to any settlement with that government, otherwise, he said the tendency would be to put too great a burden on the debtor nation.

Mr. Hurley proposed a requiremen that one-half of the sum reinvested or one-fourth of the total annual payments, be put into new industries such as water power development, a phase of French industrial life that needs attention. Among French industrial leaders, he said, the plan was given a hearty reception and he expresses hope that it would serve as a basis, at least, for refunding negotiations between the two governments.

The proposal was submitted to Mr Mellon as the chairman of the debt commission, and, it was said, will be considered at the next meeting of the commission, the date for which has not been set.

GREAT BRITAIN'S RIGHTS TO RESERVATIONS UPHELD

Geneva, Sept. 12.—(By the A. P.)—Great Britain's right to sign the compulsory clause of the world court of justice were reservations, was upheld today by the sub-committee of the league of nations assembly, which will report its findings to the full juridical commission of the assembly.

This decision means that not only Great Britain, but any other state which subscribed to the obligatory arbitration clause, has a perfect right to make whatever reservations it chooses. The jurists frankly admitted tonight that this decision in principle at least will open the way to a general weakening of this world court statute.

Great Britain made it clear today that her reservations would affect only the fourth category of juridical matters open to compulsory arbitration of all points of international law, and the British representatives indicated that they would confine their reservations to questions of maritime law which may be raised by some power in consequence of some action by the British fleet while performing a peace service for the league of nations.

In other words, Great Britain does not intend to have her interpretation of sea law submitted to obligatory arbitration.

The property has been in the control of the Astor family since 1867 and the hotel, as now built, was completed in 1897.

GASOLINE REDUCED AS "A DEATHBED REPENTANCE"

Washington, Sept. 12.—Secretary Work, replying to John W. Davis' criticism last night at Denver of the republican reclamation policy, declared in a statement today that Senator Pittman, democratic, Nevada, was to blame for the defeat in congress of the entire reclamation program of the fact finding commission.

"This senator," the secretary said, "started a filibuster on the conference report of the senate and house conferees committee and refused to let it come to a vote before the hour of adjournment.

"It might be mentioned that the fact finding commission a bi-partisan body, was appointed by the present democratic administration. He is supporting President Coolidge in his message to congress on this subject."

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Friday the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. stopped in some additional regulations on automobile parking around its passenger station property in Danielson. An officer, representing the company, cleared all the space in the rear of the Exchange block, at the rear of the Everyates property and all along the easterly, northerly and southerly sides of the station. All of this area is usually covered above to capacity with parked cars and buses. Excepting for four spaces leased by the railroad company to public service cars operators, no more parking will be allowed on the railroad company's property around the station. Taken with the parking restrictions recently put in force by the borough, automobile owners are considering a suggestion that they put wings on the machines and park them in the air while they are engaged with any business that may delay them in the business section for a while.

For the first time in several years, during any except the dead hours of the night, the spaces around the railroad station were free of parked cars Friday. The railroad company owns practically all the land between its passenger station and the Exchange building and Everyates buildings, its tracks now running practically up to the back piers of these buildings. This is not generally remembered by the majority of Danielson people, the railroad company having no ownership, as has been done in eliminating parking [illegible] railroad square, on the [illegible] tracks, near the [illegible] and Daconias [illegible] by the railroad [illegible] parking restrictions [illegible] to that area.

PUTNAM

The civil side of the superior court was opened in Putnam Friday morning, Judge Hinman presiding. As it is expected that criminal business will extend into next week no assignments of civil cases were made. Judge Hinman stating that Judge Maltbie would be in Putnam next Friday to hold a short calendar and assign civil cases. Both of the uncontested divorce cases on the list went over to the next short calendar.

Attorney Sabin S. Russell, counsel for the receiver of the Manhasset Manufacturing company, stated that he expected the final account would be ready next month. He said that cash and securities on hand amounted to $750,000 and that there proved outstanding claims of $5,870,527.76, that one payment to creditors amounting to $624,747.11 had been made and he asked for an order to pay another equal amount, which was granted.

National Defense day was observed in Putnam by the suspension of all business in the city, with the exception of the bank, the post office and the superior court, in the afternoon. The parade got under way on schedule and the program was carried out as announced in this column Friday morning. The line was headed by an escort of eight policemen, followed by the Putnam band, the Headquarters Company, Dr. E. F. Perry and seven aides on horseback, members of the G. A. R., High School Cadets and Red Men. There was a good sized gathering at the high school athletic field to watch the events by local amateurs.

Whether County Commissioner E. H. Corttis' name will appear on the republican ticket of the town of Thompson at the November election, as one of the candidates for a member of the school board remains in doubt, although he was nominated to fill what some believe to be a vacancy and others do not. The caucus was an interesting one and Corttis, for a number of years a member of the board, lost out on the regular nominations.

When it came to making the nominations for members of the school committee O. E. Sward and Town Clerk Clerk Dyer S. Elliott were placed before the caucus. Mr. Corttis' named followed. Sward was nominated by acclamation, but there was a contest between Elliott and Corttis, the vote being by ballot. Elliott received 93 votes and Corttis 77. Elliott was declared elected.

Before the caucus adjourned, Mr Corttis called attention to the fact that there was a vacancy in the school committee, as John Kennedy, a member, had transferred his residence to Putnam and was therefore disqualified and, ipso facto, no longer a member of the board. This opinion was challenged by several. Mr. Corttis read an opinion from a lawyer to sustain his contention.

Mr. Corttis was nominated and a ballot taken to see whether he would be elected or the situation left as it was. Corttis was supported by 84 votes to 66. On account of the legal aspect of the case George E. Whitney, chairman of the republican town committee, will seek legal advice, before filing the caucus return with the town clerk.

Other candidates for town officers were nominated as follows:

First selectman, C. V. Chase; second, George E. Whitney; assessor three years, Fred L. Hutchins; board of relief, three years, Burton Jacobs; auditor, O. E. Sward; grand jurors, J Emile Johnson, E. S. Backus and Timothy Davern.

Martin Hogan has purchased the former home of J. B. Tatem, Jr., on Tatem street. The price paid was $5,600. Another house on the same street has been purchased by Asa Ross for $4,000. Mrs. Mary Bishop has purchased a house lot in the rear of her house on Grove street and another in the rear of the house of Dr. E. F. Perry. The property was formerly a part of the estate of J. B. Tatem.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, town tax collector, has announced that he is a candidate for renomiation at the republican caucus Monday evening next. So far, no other candidates for the office have been announced. Last November Miron was elected to the office after winning the nomination in the caucus from Attorney E. C. Morse.

Deputy Sheriff George F. Holbrook, 81, who has been confined to his bed for nearly five years, died Friday afternoon at his home on South Main street. He had been a deputy sheriff for over 30 years and it was expressed wish that he continue to hold the office as long as he should live. Although bedridden for the past five years he has continued to be reappointed, in respect to his wish.

Deputy Holbrook was born in Pomfret and with the exception of a short period has always lived in Pomfret and Putnam. It was his boast that during all the years he has been a deputy sheriff he never used a billy or drew a gun on a man and that he never lost a prisoner.

Deputy Holbrook was a veteran of the Civil war. He was wounded at the charge on Fort Wagner and was captured and thrown into a rebel prison, first at Belle Isle and later at Libby. His wound never fully healed and had always given him trouble.

In November, 1919 Deputy Holbrook started with a prisoner to a penal institution at the other end of the state. He was taken with a chill before he had gone far, but kept on and made the long journey there and back in his automobile and when he returned, all but collapsed. He has been from his bed but once or twice since.

December 29th, 1916, Deputy Holbrook and his wife, who survives, celebrated their golden wedding. Besides his wife he leaves two sons, Gorge C., of Woonsocket and Henry of Abington and a daughter, Ruth E., wife of Barrak Smith, Jr., of Putnam.

REPUBLICANS NOMINATE J. R. WALSH, D., TAX COLLECTOR

Danielson, Sept. 12.—Featuring the republican caucus Friday evening was the nomination of James R. Walsh, the present democratic incumbent, as a candidate for tax collector. Attorney E. L. Darbie, chairman of the republican town committee, explained at some length why he believed that politics should be set aside in this particular instance and Mr. Walsh nominated to succeed himself. Mr. Darbie pointed out that Collector Walsh had made an excellent record and that it would not be advisable, the best interests of the town considered, to make any change in the tax collectorship this year. In explanation, Mr. Darbie said that there were uncollected taxes dating in some instances back to 1915. Collection of these necessitates litigation and in view of the fact that court appearances may be necessary in some cases, it will be better to have one collector familiar with all the facts, than to be required to use two or more collectors as witnesses. The nomination of Mr. Walsh was unanimous.

The list of nominees of the caucus follows: Assessors, three years, H. M. Thompson; board of relief, three years, William J. Young, selectmen, John A. Gilbert, Napoleon P. Gingras; agent town deposit fund, Frank T. Preston; auditor, E. C. Wood; collector of taxes, James R. Walsh; constables, John McFarland, George Labbe, Jesse B. Child, Louis F. Barstow; registrars, D. Fred Kenworthy, Frank L. Bennett, James E. Smith; school committee, three years, Damase Boulais, Arthur Burton.

The caucus was called to order by E. L. Darbie. Alma Forcier of Goodyear was named chairman and Mrs. Ida Armington was clerk.

BOSTON FIRM LEASES TWO OF MANHASSET MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 12.—Powdrell & Alexander, Inc., of Boston, has leased the No. 1 and 2 mills of the former Manhasset Manufacturing company and will begin operations about the first of October spinning cotton yarns. The concern will employ somewhat over 100 operatives.

The company that is coming to Putnam is interested in a number of large manufacturing enterprises among which is the Peace Manufacturing Company of Danielson which is engaged in the manufacture of scrims and other curtain material. The yarn manufactured in Putnam will be trucked to the Danielson mill to be woven.

It is said that the 15,624 spindles in the two leased mills in Putnam will be used in making 30 warp yarns on beams. It is understood that the company has taken a long term lease.

The announcement that these two mills of this former large plant will soon be in operation is hoped to be the forerunneh of a revival of manufacturing business in Putnam, which has been at a low ebb for over a year.

PATROLMAN JOHN T. RYAN ADJUDGED NOT GUILTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 12.—Patrolman John T. Ryan, for two and a half years a member of the Putnam police force, was completely exonerated by a jury in the superior court in Putnam, Friday afternoon, when they brought in a verdict of not guilty against the patrolman accused of transporting intoxicatig liquor. The jury deliberated a little over an hour.

The court room was crowded when the officer was vindicated and someone started to applaud, but the demonstration was cut short by the sheriff's gavel.

Ryan was arrested in July, following a raid on the City Hotel and the arrest and trial of the proprietor, Samuel Smith. At the trial of Smith his wife and daughters testified that Ryan had been to Providence with Smith and had transported beer to the hotel.

In his argument on behalf of his client, Public Defender Charles L. Torrey, made much of the fact that Ryan was one of those who participated on the raid at the City hotel and that the witness against him were Smith and his two former clerks, intimating hat it was a frameup and stating to the jury that it appeared to be a case of revenge upon the part of Smith, the state's principal witness.

Samuel Smith, proprietor of the City hotel testified that he had talked with Ryan regarding transporting beer from Providence. During the summer of 1923 Ryan asked Smith why he didn't get some real beer. He said every one was selling it. Witness said he purchased beer of a Worcester concern for less money than he could buy in Providence and the Worcester concern delivered the beer in Putnam. Ryan testified the Worcester beer and said that he liked the Providence beer better. Smith said he told Ryan he was afraid to take chances in going to Providence and transporting the beer to Putnam himself and then Ryan offered to go with him. They went about five times in Smith's automobile. When Smith told Ryan he was faraid of the state police, Ryan said that if he, Ryan, went with him there would be no trouble, for he was well known as a Putnam police officer and if seen in the car with Smith they wouldn't be bothered.

Smith told of a trip to Providence on the 25th of June, 1923, fixing the time as being the week before the Elks' fair. He said he wanted to get some beer for for that week and he and Ryan left Putnam at dark for Providence in Smiths automobile. Smith drove down. Ryan was present when the beer was bought, paid for and loaded into the automobile and Ryan drove the car home, reaching Putnam shortly after ten o'clock. They went to Providence by way of Chepatchet and returned by way of Danielson.

When they arrived in Putnam they drove into an alley between the hotel and the next building because people were coming from the theatre. Ryan and witness went into hotel and had some drinks of beer and whiskey. In a half hour witness went out and drove the car to front of hotel, near bar room door. A man named Christian and another named Patterson unloaded the 18 cases of beer from the car and Smith and Ryan received the cases at the door and took them to a rear room. A case was open and some of the beer was drunk. Smith said he had been in the liquor business 18 years and could tell by the taste of beer pretty close to what alcoholic content it contained. He estimated the content of the beer he and Ryan brought at 7 per cent.

The next day Ryan told Smith he hadn't enough beer for the week of the Elks' fair and also told him he need not be afraid to open up wide that week and to sell to anybody, as there would be no spotters around during the fair.

Smith then detailed the trip of June 27th when 36 cases were brought from Providence under about the same conditions. This load was put into the hotel through a rear door, on account of it being so large.

Smith said that Ryan was given free drinks for his trouble and that he also gave Ryan $5 for each trip, although Ryan did not ask for it but he did not have to force it on him. Smith said: "I gave him the $5 because I thought it was my duty to stand in with the police force of Putnam."

On cross examination, Smith said he was out on a bond of $2,000. That he was arrested last April for violation of the liquor law. He said he had not asked for leniency for giving his testimony and did not hope for it.

George F. Patterson of Providence, formerly night clerk at the City hotel Oliver Christian, a representative of the American Federation of Textile Operatives who was stopping at the hotel in the latter part of June, 1923, supervising a strike at the plant of the Manhasset Manufacturing company and Leopold Lachance of Webster, day clerk at the time, all corroborated Smith's testimony about Ryan's arriving at the hotel with Smith and unloading beer. The state rested and court adjourned for the midday recess at 12.15.

Ryon took the stand in his own behalf, when court reconvened, and was the only witness for the defence. His testimony was a general denial of all of the material allegations of the state. He denied ever having any conversation with Smith relative to the sale of liquor, or of ever transporting liquor with Smith, or anyone else. After his acquittal by the jury, Ryan, his wife and three small children left the court room.

As soon as the verdict had been rendere in the Ryan case a jury was quickly empannelled in the case of State vs Frank W. Russell, charged with perjury at a session of the city court in June, during the trial of Harvey Le Clair. Russell testified that he leased certain premises to Nellie Jacques when the prosecuting attorney expected that he would testify that he let them to LeClair. Russell was arrested immediately on the perjury charge and placed under a bond of $5,000 for his appearance in the superior court.

The first witness, Archibald Macdonald, Jr., clerk of the ciyt court, produced a certified copy of the trial in the city court and stated that Russell testified that he leased the premises to the Jacques woman. Macdonald also testified that upon the solicitation of Russell he had served a notice to quit possession of the premises on Harveyq LeClair. On cross examination, the witness admitted that when Russell first called him up regarding preparing the notice he, Russell, seemed in doubt on whom the notice should be served, but later called up and told him to serve it on LeClair.

J. F. Carpenter, prosecuting attorney, testified that following the raid at the premises owned by Russell he went to see Russell and Russell said that the premtses were rented or leased to Harvey LeClair.

Before court adjourned, Jover Berbere, 23, and Victor Pickard, 18, were sentenced to six months in jail after pleading guilty to breaking and entering in Pomfret.

Quality Gives This Car Distinction

There is a solid, sound quality element about the Rickenbacker, that appeals to conservative, substantial people.

We are informed that this quality element alone, which is present in every part, piece and pattern of Rickenbacker, is very often the determining factor which influences careful buyers to select this carefully made car.

Wherever you find people of good judgment—people who are accustomed to the best things in life—you will find Rickenbackers in goodly numbers.

Folks have a feeling of security in choosing the Rickenbacker. They know their hard-earned money is well invested. They are assured of complete satisfaction. They experience a warm Pride of Ownership.

Then Rickenbacker is such a sweet car to drive. So sensitive to your slightest touch. Also remarkably economical on gas, oil and tires. It performs so consistently—and is so reliable and trustworthy under all circumstances.

Mechanically the car is perfectly balanced—has an endless list of engineering refinements—is harmoniously proportioned—and finally is so good to look at.

Rickenbacker is a family car—yet thoroughly modern—very modish and almost magical in performance.

Either the Vertical 8 or Famous 6 are light in weight—and light in price. Also easy to steer—and easy to purchase, for we will gladly arrange a series of payments, if you so desire.

Phone in today—let us demonstrate at your convenience.

OUT FOR COOLIDGE.

What is bound to be of much interest at this stage of the campaign is the declaration by the Springfield Republican for Coolidge for president. The Republican, despite its name, and the claim to more or less independence, has been a strong supporter in recent campaigns of democratic candidates. It was an ardent Wilson backer and urged the election of Cox. Consistency might have led it to stand by John W. Davis, a part of the Wilson administration, but it says "Mr. Davis since his nomination seems to be helplessly stalled. His campaign gets no where" and it sees Mr. Davis not as strong as Mr. Wilson was in 1916 when he was elected by a scant margin.

The Republican prefers President Coolidge should win. It says "It is necessary to eliminate Mr. La Follette whose policies it proceeds to lay as it points out the dangers of such features of his programme as the attacks on the courts and government ownership of railroads, points to the indefinite aims and declares its unwillingness to give any support to a movement involving such an extremely radical reorganization of society.

The accomplishments of the Coolidge administration in connection with the Dawes plan and its support of the world court are looked upon with favor. In connection with domestic issues it figures both Coolidge and Davis may be rated as conservatives. It knocks out any Davis claim to liberalism by saying "Mr. Davis' liberalism is not conspicuous enough, compared with the president's, to impress the majority of detached observers. . . . The president is more liberal than a strong wing of his own party here in Massachusetts, as the recent primary campaign has disclosed. He is for the federal child labor amendment and for further federal aid to education. He released the so-called political prisoners. His present attorney general has 'cleaned up' the department of justice as the liberals desired. Acts count for something."

The Republican finds that "Mr. Coolidge can be trusted as much as any human being likely to come within reach of the presidency to purge the government of corruption and to maintain the promise of administration on a high level." It considers him cautious and slow, but he doesn't quit until it is too late.

Figuring that the La Follette movement "will dig its nails into the next congress and the next administration" regardless of the one elected, it believes to bring about a prompt settlement of the election without letting it get to congress "whose 1922 mandate has gone flat and stale, no more feasible course presents itself than to elect Calvin Coolidge in November."

That from a newspaper that has been comfort to the democratic party for so long is a sizing up of the situation which will no doubt coincide with the views of many others. It is an appraisal that indicates how the serious minded are thinking.

Coolidge is supported and advocated because he means the quickest way to the best government.

DESTRUCTIVE FOREST FIRES.

From time to time there are reports of the huge losses sustained through forest fires. To those who are not concerned in such matters it may seem of little consequence. It is possible for some to consider that it simply means the destruction of so much underbrush and plenty of it will grow quickly enough.

To those who understand the situation in regard to our timber supply, and who are acquainted with the serious inroads that are being made into it through various channels, there is no underestimation of the detrimental effects of forest fires. When it is shown that the Pacific coast states have suffered a loss of more than four million dollars this season, and that is regarded as small in comparison with other seasons, it is easily appreciated that there are far better uses to which such timber could be put than having it devoured by the flames.

When valuation is placed upon the forests destroyed consideration is given to the matured trees, but it is to be realized that there is always much young growth which is at present of little value but which is depended upon for future years. Thus the fires deplete the present supply and blacken the prospects for the future.

That there will always be such fires must be conceded. The problem is to keep them as few and as small as possible. When it is figured that from 30 to 47 per cent of the forest fires are due to forest visitors, campers, sportsmen, smokers, motorists, berry-pickers, hikers and hoboes there is certainly work that can be done by other than the fire fighters.

Prevention of many forest fires is not only possible but entirely feasible. With such a large proportion of them due to those who frequent the woodlands it is important that the responsibility which rests upon such visitors should be persistently shouldered. Carelessness, and too many times bordering on criminal carelessness, is responsible for too many destructive fires. The best fire fighting is done before the fire starts.

THE DEADLOCK RULE.

It took the state convention at New Haven a long time to get action on the new rule dealing with the selection of candidates in case of deadlocks in senatorial and probate districts, but there was need of providing means of getting away from such a situation and permitting nominations to be made, and the solution agreed upon should do it.

It is not probable that there will be many instances where delegates are unable to agree upon a candidate. In fact the cases are few where some means has not prevailed for reaching an adjustment or compromising upon a candidate. When, however, there have been instances where an agreement has been prevented and no party candidate has appeared for that reason it becomes evident that the situation is one which should not be permitted to exist.

The calling in of the chairman and vice chairman of the town committees of the respective towns involved in a deadlock produces an even number of new participants but with their influence, advice and assistance they can give the choice of a candidate should follow. These town chairmen are certain to be familiar with the situation in the district, to be able to bring the delegates to compose such differences as create a deadlock and to see that some nomination is made. Candidates for office should not be lacking just because those named to select them refuse to agree.

Fortunately the instances are not numerous when conventions divide equally and each side stubbornly insists upon being satisfied. Invariably there is recognition of the duty to the party and to the district, out of which nomination is given to one or the other of the contestants or a third is united upon. The question as to which town should get the nomination is quite as often the bone of contention as the individual to be named. The chairmen in such cases add numbers to the conference out of which some agreement ought to be reached.

PROTECTING THE SCHOOLS.

In the city of Cranston, R. I., some months ago attention was directed to the schoolhouses, where it was alleged there was inadequate fire protection. Interested parents and others discussed the situation, but apparently no further action was taken relative to providing the funds or doing the work that would better the situation.

Fireproof structures are of course the solution, but not many communities are in a position these days to discard present buildings and enter upon an extensive and expensive building programme.

Not a little indignation is being manifested in Cranston this fall because steps have been taken to replace the old stairways with fireproof construction. Just what the answer is does not appear. Possibly there is not sufficient sentiment for the changes to warrant the outlay, and it is likewise to be remembered that not very much in the way of such extras can be done until there is money provided in some way to pay for it.

If Cranston is seriously concerned over the inadequate protection of its school building, a matter which can be expected to interest most any community, there ought to be no great difficulty involved in bringing it about. Safe stairs, fire escapes, doors that open outward and a careful protection of the furnace room are most certainly called for in any school building, especially if it is of wooden construction. Such betterments should not only be advocated but demanded, but not many are to be expected unless they, or the funds for them, are authorized. Possibly the trouble in Cranston is that what is everybody's business is nobody's business. Possibly recommendations have been made to which no attention has been paid. There is a whole flock of inferences that might be drawn, or overdrawn, under such circumstances. It doesn't appear, however, that Cranston has ever directed what should be done for the better protection of its schools. It has talked but done nothing. If the situation is actually serious and conditions exist which are dangerous, it is to be hoped that Cranston doesn't wait until fire forces it to do that which common sense might now direct.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Two hundred and twenty-two years ago today (September 13, 1702) an event transpired of considerable importance, as measured by the sentiment of the day. That event was the first commencement of Yale university. Such college anniversaries are still held in high regard as they mean very much in the intellectual life of young men and women. As might have been expected the graduating period in the college of that period was largely a religious function. It was stiff, dignified and stout. Nothing of a light or worldly character was thought of. To have suggested such things as dancing, ball games or any other forms of social or athletic life would have been evidence of total depravity. Possibly we may be swinging a little too far away from the stately and the dignified. Reactions everywhere are apt to swing to the opposite extremes, but sooner or later the medium is found.

The supremacy of man over all other forms of life is everywhere recognized. We recognize this in spite of the fact that in mere physical strength many of the lower animals surpass him. The elephant, the horse and ox are bigger than he, and can pull a larger load; the deer can run faster, and the eagle outstrips him in the freedom of locomotion. But man is easily the master of them all. Science teaches it, the Bible proclaims it, and history proves it. And yet how easily human life crumples up before the terrific forces of the natural world! The northeastern gale that swept over all New England, August 26, with such destructive fury showed how puny is the physical life of man when compared with these elemental forces. Big trees by the hundreds were blown down, big branches twisted off, and unstable roofs disloded. One can hardly surmise what the result would have been had the wind blown with twice the velocity.

One of the fundamental things we learned in the study of natural philosophy was the conservation of energy. That is, while forces may change the channels of their operations they lose nothing by the change. By the different uses made of them they are not worn to a frazzle. A force that was in existence a thousand centuries ago is an undiminished force today however various may have been the changes through which it has passed. While this is an indisputable theory of science, it is extremely difficult to prove it practically. For illustration, take the heavy rain they referred to. Its energy was incalculable, but the next day its force had been spent. The sea smoothed out again, and the trees had stopped their swaying. Where had that force gone? Was it changed into another form, that is, transmuted, or was it merely transmitted to some other channel? If so what was the new form or channel?

"Let the white race be supreme, now and forever," is a quotation from a speech reported to have been made recently in southeastern Connecticut. Before we shout our approval of this sentiment, may it not be well to inquire just what was meant by that word "white"? Did the speaker refer to the Anglo-Saxon race, or to the Teutonic, or to the Slavic, or to all three of them? He could have done so with equal propriety because there is scarcely any difference between them as to color. The peoples living in the northern half of Europe have decidedly lighter complexions than those who border upon the Mediterranean sea. But shall we say that the Norwegians are more capable to rule than the Italians? After all these centuries in which the various nationalities have intermarried, is it not a little difficult to say just which is the "white" race?

Defense day has come—and gone. As far as the returns can be gathered up and sifted, it would appear that the United States of America is still on the map, and that (up to a late hour yesterday) war had not been declared upon any other nation, very likely to the profound regret of the ultra-pacifists. Some woeful predictions were made as to the outcome of this country's taking account of its preparedness stock. Why should it be looked upon as a carefully studied insult to other nations? Except the Mexican war which was over a disputed boundary line, when has this country declared war against another nation? In 1898 she did protect little Cuba from the tyranny of Spain, and the rest of the world approved. Is it not as reasonable to protect a nation as it is a bank? Suppose we take away all defences from the vaults of a bank, what in all human probability would happen within twenty-four hours? Why should Defense day be considered as a red flag waved before the nations any more than the time-honored Memorial day or the Fourth of July?

Is not the word "luck"—especially when the adjective "good" precedes it—greatly overworked? It is very easy to say of a successful man that he has been "mighty lucky," or, he has had "good luck." It is doubtless true that a favorable time or opportunity has had much to do in making certain efforts successful. But mere chance plays a less conspicuous part in bringing certain results than the popular mind realizes. If the history of every great success could be laid bare, it would be found that back of what is often called "bull luck" would be a high degree of real brain power. What we easily call "luck" is grounded in intelligence. When a man seizes upon favorable seasons and makes the forces of nature play into his hands does it not indicate foresight and stamp his work with other evidences of ability?

"To call some men beasts is to slander the lower animals," says Prof. John M. Tyler in his The Coming of Man. The long history of man's development shows us that the above statement is not wide of the mark. In his evolution untold ages ago, man left the inferior animals far in the background. In the race for superior existance man easily won out. We cannot tell how long ago it was that the lower animals began to lag behind. They parted company forever when man rose to the discovery and recognition of spirit. This shows that he had the capacity for religion. In what is called Neolithic days there was the rapid rise of morals to supremacy and last of all the knowledge of personality. These qualities have raised him to the mountain top of creation. Now with the possession of these superlative qualities for man to live the life of those he has long since outdistanced gives force to Prof. Tyler's words.

There is a close parallel between the infancy of the human race and the infancy of the individual man. No form of animal life is weaker, and more dependant upon others, at birth than the human child. The little one cannot feed himself, or clothe himself, or in any way protect himself. He has at first no power of locomotion. But the time comes, and it is not very long, before he can feed himself and in other ways look after himself. Just so the infant human race. The earth spontaneously produced what he needed before he had learned to labor. But the time came when he had to catch his game, till the soil, build his hut, clothe his body. These duties did not come all at once, but they came in time and he had to meet them. From prehistoric times man has eaten his bread by the sweat of his face, and the real man is willing to sweat at his toil.

TEN-YEAR-OLD PANAMA CANAL PASSES SUEZ

"Ten years old on August 15, the Panama Canal is such a lusty youngster that already it is outgrowing its original clothes and has Uncle Sam wondering if it will need larger garments.

"In traffic handled it has passed middle-aged, 55 year-old Suez Canal and is now the world's greatest artificial inter-oceanic waterway.

"At the present rate of traffic growth the canal will have to be greatly enlarged before it is three decades older.

"Such is a thumb-nail sketch of the accomplishments of America's 'Big Ditch' on the eve of its second decade," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The waterway was formerly opened to the world August 15, 1914.

U. S. Owns World's Two Busiest Canals

"The Panama Canal's birthday achievement gives United States the proprietorship of the two busiest canals in the world, the Panama and the Sault Ste. Marie," continues the bulletin. "The latter, still handles twice as much traffic as the Panama Canal although it is open only eight months of the year.

"Panama Canal's ten year record reads like the story of the traditional American boy, rising from poverty to wealth. It is a record of financial success beyond the dreams of many of its staunchest adherents; it is a record of service success; it is a triumph of sanitation; it is, as Viscount Bryce predicted, 'the greatest engineering achievement of history or of prospect.'

In 1923 canal tolls totaled more than $17,000,000 against expenses of $4,317,000, a net profit equal to more than 3.5 per cent of the construction cost of the canal, $375,000,000. In 1923 nearly 4,000 vessels passed from ocean to ocean. But the fiscal year of 1924 far outstriped 1923. Of the 107,000,000 cargo tons transferred in the decade, more than a fourth is credited to 1924 and the tolls rose to $24,290,000. Expenditure figures are not yet available.

Canal Gets Birthday Gift

"President Coolidge recently gave the deserving Panama Canal a birthday present; an executive order putting aside 22 square miles of additional country for the Canal Zone. This acquisition will be converted into a large reservoir to save up the charges floods which would otherwise go over Gotun dam spillway. It is estimated that this new reservoir will store up a supply of water sufficient to meet demands until 1955 based on a normal growth of trade.

"The new Alhajuela project will further increase the size of Gatun lake which is already the largest artificial body of water in the world. Its present area, 165 square miles, is one third the size of Lake Champlain.

"Ever since the Panama Canal was proposed predictions of its great boon to trade have filled the press. Ten years show what the canal is good for. Oil is king at Panama today, the figures show. The tonnage of oils, chiefly crude and refined petroleum, passing through from the Pacific to Atlantic exceeds the total of all other products. In the opposite direction oils stand second only to iron and steel.

Big Help to Coastwise Traffic

"From the United States' industrial east the iron and steel come and thousands of tons of other manufactured products and textiles for South America, Australasia, and the far east. From these also come at the rate of more than 100,000 tons in one year ammonia, cotton, sulphur, cement, coal and coke, metals, ores and paper.

"In United States the great argument for the Panama Canal, after its necessity for defense, was its advantage to coastwise traffic. Ten years show that the 'Big Ditch' fulfills these expectations. Two thirds of east-bound tonnage from all sources is coastwise traffic. Of the tonnage originating in west coast states, ninety-per cent is consigned to east ports. Half of the shipments from the industrial east totaling one third of all westbound traffic is coastal traffic. California sends millions of barrels of oil east via the canal. Much of her fruit in cold storage moves this way and from the northern Pacific coast comes the famous salmon. Lumber is a commodity of rapidly increasing importance in canal business, the east coast exchanging its particular types of wood for the west coast's native trees. Wheat from western Canada instead of flowing to Europe by the lakes and rivers of the St. Lawrence system, goes to Vancouver now and is shipped to England via Colon.

"All the odors, scents and smells rising from a crowded far east port can not match those at Panama. Tankers with blood from South America, camphor from Japan, algarobilla from Andes forests, garlic, hair, cassia and whale oils from the far east, iodine from Chile, perfume from France, onions from California, peanuts and tea from China, rubber from Singapore, copra from the South Seas, and pungent ammonia from Baltimore, all mix at Panama. But probably no port in Araby dissipates its stenches and its scents in sanitary oxygen and antiseptic sunshine as Panama does. The Canal Zone, from Panama City on the Pacific to Cristobal and Colon on the Caribbean, is as spotless and well swept as a Dutch kitchen.

"In ten years more than 25,000 ships have transited the canal. These ships paid for this privilege $97,802,000; a sum equal to more than one fourth the total construction cost. An average of 14 vessels a day now passes through the canal and each day United States collects about $65,000 tolls. That the tendency of trade is to bring raw products east and send manufactured products back is shown in part by the fact that in the decade the tonnage from the Pacific to the Atlantic exceeded that going in the other direction by more than 20,000,000.

"The service of the canal's early apprenticeship to Mars, that of handling precious nitrates from Chile to make powder for the Allies, is still an important duty. Nitrates are the most important product received by the canal from all west coast South America. During the war, it is said, a chain of battleships guarded the nitrate route from Chile to London constantly. Today the Panama Canal has beaten its swords into plowshares for the nitrates it carried for cannon new serve loyally in the farmers' fields."

Maud Ballington Booth, famous for her work in the Volunteers of America, born in England, 59 years ago today.

Milton S. Hershey, who recently gave $60,000,000 to the Industrial School for Orphans at Hershey, Pa., born in Daughin county, Pa., 67 years ago today.

Grosvenor B. Clarkson, former director of the U. S. Council of National Defense, born at Des Moines, Ia., 42 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Maj. Gen. John L. Hines, who today becomes chief of staff of the U. S. army in succession to General Pershing, has had a brilliant military career and was decorated during the war both with the Distinguished Service Cross for valor and the Distinguished Service Medal awarded for efficiency. He was Gen. Pershing's adjutant-general during the punitive expedition into Mexico 1916-17, and accompanied him to France. Later he was transferred to command a regiment and was successively promoted to brigade, division and corps commander "on account of efficiency on the field of battle." He was decorated for valor for his action during the Soissons engagement. The citation shows that when connection had been lost between the 16th and 26th Infantry at a critical time Gen. Hines "went through terrific artillery fire to the front lines of the 16th Infantry, located its left flank, and, walking in front of the lines, encouraged the troops by his fearlessness and disregard of danger."

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Be Strong.

There is a vast difference between stubbornness and strength. In fact they are exact opposites, for stubbornness is an index of perilous weakness. Stubborn characters resist influences that do not gratify or please, and blindly believe themselves wise in a display of independence. Real strength often conquers by yielding. Stubbornness, like the horse or the mule must be held in with bit and bridle. Strength is easy to be entreated, and is full of gentleness. A stubborn faith clings to the past and will brook no change of opinion or new unfolding of truth. A strong faith in simplicity rejoices in its knowledge of truth, but meekly opens wide the heart's door to dawning light.

Strength lets go of forms and half-conceptions of truth, that the fulness of truth may be known. Stubbornness finds its meat and drink in self-gratification. Strength finds its meat and drink in the will of God. The stubborn pharisee held so tenaciously to his religious rites and ceremonies of purification that the weeping, penitent harlot in his home aroused only feelings of injury and indignation. The story, gentle Jesus, in a purity that knew no self gratification, responds to the broken heart of the sinful one and sends her away to walk henceforth in the light and strength of a new life.

Stubborness is narrow and self-centered, it demands some form of subservience to self. Strength asks no return for self, but broadly reaches out to put others in touch with the Omnipotent source of all help and comfort.

The Holy Spirit is not one of stubborness but one of strength. He is the Spirit of power and might; but not of stiffness. And He will make us strong, but meek and gentle; He will make us brave and courageous, but not stiff or exacting; firm in our loyalty of heart to Him, but without stubborness in words or deeds.

Stories That Recall Others

Only Trees With Leaves That Are Admired.

All the girls in the office except Mary had their hair bobbed. Some are still weeping over it because of the failure to bring beauty, and Mary still clings to her long and attractive locks. She remarked to one who had had her hair cut some time ago, "I suppose I shall be the last leaf on the tree and keep my hair."

"That's all right, Mary," the other agreed. "Your hair is beautiful, and it is always well to remember that the tree always gets the most admiration with the leaves on."

Just in Time.

Through the heroic efforts of Pat a serious catastrophe was averted last week. He appeared at the opportune moment to rescue Ellen from the sinister designs of a big gray rat.

Pat said he was attracted by shrieks and screams. He found the otherwise fearless Ellen, he said, standing on a table in the back room trying to "shoo" the rodent, without success, between cries for succor.

Armed with a broom Pat rushed on the scene and chased the imprisoned animal round and round until a well aimed blow with the handle found its mark.

Are You Discouraged ?

Cecilia Beaux never knew the sweet tender, understanding love of a mother. She grew up in the warm devotion of a father, a grand-mother and aunts, but her mother died when Cecilia was born.

Reared in a musical atmosphere in Philadelphia, she was given an opportunity to be a musician, but desired to win success as a writer. Taught at home by her relatives until she was 12, she then attended a private school, where the drawings produced by those in the art class so repelled her that she had a horror of studying delineation.

Having shown ability in copying pictures on cards at home, she received guidance in art, studied in a private class and at 14 became interested. She desired to enter an art school, but her uncle objected. She copied in crayon a photograph of her uncle, and did so well that orders came and she sold crayon portraits, copied from photographs, on order.

With others she opened a studio, took a score of lessons from William Sartain and worked with a sketch class at the Academy of Fine Arts. She painted a portrait, sent it to the academy, and it was accepted. Next in her own bare studio she painted a large picture of her sister and son, using a jersey with one satin sleeve for the mother's waist, a shawl for a skirt, and imagine the necessary type of chair. A friend took the painting to Paris, where it was hung in the Salon.

Encouraged by her success, she went to Paris and studied for a year and a half, then returned to Philadelphia and resumed her portrait painting. Her work was awarded medals by the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and other organizations in the city of her birth. Her portraits were hung in the Metropolitan museum in New York and other galleries of the country. Then decorations were presented to her by societies of America and Europe.

She is known as the world's leading woman painter of women and children. She has a studio in New York and has laid out a beautiful Garden in Spain at Gloucester, Mass., where she spends her summers.

MRS. YOUNG ENTHUSIASTIC

Cannot Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Enough. Sick Women Read This Letter

Charleston, S. C.—"I was completely run-down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy enough to get up when I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in your books and learned about it. I got benefit from the very first bottle. I continued to take it for some time, and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends that the change in my health is due to but one thing and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I cannot praise it enough."—Mrs. Annie Young, 16 Amherst St., Charleston, S.C.

The reason for such a letter from Mrs. Young is apparent. She got well and is grateful. Recently a nation-wide canvass of women purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was made, and 98 out of 100 reported that they received benefit from taking it.

Because the Vegetable Compound has been helping other women is reason why it should help you.

FURNITURE TO BE PROUD OF

Select good furniture such as you will find in abundance on our floors and it will last you a lifetime. The difference between the first cost of really worthwhile furniture and the kind which makes its appeal through price alone, is a very small sum indeed. Real quality and up-to-the-minute style is seldom on the bargain counter. POETRY

LITTLE AND GREAT

A traveler on a dusty road
Strewed acorns on the lea:
And one took root and sprouted up,
And grew into a tree.
Love sought its shade at evening-time,
To breathe its early vows:
And Age was pleased, in heats of noon
To bask beneath its boughs.
The dormouse loved its dangling twigs,
The birds sweet music bore—
It stood a glory in its place
A blessing evermore.

A little spring had lost its way
Amid the grass and fern;
A passing stranger scooped a well
Where weary men might turn;
He walled it in, and hung with care
A ladle at the brink
He thought not of the deed he did
But judged, that Toil might drink.
He passed again; and lo! the well,
By summer never dried,
Had cooled ten thousand parched tongues
And saved a life beside.

A dreamer dropped a random thought;
'Twas old, and yet 'twas new;
A simple fancy of the brain
But strong in being true.
It shone upon a genial mind,
And lo! its light became
A lamp of life, a beacon ray
A monitory of flame;
The thought was small; its issue great
A watch-fire on the hill,
It sheds its radiance far adown,
And cheers the valley still.

A nameless man, amid the crowd
That thronged the daily mart,
Let fall a word of hope and love,
Unstudied from the heart;—
A whisper on the tumult thrown,
A transitory breath—
It raised a brother from the dust,
It saved a soul from death.
O germ! O fount! O word of love!
O thought at random cast!
Ye were but little at the first,
But mighty at the last.

—Charles Mackay.

WINGED VICTORY

Winged Victory takes flight around the world.
O'er purple oceans and o'er mountain height.
From Arctic daybreak to a Tropic night.
Through mists and clouds and threatening storms that whirled;
Swift as an arrow or a javelin hurled.
A girdle of adventurous moving light;
A Saturn's ring—this earth's new satellite;
A story of creation not yet told.
With vibrant notes of power the song of wings
Breaks on the vast stern silence of the snows,
Startles the desert and o'er cities sings,
As echoing through winds and space it goes
Science for truth and glory venturing leads;
Eager like Hermes hurrying, onward speeds.

—Daniel Dulany Addison in Boston Transcript.

How Diamonds Are Tested.

The geological survey says that the ordinary tests to determine the genuineness of a diamond are to test its specific gravity, hardness and refractive index. When further proof is desired the stone is burned in an atmosphere of hydrogen. An ordinary fire will not affect a diamond if only the atmosphere of the air is present. Diamonds are the hardest substance known.

Varieties of Tomatoes.

In crossing different varieties of tomatoes to obtain red fruit one parent must be red; to obtain pink tomatoes, one parent must be pink and the other pink or yellow, and to produce yellow fruit both parents must be yellow.

Her Great TEMPTATION

He told her that marriage was simply a form—that in the eyes of God they were man and wife as surely as though a dozen ceremonies had been spoken over them. And like thousands of other girls who listen with their hearts instead of their minds—she believed him.

Had she known the truth about life, what bitter anguish of soul she would have escaped! "His Great Temptation," which was also "her great temptation," is a powerful, heart-gripping narrative you won't soon forget. It is only one of the many remarkable features in October True Story, now on sale at all newsstands.

AMERICANS RETAIN POSSESSION OF DAVIS CUP FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—(By the A. P.)—The Davis cup, emblem of International Lawn tennis team championship remains in the United States for another year.

This was assured today when William T. Tilden, II, of Philadelphia and William M. Johnston, California, the American team, won from Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, of Australia, in three out of four sets.

The scores were 5-7, 6-3, 6-4, and 6-1.

The triumph of the United States doubles team today, coupled with the singles matches yesterday afternoon, gave three victories to the American team. Two more singles matches are scheduled for tomorrow, but their outcome cannot affect the ultimate disposition of the trophy.

The victory today was America's fifth successive triumph. In 1920 Tilden and Johnston, the victorious doubles team of today's match brought the Davis cup back from Australia and in three of the last four years the Australians have been the competitors of the United States in the challenge round. Japan was the other competitor in 1921.

America won today largely through the individual brilliance of its two players, rather than through the smoothness of team work. Pitted against a combination that has played together for several years, and beaten in the first set, the Americans played the visitors off their feet in the last three sets.

The Australian team gained its early lead in the match largely through the failure of the United States properly to team up, and through the superior steadiness at the net of Pat O'Hara Wood.

With the star of the second set, however, Tilden and, Johnston were playing in unison, driving brilliantly from deep court, serving with terrific force and accuracy and pounding Patterson the Australian captain, on his backhand until the challengers broke under the pressure.

The veteran "Bill" Johnston, playing his only match in this year's Davis cup series, after having been supplanted in singles by the youthful Vincent Richards, easily was the star of the American team.

Johnston's service was sharp and he won eight out of 10 of his deliveries. His handling of service also was exceptionally fine.

Tilden had his slashing service at work, but though contributing many fine "kills" from the baseline, was not as successful at the net as in many contests in the past.

In the first set of the match the lead alternated until the ninth game, each player winning his service twice. Then the Australians broke through Johnston's service and led at five to four, however, the Americans tied it up by serving O'Hara Wood in the same fashion.

But in the eleventh game Tilden twice made double faults and Patterson sealed the game with a perfect placement. With Patterson serving, the team from the antipodes then ran the set.

In the third set the lead alternated until the match stood a four all, when Johnson cut down O'Hara Woods service with splendid placement and broke his service and then won the set, on his own sharp delivery.

The fourth set never was in doubt. The Australians did not win a game until the Americans had taken four straight.

The cup play ends tomorrow when Tilden meets O'Hara Wood, and Richards clashes Patterson.

Prior to the Davis cup doubles, Helen Jacobs, of Berkeley, Calif., defeated Alice Francis, of Orange, N. J., in the final round of the National Girls' tennis championship, 6-2, 6-1.

In an exhibition doubles match, following the cup play, Howard O. Kinsey, of the American team, and Manuel Alonso, former Spanish Davis cup star, defeated Richard E. Schlesinger and Frederick C. Kalms, member of the Australian Davis cup team, in two out of three sets, 7-5, 3-10, 10-8.

New York, N. Y., Sept. 12—The St. Louis Club reduced New York's lead in the National league race to one point here today, winning the first game of a short series by a score of 5 to 1.

The Giants landed on Sherdell for thirteen hits, but were unable to hit in the pinches. Jacksons home run in the sixth saved New York from a shutout. The score:

How It's Done In the Majors

By Frank Frisch
Captain, New York Giants

First inning. None out. Runner on first. Batter bunts ball toward third baseman. Third baseman throws runner out at first. Runner on first going to second.

What should the pitcher do in a situation of this kind?

On such a play, it is not always easy for the third baseman to get back to his bag in time to prevent the runner starting from first reaching third, so the pitcher should always cover that bag as he can be of most help there. You see as the play works out, the shortstop must cover second as the second baseman goes over to first. That makes it imperative for the pitcher to cover third.

TAFTVILLE OFFERS TWO BIG BASEBALL ATTRACTIONS

Taftville will offer two major ball games this week end for the entertainment of local followers of the sport. Saturday afternoon the second game of the Taftville-Riverview series will take place at the Providence street Grounds, Taftville. Considering the rivalry of these two teams there is no question about the brand of baseball that will be displayed.

Sunday the Taftville team will play the Hartford Federals at the J. B. Martin Grounds. The local management has been besieged with letters all season from the Hartford team and at last is giving them this chance to exhibit their wares. Local fans know the reputation of this team and know that first class ball will be in order.

Taftville's weak spot all season has been their outfield, so the management has gone to extra expense in securing players to offer the fans a first class attraction. E. Joubert, E. Murphy and J. Wild Heave Loses for Panthers

Worcester, Sept. 12—A bad throw by Cronin when Goff was being run up and down between third and home let both Goff and Gonzales score and New Haven won today's game 5 to 4. A base on balls and three hits gave New Haven its start in the third. Lavalee's stick work was a feature.

Ponies Shut Out Bears

Springfield, Sept. 12—Springfield won its last game of the season with Bridgeport here by 7 to 0 today. Raleigh Saunders pitched his second game for Springfield and registered his second two hit shutout, though he walked six and hit one. Post hit a homer with Mullen on in the third.

Hartford Blanks Albany in Short Game

Hartford, Sept. 12—Hartford defeated Albany 2 to 0 today in a game that probably sets a new Eastern league record for fast play, the nine innings being covered in an hour and eight minutes. Earl Johnson's curves baffled the visitors while the locals hit opportunely in two innings.

WILLS MAY HAVE TO MEET OTHER MEN BEFORE GETTING MATCH WITH DEMPSEY

New York, Sept. 12.—(By The A. P.)—The complexion of the heavyweight fight situation underwent a radical change today as a result of Harry Wills' surprisingly decisive victory over Luis Firpo last night at Boyle's thirty acres.

The Argentine's crushing defeat, it seemed certain, has eliminated the probability of a sequel to his dramatic battle with Jack Dempsey of 1923, but Wills, despite his victory, was not considered to have improved his chances of gaining his much-sought title match with Dempsey.

This view was shared by Tex Rickard, who declared he was not impressed by Wills' showing and had made no plans for a match which would bring the negro and Dempsey together. It would be a year before such a bout could be staged, the promoter intimated, even if he were ready to put it on.

In the meantime, Rickard indicated he might stage several additional elimination contests before finally picking the champion's next challenger. Wills, Jack Renault, Hard-Hitting Canadian, Tom Gibbons, who stayed fifteen rounds with Dempsey last year, and possibly Firpo, will figure in further tests.

Firpo, in fact, reiterated his post-battle declaration of last night that he would seek a return match with the negro, confident of his ability to turn the tables, but Rickard was non-committal on whether he would promote a second match. The Argentine, who must give his immediate attention to a series of legal bouts growing out of deportation proceedings against him, plans, if cleared, to remain in this country in search of further matches. He may stay here until the next outdoor season, he indicated, whipping himself into shape for another big campaign by undertaking a series of winter engagements.

Bartley Madden, who stayed the limit with both Wills and Renault, was prominently mentioned as a suitable opponent for Firpo during the indoor season at Madison Square Garden.

The crowd that saw Wills, the ringmaster, completely subdue the wild bull last night was far below his ringside estimates last night, Rickard disclosed this afternoon, final tabulation has not been completed, but the promoter said an accurate check showed the paid attendance to have been only 48,500 and the gross receipts $471,000. He figured the total attendance, however, at close to 60,000, firemen, policemen, newspapermen and other non-paying onlookers, as compared with last night's estimates of 80,000, with receipts at about $800,000.

The net receipts amounted to $424,000 according to the promoter, of which Firpo, guaranteed 37 1-2 per cent., received $159,000 and Wills a flat sum of 100,000. Rickard denied previous reports that the wild bull was to get $250,000 for his end of the purse. Even so, however, the amounts each of the principals received were greater than either had obtained for any previous match.

Firpo's dismal showing against Wills was widely discussed today with opinion divided as to whether the spiking of the wild bull's heaviest gun, his mighty right, was due chiefly to Wills' superior defensive skill or the Argentine's poor fighting condition, brought on by the harassing legal skirmishes preceding his encounter.

Firpo, it was agreed, failed at any time to show the savage fire of the attack that knocked Dempsey out of the ring a year ago. But most critics this was largely credited to Wills' tactics and ease with which the negro baffled the South American at every turn. On the other hand there was little doubt that the vital spark was lacking in Firpo's performance.

The blow with which Wills knocked down Firpo for a count of four in the second round also was a point of heated debate. Although referee Danny Sullivan ruled it was fair, most unbiased critics held that it was unfair, coming as the men were parting from a break. Bill Tate, Firpo's chief second, who protested the blow, asserted Wills had violated the rules by not stepping back as they were parted by the referee, lashing out at Firpo while the latter's arms were down.

THE BATTLE OF THE SEASON AT DUWELL FIELD SUNDAY

Championship battles may come and championship balles may go but never since the day that Cleopatra dazzled Mark Anthony and his playmates with her hair raising dance causing them to touch a match to old Rome has the world witnessed a spectacle such as the one to be staged on the Duwell field on Sunday afternoon when the managers of the Married and Single Men will gather their forces together to make their last stand in an effort to emerge triumphantly as champions of the East Side desperately to reach the ever glorious pinnacle of victory but all his been in vain as the best that either side could do was to hold the other even until the time has now arrived when one must suffer the bitter pangs of defeat while the other will be heralded gloriously as the victors.

To pick a winner is a task that even the wisest of critics are uncapable of doing as each side has its glorious knights whom are liable at any time to turn defeat into victory. Although everyone of the gallant defenders are worthy of hearty mention there are two alone who outshine the others and shall regulate the scales of destiny for in their hands rests either victory and honor of defeat and oblivion. On the Single Men's team it is Berger Goldberg, the gritty little southpaw veteran of many a hard fought battle on the diamond who has pitched his way close to the hearts of even the hardest of baseball fans. It was Berger that last year upheld the honors of the Single Men when everything seemed lost and again this year traveled many miles to be with his teammates and assist them as they were sinking deeper and deeper into the mire of defeat and dishonor. Manager Pedace says t will be Berger again who shall lead his forces to a clean cut victory on Sunday and help raise the pennant to float triumphantly in the breeze over the Single Men's camp.

But while the Single Men have Berger as their shining light the Benedicts are far from being outdone as they also have a moundeman who only recently proved to the whole wide world that he has the quality and spirit that is needed to mould out the greatest of stars. To utter his name would be unnecessary for everyone knows that on "Todd" Coleman shoulders have rested the burdens of the Married Men during ... was he, who nicked his name into hall of fame in the opening game of the series, only to tumble back into oblivion and obscurity and be the mark for many knocks and bumps when at one time he gallantly tried to ... his honor in the face of a physical handicap which proved too much for the budding youngster. Where others would have miserably failed under such conditions "Todd" only shouldered the yoke and begged for an other opportunity to pitch against the Single Men which Manager Cook gave him and thus helped "Todd" regain his honors when he outpitched the mighty Berger in 3 innings only allowing one solitary hit which helped his team to get back into the race.

To try and describe the duel that these two are sure to furnish would require more than print, but its a safe bet that had Nero or Caesar been alive they would have gladly parted with their crown and possession to witness a battle such as this one that is to take place Sunday.

To help make it a day that shall require headlines in history George Houston has consented to turn out with his brass band and furnish plenty of joyous harmony for this tremendous occasion. Although the rival managers have announced the batteries which shall be Goldberg and Boyens for the Single Men and Coleman and Riley for the less fortunates, not a word will they utter as to the rest of the lineup which is bound to contain many new faces according to many rumors. At promptly 2:30 p. m. to the strains of Houston's band the teams will march into the field to be in readiness for the umpires cry of "play ball" at three o'clock. Following the game the winners will be presented with the large loving cup on display at Madden's Cigar Store and the losers the surprse package which it is rumored contains a cup also although not of the loving cup nature.

CUBS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF RING'S WILDNESS AND WIN

Philadelphia, Sept. 12.—Chicago took advantage of Ring's wildness today and took the first game of the series from Philadelphia 10 to 8. Aldridge proved ineffective in the opening innings and gave the Phillies a lead which the Cubs didn't overcome until the ninth inning. Cy Williams hit two home runs over the rightfield wall. The score:

CITY LEAGUE PENNANT CHASE ENDS THIS WEEK

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 12—After a controversy was experienced over the control of Morgan Park, and which threatened for a time to put off the playing, of the deciding games of the City league, matters were finally straightened out in a most favorable manner for the city league and the winner of the league will be probably decided over the week end.

The schedule maker, Daniel J. Donovan, has arranged to stage the Corticelli Silk Fort Trumbull Stars game Saturday afternoon as originally planned before it became known that the New London Ship and Engine would oppose the Fuller Brush nine of Hartford in the Industrial elimination contest. This game is to start at 3 o'clock sharp, while on Sunday the Knights of Columbus will play hosts to the Fort Trumbull Stars in what proves to be the deciding game of the year.

SHIP AND ENGINE TEAM PLAYS FULLER TEAM TODAY

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 12—New London seems fortunate enough indeed to be included inthe Industrial elimination tournament in the state. The New London Ship and Engine plant seems to turn out winners, and this time it is baseball and once more the locals will have a chance to represent the city, much rather the industrial element of the town. And again the locals are stacked up against a team that is the proud possessor of real baseball experience, and ball players who are hired especially for the purpose of displaying their diamond prowess under the shop colors. This time the Ship and Engine will oppose the potent Fuller Brush nine of Hartford, in one of the several industrial elimination games scheduled for this (Saturday) afternoon.

MEMBERS OF DODGERS WILL BE GIVEN WATCHES

New York, Sept. 12—Gold watches will be presented to Manager Wilbert Robinson and each member of the Brooklyn National League Baseball club at a testimonial dinner September 24 arranged by a committee of 100 citizens, it was announced today. Funds will be raised by popular subscription.

The testimonial, designed as an appreciation of the sensational late-season rally which brought the Robins into the thick of the pennant fight, will be tendered to the players regardless of the standing of the club.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH POLO TEAMS IN ACTION TODAY

New York, Sept. 12—American and British Polo teams will make their fourth attempt to meet in the first match of the series for the internation cup, tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Meadow Brook club.

Intermittent showers were predicted by the weather bureau tonight, but officials of the United States Polo Association said that nothing but a downpour would prevent the game, which has already been postponed three times because of rain.

The second contest is slated for Tuesday of next week and the third tentatively scheduled for Saturday, but the association announced that the final game might be moved up to Thursday to permit play in the open championship to begin on Saturday.

Frequent postponements have worked to the advantage of the British team by permitting its captain and star, Louis Lacey, to recover from an attack of shingles and an injured shoulder, which threatened to keep him out of the entire series, it now seems assured that Lacey will be at his position of back if the international series begins tomorrow.

WALKER CUP LIKELY TO REMAIN IN AMERICA

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 13 (By the A. P.)—The chances of the Walker cup, emblematic of international team supremacy in amateur golf, remaining in the United States for another year, were bright today at the conclusion of the four foursomes inaugurating the competition. The Americans won three of the 36-hole matches.

Eight singles tomorrow conclude the competition, and if the British win five of them, the score will be a six to six tie with the consequent failure for the third time of Britain's efforts to win the trophy.

The aces of the invaders were repulsed by veteran American title holders, and a pair of golfers little known generally in the United States, Hon. Michael Scott and Robert Scott, Jr., defeated the redoubtable Bobby Jones of Atlanta, former open champion, who had W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, veteran former champion as his partner. This match, the longest of the day, ended at the home green when Bobby missed a putt of a yard, but it had been his brilliance which carried the match that far.

The Boston teams of Francis Ouimet and Jesse Guilford, which has the reputation of being unbeatable by amateurs, took the measure of the heavy hitting British captain, Cyril Tolley, with Major Robert C. Hezlet's partner, two and one.

Max Marston, of Philadelphia, present amateur champion, and Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, a former champion, defeated E. F. Storey, brilliant collegian, and W. A. Murray, three and one.

Jesse Sweetser, of New York, former amateur champion and Harrison Johnston, of St. Paul, western amateur title holder, defeated T. A. Torrance and O. S. Bristow, four and three.

Chick Evans, of Chicago, whose absence from the foursomes today gave rise to considerable speculation as to whether he had been disciplined for failure to report promptly for practice, is slated to take part in tomorrow's play, as is also Dr. O. F. Willing, of Portland, Oregon, who helped locate contracts for munitions, and, on paper, to set the wheels of industry humming at top speed to turn out the maximum of war supplies.

In the afternoon there was another parade from Grant's Tomb to Central Park Mall, reviewed by Mayor Hylan and a staff of high army officers.

To win the cup last year in Scotland after the British had the same advantage in the first day as the Americans won today. Fownes and Johnston, will make room for them.

Captain Gardner explained the absence of Evans from the foursomes as due to the necessity of giving all players a chance, and he insisted that suggestions of discipline were merely guesses. Evans' presence at the matches today was not noted by observers, and there was speculation as to his attitude, he had a 70, three under par, in his belated pre-tournament practice.

Bobby Jones was erratic today, having had only six and one-half hours sleep as a result of attending the Wills-Firpo fight. This is, he was erratic for Bobby. His brilliance was spotty, but his partner, rather than he, is generally charged with their defeat.

Michael Scott, the main factor in the one British victory, was once the French amateur champion and also has held the Australian amateur and open titles. His drive today compared favorably with the mighty hitting Cyril Tolley, who was generally in advance of everybody from the tee.

BRAVES WIN AMERICAN TITLE IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

The Braves won the title in the American division of the Junior league by beating the Arrows in the play off game Friday evening 3 to 1. The game was a pitchers' battle between "Bull" Steinman and Johnny Greene, Steinman having the better of the argument allowing only three hits in five innings while Greene was nicked for seven hits.

The Braves will meet the Taftville Tigers champions of the National division Sunday afternoon in the championship game for the Junior league title. Lefty Dugas will pitch for the Tigers and Steinman will be in the box for the braves.

MOOSUP TO PLAY HERRUPS ON SUNDAY

The Herrups of Hartford will Moosup on the Carpet grounds Sunday in the second game of the Herrup-Moosup two out of three series. Moosup has the first one all tucked away in their mess kit and are going out after the two straight and then it will be all over with the Capital city ball tossers.

Manager Loughran gave facts when he came out and stated last week that he had not only secured as good a club to take the place of the Natick Hustlers but a much better one.

"Ken" Barnard, manager of the Herrups, told Manager Loughran that he will pitch Buckland of Hartford Eastern league arains Moosup Sunday. Let him come, the bigger they are the harder they fall.

The Herrups play Sunday on the same basis as last week, $100 if they win and $30 if they lose. The game will start at 3.15 (daylight saving time). This game, after the one that the clubs put up last Sunday should prove a great drawing card.

Loughran will send in "Chick" Davis again and the rest of the Moosup club just as it was in the 10-inning game of last Sunday. Allard c, Collard 1st, Frechette 2nd, Kendrick ss, Burns 3rd, Moore lf, Mills cf, Manzold rf, Noel, Harrell and Striker utility. Herrups will use their same lineup man for man also, except that Buckland will pitch in place of Shovac.

Voluntown-Ashland Series

The second game of the eluntown-Ashland series will be played on the Voluntown grounds, Sunday at 3 p. m., D. S. T.

These teams are great rivals, and both lineups will be practically the same as last week.

Both teams have their Royal Rooters and no doubt they will be out in full force.

THE SOCIAL CORNER

DILIGENCE IS THE MOTHER OF GOOD LUCK

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
The Character of a Happy Life

How happy is he born and taught
That serveth not another's will;
Whose armor in his honest thought,
And simple truth his utmost skill!

Whose passions not his masters are;
Whose soul is still prepared for death,
Not tied unto the world by care,
Of public fame or private breath.

Who envies none that chance doth raise,
Nor vice; who never understood
How deepest wounds are given by praise;
Nor rules of state, but rules of good.

Who hath his life from rumors freed;
Whose conscience is his strong retreat;
Whose state can neither flatterers feed,
Nor ruin make oppressors great:

Who God doth late and early pray
More of His grace than gifts to lend;
And entertains the harmless day
With a well-chosen book or friend;

—This man is freed from servile bands
Of hope to rise, or fear to fall;
Lord of himself, though not of lands,
And, having nothing, yet hath all.
—Henry Wotton.

THE MOUNTAINS

Down in a peaceful valley
Where a wandering river strays,
'Mid the rocks, and the woods and the mountains
We are spending our school-girl days.
And out from the upper windows
We may gaze on the lovely sight
Of river and hill and valley
Bathed in the warm sunlight.

Off in the dim distance
The chains of mountains stand.
And we call it the "Land of Beulah,"
An unseen, mysterious land.
We know no one has been beyond them.
And pictures to fancy's eye
A fairy land of promise
Under a cloudless sky.

When the daily cares are ended.
And the day draws to a close,
How often to our tired spirits
Have the mountains brought repose.
How calm they look in the distance.
How peaceful they lie,
Some down to the river,
Pointing up to the sky.

The beautiful beautiful mountains,
How [illegible] the hand of [illegible]
They shall stand when our school-girl days
Are hidden beneath the sod.
Our lessons will soon be ended,
And the parting hour will come,
When we will farewell say school-girls,
To our beautiful mountain-home

Far above the mountain summits,
Beyond the starry sky,
Some time we shall meet in a country
To the light of God Most High.
We cannot see with the eye
With its weary lids open
No sickness shall enter that country,
No sorrow no sighing no care.

We shall pass from our earthly mountains
To the fields of light above;
From the weakness of earth's affections
To the fulness of Jesus' Love.
And the feet so oft grown weary
That the earthly mountains trod,
Shall never grow weary or falter
On the eternal hills of God."

SISTERS URGED TO WRITE

Dear Corner Sisters: How are you all this lovely cool morning? Hope all are well and can now keep cool after such trying weather we have had for the past fortnight. Was very sorry to read of two recent deaths in the paper Saturday. I was very well acquainted with B. Lina and liked her very much. Am at a loss to know who Fritzie was although she had written me she knew who I was. But I can't seem to locate her. I have a list now of thirty-eight names of deceased members and am told there are still others. Think Theoda has more.

Mrs. L. and L. A. R.: Why don't you join and be members of the large family? I know you both would enjoy it as well as you do reading the Social Corner page every week. You would find very congenial, sociable friends, and you would certainly enjoy the picnics, also the meetings at the Buckingham Memorial and five minutes would take you there any time, wake up and get busy.

Savilla: Are you still in W? I received your card ten days after you mailed it, as you failed to put my R. F. D. number on it and it had travelled out on many routes from the post office. It was O. K. and good things are worth waiting for. Will excuse you this time but look out the next.

Balsam Fir: Have you returned from the honeymoon trip yet? Heard lots about it. Heard you have taken a trip in an airplane. How about it?

Rural Delivery: Read your latest letter about California and it must have been a wonderful trip you had. How you must have enjoyed it!

Gadabout: Why don't we see an article from your pen once in a while? Write up something about the trips you take occasionally. I read in the paper where you have been on an auto trip. You used to write. Why so silent now?

Golden Glow: Don't you have your Dannie any more? I often wondered.

T. C. E.: Glad to see you are still a member of the Corner. Am in hopes to attend your [illegible] if nothing prevents. Are you both coming together? This is the wrong time of the year for your style "golden beauties." I never saw any prettier than those in your home the day we three met with you.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

15 New Studebakers

Including an entirely new type of car—the DUPLEX-PHAETON

Today Studebaker has made Automobile History and established standards of value and quality more fully and obviously than ever before.

TODAY Studebaker proves that beautiful, distinctive, stylish body lines can be originated by American body designers without following precedent or imitating or adapting what has been done before.

Today Studebaker proves that a practical and beautiful type of car can be made to combine the pleasure and performance of the open car and the comfort and protection of the closed car—and this without excessive price or compromised quality—a car "duplex" in open-car smartness and convenience and closed-car elegance and comfort—and at a price no higher than that of an open car!

Today Studebaker proves, in its new Standard Six Duplex model, that a six-cylinder car of fine quality, great power, plenty of room and impressive appearance can be made and marketed at a price of $1145.

Today Studebaker proves in its new Special Six and its Big Six Duplex models that the ultimate in all the essential features of quality in five- and seven-passenger cars can be made and marketed at a price of $1495 and $1875 respectively.

And this is possible only because Studebaker cars are made in one of the most comprehensive industrial plants in this country, 70 per cent of which is new within the last six years.

Every modern method of manufacture and long experienced management are available for the production of Studebaker automobiles.

Today Studebaker proves that the highest grade closed car bodies—framed in selected hard woods, cushioned with the best cushion work, upholstered in fine mohair fabrics and fitted with expensive appointments—can be made and marketed on superlatively good chassis at moderate prices.

This is made possible by the new $10,000,000 Studebaker closed body plants. Studebaker designs and builds all of its closed bodies in one of the best equipped and most modern body plants in the industry.

The Three New Chassis

THE STUDEBAKER STANDARD SIX—113 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3¾x4½, 50 b.h.p.—with 6 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Coupe-Roadster, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER SPECIAL SIX—120 in. wheelbase, 5-passenger. Engine, 3½x5, 65 b.h.p.—with 5 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Duplex-Roadster, Victoria, Sedan, and Berline.

THE STUDEBAKER BIG SIX—127 in wheelbase, 7-passenger. Engine, 3⅞x5, 75 b.h.p.—with 4 different bodies, including Duplex-Phaeton, Coupe, Sedan, and Berline.

The Ten New Closed Bodies

COMPLETELY NEW BODIES—each car a masterly expression of modern style, yet distinctly original in beautiful lines—individual, conservative, impressively elegant, but crisp enough in its departure from imitation to be entirely distinctive.

Three completely new chassis!.. 15 completely new bodies!
Completely new lines! . . . Marvelous new performance
Completely new open-closed car!

Completely new radiators, new fenders, new lamps, new seating comfort, new finish, new colors in lacquer finish, three improved engines

Real balloon tires, not low-pressure cords. Sizes—21"x 5.25" to 20"x 7.30".

New values, never before equaled—even by Studebaker!

The Five New Duplex Bodies

(A new type of car originated by Studebaker to take the place of the open car)

SO ENTIRELY NEW and so different from any other body ever made before that a new name had to be created—the DUPLEX.

The upper structure is shaped in pressed steel and covered with the finest water-proof fabric. The steel construction permits the use of another radical Studebaker creation, the new roller enclosing curtains. There is the permanent beauty and durability of the steel top plus the instant convenience of the roller curtains.

Thus Studebaker engineers have solved the open-closed car problem.

The buyer who wants the airiness and practical convenience of the open car and who also wants the comfort, protection and beauty of the closed car can now get both in one car and at the price of an open car.

One moment the new Studebaker Duplex is a beautiful open car—a touch of the hand to the overlapping roller curtains and it is a snug weather-tight closed car.

Balloon Tires

Genuine and full size balloon tires on all models. Every part that functions with the tires has been specially designed for balloon tire equipment—steering gear, steering knuckles, spindles and springs, even the fenders.

New Lacquer Finish

The Standard Six closed bodies are beautifully finished in semi-glaze, satin lacquer. The hood and lower panels are in light gray, the upper panels in darker gray. Hairline parallel striping in oriental red. Burnished nickel radiators, jet black fenders, light golden finished, natural wood wheels and big balloon tires are contrasting touches.

The Standard Duplex Models are finished in glossy jet enamel—lasting, lustrous and wear-resisting.

The Special Six and the Big Six Duplex models are in soft satin lacquer with dark blue hoods and bodies striped in light blue and ivory. Here, too, the sparkle is added with burnished nickel radiators and light, natural wood wheels in contrast with jet black fenders and big, black balloon tires.

More Power

The universally famous Studebaker engine is more than ever a peer among power plants. The crankshaft is heavier. ALL surfaces are perfectly machined to exact dimensions and balance. The bearings are larger.

The engine is in unit with the clutch and transmission. There is a force feed lubrication system with clean, strained oil always in reserve. There are many changes and improvements which result in MORE POWER, MORE QUIETNESS and SMOOTHNESS and STILL BETTER PERFORMANCE in every way.

New Brakes

Larger, more powerful, simpler and much easier operated two-wheel brakes. An entirely new emergency brake is operated from the instrument board, instantly convenient to the driver's hand where it simplifies the control and frees the floor board from the old style lever. It acts on the propeller shaft. There is uniform pressure at each wheel—equalized through the rear axle.

But Studebaker 4-Wheel Hydraulic Brakes (with disc wheels) can be furnished as optional equipment on all models at extra charge if desired.

Studebaker 4-Wheel Brakes have three exclusive features not found on any other system in this country.

1. Braking pressure is furnished by hydraulic power automatically developed. A light touch to the braking pedal controls its great force like a touch to the throttle controls the power of the engine. This feature will appeal instantly to women.
2. The front wheels cannot lock.
3. There are only two adjustments required—one at each rear wheel. The front brakes are permanently adjusted at the factory. The oil in the transmission is used to generate the hydraulic power; the action of the gears and the pump keep it in circulation: it cannot congeal or freeze. Braking power is always instantly ready—in winter as well as in summer!

New Ease of Operation

New Ease of Gear Shifting—New power in braking, a touch to the pedal exerts a giant's strength at the rear wheels—New clutch action, soft as velvet—A new steering gear and steering knuckles designed for balloon tires—A new grouping on the dash, including ALL the usual instruments plus a gasoline gauge that always works accurately.

Lighting Control Switches—all on the steering wheel—instantly handy.

Automatic Spark Control—No manual attention required, so the lever is eliminated. Automatically governed to all speeds with the precision of machinery.

And the Details

The new cars are longer and lower to the ground. The line from the radiator to the rear is nearly straight. The wheelbase of all models is increased.

The fenders are much wider and deeper crowned to cover the width of the tires. They fit more closely over the wheels. The rear fenders are long and gracefully curved into the running boards.

The radiators are high and set low in the frames and convex curved just below the filler cap. The design is strikingly original and beautifully distinctive.

Entirely new head lamps and cowl parking lamps designed by Studebaker—artistically appropriate and in perfect keeping with the originality of the body and fender design.

Deeper, stiffer frames, more cross members; shorter, flatter springs for balloon tires. All bodies lower, all roomier, better and more comfortably cushioned. Seats are lower, backs and sides are higher.

Look Forward Into Next Year

The new Studebaker is here today! And no matter how sweeping your ideas of what a new model should be this car will satisfy you. It will thrill you with the very newness and originality of its beautiful lines!

You may not be in the market now, or even this year. But to see the new Studebaker is to look forward into next year—and the year after! SEE IT TODAY!

rington. If I am mistaken hope some one who knows will tell me.

Papa's Boy: It is real nice of you to mention the demise of B. Lina, and for Ormandine to tell us of Fritzie. Wish all of the sisters would do so, as I am keeping a list of these as well as the ones living.

Rural Aunty: Am sorry you are ill. Hope you will be able to come to our meeting in October. You were there once and I missed the pleasure of finding you with such a crowd present. You were so kind to send me those verses I asked for.

Jim: Your wife's mother was once my school teacher and she was my first one (near as I can remember.) It was in the days of long ago when the teacher boarded around the "deestrict." She wrote in my mother's autograph album.

Balsam Fir: Congratulations. You knew it was leap year all right. Who will be the next?

Merry Widow: Wish you had called while visiting in this city. Dudley's wife knows where I live.

Hope all who have been away on pleasure trips and vacations have been benefitted. As for myself have stayed home and enjoyed my flowers all I could. I think it a good plan to put the place where we live as Kentucky Wonder suggests. We have "her" in our vegetable garden,-ha-ha.

Saturday Eve: Your letter reminds me of some city folks who boarded one summer on a farm. The next spring the farmer got a letter saying they would like to come again but there were a few changes they wanted made viz: We don't like Mary the maid and we think the pig stye too near the house to be sanitary. The farmer replied, "Mary has went, and we have had no hogs since you left us last summer.

Best wishes from

JOAN.

WHY NOT RESPOND?

Dear Social Friends: As my name has been called in the Social Corner page I will answer present. I have watched for names that ought to respond to the roll call but some have not answered. I wonder why? The editor has been very kind to do the extra work, why not respond?

Excels in Strength and Performance

In its admiration of the good Maxwell's ability to outperform anything at anywhere near the price, the American public should remember—

1st.—That no other car in America, regardless of price, excels Maxwell strength and staunchness in proportion to weight and power.

2nd.—That at all vital points, metals and construction are the same as in cars that cost three to four times as much.

3rd.—That in its manufacture, no measures are too costly to protect the owner fully, in person and in pocket.

Those are the precise reasons why the good Maxwell—now under the supervision of Chrysler engineers—stands up and delivers its splendid service at such amazingly low cost.

All Maxwell dealers are in position to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Maxwell's attractive plan.

Lanchester Balancer Adopted by Willys-Knight is Acclaimed

Automotive engineers and mechanical experts are impressed by Willys-Knight's new refinement, the Lanchester Balancer, in eliminating vibration. Read these comments.

Glenn Curtiss
Famous Airplane Inventor

"It is surprising. I drove the car (Willys-Knight Sedan) at all speeds up to 50 miles an hour and found absolutely no vibration."

W. E. Best
Works Manager, Remington Cash Register

"The smoothness of the motor was a revelation. The driver increased the speed from 15 miles an hour to approximately 45 miles and, as far as I could detect, with no vibration. It would seem that the balancer is doing the trick and gives six-cylinder operation as far as smoothness is concerned."

Hiram P. Maxim
President, Maxim Silencer Company

"The Lanchester Balancer certainly takes out the vibration. It makes the motor smoother than most of the six and eight-cylinders on the road today."

Maurice Olley
Rolls-Royce, Production Manager

"From the demonstration there is no doubt that the elimination of the inherent harmonic vibration, by means of the rotating balancer, has been attained in practice to a degree which is very satisfactory to the passenger."

Willys-Knight scores again. To its famous sleeve-valve engine, that improves with use, it adds a perfection long sought by many motor cars—the elimination of vibration.

GEORGE PELTON DIES AT N. LONDON WAS STRUCK BY NORWICH MACHINE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Sept. 12.—George Pelton, 53, died at Lawrence hospital this morning as a result of injuries sustained Monday when struck by an automobile, owned by L. Henry Saxton, 327 Broadway, Norwich, and operated by Mrs. Saxton. He is survived by a daughter, Miss Wilhelmina Pelton, of this city, and a son, James Pelton, of New York. Mr. Pelton was a war veteran and a member of W. W. Perkins Post, G. A. R. Mr. Pelton was walking along Huntington street and attempted to cross at the corner of Church street. When about midway of the crosswalk he was struck by the automobile and knocked down. He was taken to a gasoline filling station nearby, and later was transferred to the hospital, where it was discovered that he had sustained internal injuries, lacerations and abrasions and a severe shock.

George F. McKenzie, paymaster in the employ of Stone & Webster, who are having a large gas tank erected at their plant on Water street, reported to the police today that a revolver was stolen from his desk some time during the week.

Maxim Vax, 706 Howard street, today communicated with the New London police requesting their aid in locating Vax's wife, who disappeared from her home Aug. 23. Vax stated that his wife was 42, but appeared much younger and was a bleached blonde. She is about five feet, six and one-half inches in height and weighs about 142 pounds. When she disappeared she wore a tan suit or a brown silk dress, light plaid sport coat and low brown shoes.

Samuel Harris, manager of Hart's Fur Shop, who was ordered to appear in the police court this morning because of holding a coat belonging to a former young woman employed in the store, was not prosecuted in the police court this forenoon because Harris returned the garment to the owner.

An automobile owned and operated by C. E. Hancock, 16 Evergreen avenue, in passing through Main street, near John street, this forenoon, struck Sarah Bosky, a child residing on North Bank street. The child sustained only minor injuries.

Harold E. Rowley has sold a house and lot on Colver street to George M. and Ida Jennings.

Jacob Linicus has transferred a building lot on Glenwood road to his son, Jacob M. Linicus.

Henry R. Griswold has sold to Joseph F. and Katherine F. Corcoran a building lot on Ledyard street.

Mrs. Harold Sutiunowski, of Terrace boulevard, Mrs. Raymond Davis and infant son, Howard street; Miss Dorothy Chester street, Groton, and Mrs. Melville Low and infant daughter of Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Julia D. Keeney, 83, wife of Edwin Keeney, died this morning at her residence, 28 Pearl street, after a lingering illness due to infirmities attending her advanced years.

The funeral of Mrs. Lora E. Learned, widow of Rev. Robert C. Bishop, was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her residence, 255 Hempstead St. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. The honorary bearers were William Belcher, Norman M. Ruddy, George Whittlesey, and Graham Chapin. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

So far as is known, the members of the city council have not yet taken steps to carry out the suggestion of Councilor Clarke for the widening of the highway in Bank street by taking a portion of the sidewalks and including that in the street. No beginning can be made for the work until such time as provision is made to supply the funds needed to pay for what is to be done. That sum will be considerable and it must be provided for in the budget that is to be adopted for the fiscal year from the 1st of October. The plan is altogether feasible for there are sections of the walk on that street where the width varies from five to twelve or more feet. Casual observation of the situation discloses the ease with which the plan can be carried out. Bank street is the most congested street in the city during the summer season, but there are many merchants on the street who have come to believe that congestion there is helpful to business. These will be inclined to oppose any change in the width of the street or the sidewalks, on the ground of expense. In this connection the extension of Green street through to Tilley street to connect with Bank street is being considered and many favor that way for relieving traffic on Bank street, as Green street runs parallel with Bank street and to open it up would be to relieve the upper part of Bank street and half of State street.

John E. Dumphy, a soldier at Fort Wright, discharged a few days ago, lingered long enough in this city before he started for Boston to get a beautiful supply of booze into his system. Then he possessed the idea that if he sat around in public places, while waiting for a train he would become so conspicuous that he would be arrested for intoxication, so he just got into an automobile in North Bank street. When he was found there he told the officers who discovered him that his friends who owned the car had difficulty in starting it, so he proffered his knowledge of automobiles to them as assistance. This story was a dream. He was trying to start the car, but where he would go with it only he himself knew. He was locked up and this morning was in the police court. There he admitted the facts. A fine of $5 came to him for defiance of the provisions of the Volstead act and he was given a chance to make use of a ticket he had that would take him to Boston.

The city election, which will make choice of a councilman who failed to be chosen last Monday is to be held Monday, the 22nd, inst. Thomas Gragan and Edward Streeter will be the candidates. The election bids fair to be some contest inasmuch as the candidates are of the opinion that they did not make the effort to get out votes that should have been made.

Lafayette Stoddard, formerly of New London, now of Springfield, Mass., is spending several days in this city.

Mrs. Marie Bump has returned to her home, 48 Jay street, after several weeks' automobile trip through New York, Massachusetts and Vermont.

Mrs. Carlos Barry, Jr., and infant son, of Niantic river road; Mrs. Edward Daly and infant daughter, 18 Fourth street, and Harold Babcock Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were dismissed today.

Mrs. Alice Wojtovak, 22, died last night at Lawrence hospital, where she had been a patient about six weeks.

The largest military parade in New London in many years was that in observance of National Defense Day early this evening. The procession comprised the greater part of the army and navy forces stationed in the New London district and was viewed by thousands of men, women and children, while added thousands attended the brief patriotic exercises at Williams Memorial park. At 6.15 o'clock all traffic was suspended on the streets through which the procession was to move and fifteen minutes later from the corner of Bank street and Montauk avenue, the procession started on its march to Williams Memorial park. The procession was headed by a platoon of police, including two motorcycle officers. Following came Ernest E. Rogers, chief marshal; Major E. Villaret, C. A. G., regular army, chief of staff and Major Thomas E. Troland, adjutant, together with the staff, consisting of Brigadier-General Morris B. Payne, C. N. G.; Colonel Christopher L. Avery, Lieut. Col. Harry M. Lee, Captain Ross E. Black, Dr. Harold H. Heyer, war time draft board, and Colonel Henry S. Dorsey and Major Joseph M. Ganey. Following came the first division, Col. C. H. Hull, 192nd F. A., C. N. G., and staff, Coast Guard cadets, regular army, marine corps, navy personnel, national guard, organized reserves: second division, Captain Edwin Cruise and staff and veteran organizations, patriotic and civic societies and floats and patriotic citizens in automobiles.

At Williams Memorial Park, after having been reviewed by Mayor Malcolm M. Scott and members of the city council, army and navy officials from the steps of the municipal building, invocation was made by a navy chaplain, Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth delivered a half hour's address on "National Defense" and Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley pronounced the benediction. At the start the entire assemblage took the oath of allegiance to the flag and at the end of the exercises the combined bands played the Star Spangled Banner, the multitude singing the national anthem. Prior to today, New London had not obtained its full quota of signers to offer services to the government in case of an emergency. The quota is 6000 and but 4000 signers had deposited cards at the enrolling station. However, during the day and at the exercises, it is believed that the full quota was made up.

Nurses at the dormitory of Lawrence hospital, corner of Fair Harbor place and Riverview avenue, became alarmed early this morning as they believed that a man was attempting to gain entrance to the place. About 3 o'clock one of the nurses observed a curtain raised at an open window in the rear of the dormitory and investigating observed the form of a man. The nurse informed the police and Patrolman Thomas Lyden made a search of the neighborhood, but could not locate Peeping Tom.

Clarence Doucette, Alfred Sirois and Lester Monaco, the North Attleboro, Mass., youths, who stole a Ford automobile owned by William C. Bushnell of Waterford, while the car was parked in front of the state armory, Colt street, Wednesday night and who were taken into custody in Norwich later in the evening when found in possession of the car, were turned over to an officer from Shirley reformatory, North Attlebero today and were returned to the institution.

Miss Marie Leverone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Leverone, returned home this evening, having spent several days with New Haven relatives.

An automobile operated by Mrs. Mary B. Cushman, 240 Colman street, collided with an electric light pole corner of Main and Church streets this afternoon. The car was slightly damaged and the globe to the light was smashed.

Laura Gamilla, 6, Thames View St., Waterford, strayed about the city Sta., late this afternoon and was picked up by a woman and taken to the rooms of the Associated Charities where she was later turned over to her older sister. The child has accompanied her sister, who is employed here to New London daily, to attend school and as there were no sessions in the schools this afternoon the child roamed the streets. When the older girl went to the accustomed meeting place of the pair, the child was not to be found, but she was soon located. A youngster, Stephen Fenn, had strayed away from the association's grounds during the afternoon, but he was soon located and returned to the care of attendants.

E. W. Lentz, chief of police of Hickory, N. C., has communicated with the police requesting information as the whereabouts of W. D. Allred, who was injured here some time ago.

An automobile owned by the Connecticut Power company and driven by Harold Selleck, and a machine owned and operated by A. J. Martin, 207 Howard street, were in collision corner of Bank and State streets late this afternoon. Both machines were damaged slightly.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

The contrasting features were the strength of the railroad shares and the weakness of the oils. New 1924 high records were established by half a dozen stocks, including Columbia Gas and Electric. Gimbel Brothers common and preferred, General Baking and Mexican Seaboard, the last named being an isolated strong spot in the Petroleum group.

Selling of the oil shares, which had been strong all week, undoubtedly was based on the announcement of gasoline price reductions and th efear of a further cut in crude prices, due to the increase in production reported by the American Petroleum Review. Maryland, Houston, Sinclair preferred and Tidewater all closed a point or more lower.

Buying of the railroad shares was in anticipation of favorable August earnings statements, which begin to make their appearance next week. Nickel Plate," Norfolk and Western, Atchison, Atlantic Coast, Delaware and Hudson, New York, Ontario and Western, St. Louis Southwestern and Wheeling and Lake Erie preferred showed gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points. Rutland preferred jumped 5 3-4 points.

The recovery in the Saint Paul issues each of which showed a net gain of more than a point, apparently was based on the statement of B. B. Greer, operating vice president, expressing confidence that the road would earn on $21,500,000 of fixed charges this year.

The three leading industrial issues United States Steel common, Baldwin and American Can—were unsettled, the latter closing at small fractional recessions. Pool operations were in evidence among a number of industrial specialties. General Electric, Famous Players, General Baking, Gold Dust, Maxwell Motors, "A," Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron, West Penn Power and Western Union showing net gains of 1 to 4 points. Nash Motors and Utah securities were firm.

Call money held at 3 per cent all day although some time loans were said quoted at 1 1-2. The demand for time loans showed no improvement and rates continued easy with the interest being displayed by bankers. Commercial paper rates were unchanged with business quiet.

Foreign exchanges held firm. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.47 and French firm were moderately active around 7.63 cents. Argentine and Brazilian pesos were at new highs.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Sept. 12.—Fluctuating within extremely narrow limits, bond prices failed to develop a definite trend today. Trading was moderately active with a firm undertone prevailing in most groups except Liberty bonds, which receded fractionally.

St. Paul Railway issues responded to official statements that the road would earn its fixed charges this year. Recoveries of a point or so were recorded by the company's most active liens, including the 4s of 1925 and the convertible 5s. Other semi-speculative railroad obligations, such as Frisco and Seaboard issues, also improved.

Gilt-edged corporation bonds lagged, with investment dealers reporting an unusually light demand for them. Some of the principal oil company liens were under pressure as a result of the selling of oil shares following gaoline price cuts in the west. Sugar bonds moved higher under the leadership of Punta Alegre and Eastern Cuba Sugar mortgages.

Announcement was made today that a group of New York, Boston and Philadelphia banks had purchased $2,2,000, Paris Lyons Mediterranean Railroad six months collateral notes on a 5 1-4 per cent. basis. The financing was transferred from London to New York because of the lower interest rates obtained here. Proceeds will be used for electrification purposes.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Sept. 12.—Weakness of the oil shares, due to unfavorable trade developments contrasted with the strength of industrials in today's curb market, which was relatively more active than the "big board."

Indiana Pipe Line broke 16 points to 66 on the reduction of the quarterly dividend from $2 to $1 and then rallied to 6. Net losses of two to five points also were recorded by Cumberland Pipe, Illonois Pipe, Northern Pipe Prairie Oil and Gas and Standard Oils of Ohio, and Nebraska. Eureka Pipe moved up a point.

Gillette Safety Razor led the advance in the industrial list moving up five points to 28. Net gains of one to five points also were registered by American Light & Traction, American Power & Light, Arizona Power, Dubilier Radio, Glen Alden Coal, Lehigh Valley Coal certificates and Mengel Company. National Fire dropped four points on a few odd lot sales.

The outstanding development in the bond list was th eheavy trading in Standard Gas & Electric 6 1-2s of 1954, which advanced two points to 99 1-2.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—Persistent buying on the part of houses with seaboard connections brought about a new advance in wheat values today. The market closed firm at 1-4 to 1 5-8c net gain, December $1.33 3-4 to $1.33 7-8 and May $1.40 1-4 to $1.40 3-8, with corn 1-4c to 1 7-8c down, oats 5-8 to 7-8c up, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to arise of 37 cents.

Indications pointed to a liberal export business in wheat, although of less amount than was the case yesterday. The fact that Liverpool quotations were decidedly higher helped also to strengthen values here, and so likewise did stormy weather over the Prairie provinces of Canada, a serious hindrance to threshing and a likely cause of additional crop damage. Reports of material fallings off in the volume of the domestic winter wheat movement tended further to stimulate buying.

Reports of a much smaller world's crop than a year ago, and especially a general lowering of European estimates of yield, were an accepted explanation of a big share of the broadening interest shown in the wheat market. Ready absorption of spring wheat in the northwestern states together with active demand for flour was also given considerable notice. Selling to realize profits was heavy at times, but was without much lasting effect.

Warmer temperatures likely to promote the welface of the corn crop eased down the corn market, notwithstanding rallies due to wheat strength. Upturns in the price of oats came about chiefly as a result of better shipping demand from the southwest.

Higher quotations on hogs lifted the provision market.

Heat Reddens Fruit.

What makes cherries red, light or heat? The question was recently discussed by the French Academy of Sciences in Paris, and the answer was heat. Some cherries, exposed to the light, remained as colorless as at first. Others, put into a dark oven, become beautifully red. Which only shows us that light alone, without heat, cannot ripen fruit, but that heat, without light, can. Many of us would have thought otherwise.

Roman Remains in Britain.

Excavating for the foundation of a new factory to be erected at Keynsham, near Bristol, England, workmen recently unearthed Roman remains. The Daily Chronicle of London reports the discovery of coffins containing skeletons, a Roman needle about six inches long, a spoon and a brooch. The brooch is believed to have put the finishing touch upon the toga of a Roman gallant.

Colors Worn by Jockeys.

There are records to show that King Henry VIII as early as 1530 dressed his jockeys in colors, but nothing to prove that the colors were always the same. In 1762 the Jockey club posted a notice to the effect that several owners of racing horses had selected colors to be worn by their jockeys. Some of the colors chosen then are still in use by the same families.

Near the Year's End.

The last orchids of the year bloom in September and October. They are the ladies' tresses, probably the most common of the orchid family in eastern North America, says Nature Magazine. All country dwellers know their stiff, upright, slightly twisted blossoms. The two most common are the nodding ladies' tresses and the slender ladies' tresses.

Eye Emits Strange Power.

That the human eye emits some unexplained power, probably an unknown light ray, has been demonstrated by an English scientist with delicate electrical experiments.

Who the Jagellons Were.

The Jagellons were a dynasty that reigned over Lithuania, Poland, Hungary and Bohemia. The line began with Jagellon, who became king of Poland as Ladislas III or V in 1309, and ended with Sigismund II, who died in 1572.

Its Death Was Fatal.

Limits to Generosity.

It is good to be unselfish and generous; but don't carry that too far. It will not do to give yourself to be melted down for the benefit of the tallow trade; you must know where to find yourself.—George Eliot.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Billy Goat Ferryman.

Did I ever tell you, boys and girls, where the Billy Goat Ferryman lived? You remember the kind old billy goat who ferried people across the river in a paddle-wheel rowboat. He had made it himself—just an old rowboat, in the middle of which was fastened a cast-off bicycle, with large paddles strapped to each of the pedals.

An empty drygoods box near the end of the wharf made him a nice place in which to sleep. Two small windows, a door, an old piece of stovepipe, soon turned it into a cute little bungalow. In large letters over the door he had painted "Captain Butter."

"Hello" shouted the little rabbit one morning, hopping out on the old wharf.

"What brings you alongside, my little hearty?" asked Captain Butter, the old billy goat ferryman, stepping out of his bungalow, his front paws in his trousers' pockets and an old corncob pipe between his teeth.

"What will it cost to ferry me over, Over the river to Little Town Cloves," answered the bunny boy, taking a lollypop from his knapsack and holding the stick in his mouth, much the way that the Billy Goat Ferryman held his pipe.

"Oh, maybe a couple of carrot cents. That ought to cover the total expense," replied Captain Butter. He could talk in poetry as well as the little rabbit. Oh, my yes.

Onto the old ferryboat hopped the bunny boy, and in a few minutes, Captain Butter had loosened the hawser. Then away went the Ferryboat, the paddles making the spray fly all about them.

But, Oh, dear. No sooner were they out in the middle of the river than one of the paddle wheels wouldn't go around. But the Ferryboat did. Yes siree captain! It just went 'round and 'round. That was the trouble.

"Whales and porpoises!" exclaimed Captain Butter. "What's the matter," and jumping off the bicycle seat he looked over the side of the boat—the side on which the troublesome wheel was, of course.

"Bless my stars," he again exclaimed, "if an old eel isn't all tangled up in the wheel. He must be a tough old cove."

"Turn her backwards," cried a voice, and the old eel wiggled his head just above the water. "Be careful not to get me tangled the other way 'round."

"Give her four bells," shouted Captain Butter, (the signal, you know, little reader, to back up on the water.)

Quick as a wink the nimble little rabbit rang the bicycle bell four times. At once the Billy Goat

NORWICH MANUFACTURERS WILL MAKE DISPLAYS IN NORWICH STORES

Norwich manufacturers and Norwich merchants are co-operating for the exhibition of Norwich made products in local store windows next week. Over forty manufacturers will show their products, at least some part of them, in the stores along Main street. A few local manufacturers cannot exhibit their product at this time for one reason or another but the co-operation and friendly spirit shown by local manufacturers and merchants is in fact most praiseworthy. The spirit of Norwich is indeed progressive.

Every city and town throughout New England is asked to take a part in these local exhibits in order that New England people can become better acquainted with New England products. Today New England business is facing stern active competition for her business from other sections of the country. For years the skill of our workmen has held this part of the country in the advance guard of manufacturing. That skill still exists here. The producers of manufactured products in New England can more than hold their own in competition of a similar nature.

The fact that all raw products must be brought to New England and after being manufactured must be sent to the markets is the one big factor in competition that faces this industrial section. Staid conservative New England needs awakening to her possibilities and to acquire new strength of enthusiasm and faith to not only meet her competitors fairly but successfully.

The people of Norwich and vicinity will be given an opportunity during the coming week to learn of the great diversity of their products and to learn also something of the skill of the producers. The program of the exhibit follows:

10,000 AUTOS SCRAPPED ANNUALLY IN CONNECTICUT

Approximately 10,000 motor vehicles are scrapped each year in Connecticut, contributing to a total of about 1,010,000 annually scrapped the world over, and it is estimated that slightly over 40,000 cars have been scrapped in this state to date. At the present rate, nearly 45,000 motor vehicles will be registered in Connecticut this year in excess of the 1923 registration total.

There are more automobile owners in the Nutmeg state than in Germany, Italy, Sweden, Japan, Russia, Australia, Argentina, Denmark, Mexico, Hawaii or India. Indeed, France, the British Isles and Canada are the only countries in the world whose people owe more automobiles than do those of Connecticut, and even then there are twenty-two other states of this country which have higher registration totals than Connecticut has.

There are about forty-five cars for every 1,000 people on Connecticut farms, and about 107 cars for every 1,000 city dwellers of the state. In other words ,each car in the country serves an average of 22.2 people, while each car in the city serves 9.3 people. However, a traffic survey made by the United States Bureau of Roads, in cooperation with the Connecticut state highway department, on the Boston Post road in Connecticut, has shewn that the average car carries 2.5 persons. At that rate, every car annually scrapped in Connecticut could be wrecked while carrying the normal number of passengers, and all the occupants injured, without exceeding the number of people who have been hurt in Connecticut motor vehicle accidents, most of which were preventable, in the past fifteen years.

September and October are the worst months of the year for automobile accidents, and the state motor vehicle department and many safety organizations are bending all efforts to keep down the accident total for these months by impressing upon drivers the need for increasing caution.

READY TO COMPENSATE DISCHARGED STEAMER CAPTAIN

The Eastern Steamship Company, operators of the Steamer Boston, which was saved from sinking off Point Judith by the Steamer Commonwealth, Capt. Edward R. Geer, of New London, stands ready to make settlement for his salvage work, it became known following a conference Thursday between Attorney C. Hadlai Hull, attorney for Captain Geer and the counsel for the steamship company.

Captain Geer, who for 35 years was employed by the New England Steamship Co., was discharged recently because he would not withdraw a salvage claim against the owners of the Boston, and now is taking legal steps to gain compensation.

Attorney Hull and the attorney for the Boston's owners agreed upon $1,500,000 as the present valuation which shortly before her collision with the tanker Swiftarrow was built at a cost of $2,000,000. What percentage of this sum will be awarded the local captain, is now the only question in dispute. The Eastern Steamship Co. is applying for limitation of liability and court action will be involved before the adjustment of compensation is reached.

While driving near Georgetown on Thursday night State Policemen Carroll and Malbuisson of the Ridgefield barracks, noticed at the roadside a man resembling the description of Samuel Mitchell, of whose escape from the Norwich state hospital word had been received at the barracks earlier in the evening. The man seized a stone as the policemen approached and gave them a battle before he was overpowered. He admitted that he was the escaped patient and was returned to the hospital Friday.

RHODE ISLAND REDS NEAR BEST PEN RECORD

Fernside Farm's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Attleboro, Mass., is now within 42 eggs of the best previous pen record ever made at Storrs. There are still seven weeks to go. It is not only possible but apparently very probable that these ten pullets will hang up a score of 2500 eggs, or more than 20 dozen eggs each for the year. In the fourteen years of laying contests at Storrs Rhode Island Reds have never finished first but they now have very excellent prospects not only of winning but also of beating the best record of any breed in any year.

In the 45th week Edgar Stoughton's pen of Barred Rocks from Wapping, Conn., and Leghorns entered by St. John's Poultry Farm at Oronogo, Mo., were first with 51 eggs each. This put Stoughton's pen at the top in the Plymouth Rock class. The Agricultural College pen of Barred Rocks from Guelph, Ontario, Ernest Craze's pen of Leghorns from Ramsey, N. J., and Fernside Farm's pen of reds from Attleboro, Mass., all tied for second place for the week with 50 eggs each. Four pens of Leghorns entered by Hilltop Farm at Suffield, Conn., Small's Poultry Farm at Mt. Carmel, Conn., Meadowedge Farm at Cedarhurst, L. I., and George B. Ferris from Grand Rapids, Mich., all tied for third place with 47 eggs each. Albert W. Buckbee's pen of Wyandottes from Wisner, N. Y., tied with Andrew L. Ohr's pen of Leghorns from Wallingford, Conn., with 48 eggs each. The total lay for all pens was 3342 eggs or a yield of nearly 48 per cent. This is 68 eggs less than for last week but is 96 eggs more than for the corresponding period week last year.

Plymouth Rocks.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

Elks

Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin of Rockville has received official notification of his appointment as district deputy of Conn. east district for the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. The letter informing Dr. O'Loughlin of his appointment came from Grand Exalted Ruler John G. Price of Columbus, Ohio, whose official representative he will be for the eastern Connecticut district.

Dr. O'Loughlin is at the present time president of the Connecticut Past Exalted Rulers, and a member of the board of trustees of Rockville lodge No. 1359. He was the first exalted ruler of Rockville lodge and has been active in the work of the lodge since its institution.

American Mechanics

Charles H. Kimberly of Bristol was elected state councilor of the Order of United American Mechanics at the state convention held in Norwalk Thursday.

Other officers chosen were: State vice councilor, C. A. Perkins of Lebanon; state council chaplain, H. T. Peck of New Haven; state council secretary, H. G. Hills of Easthampton; state council treasurer, C. H. Moseley of Waterbury; state council inductor, Philip Merriam of South Norwalk; state council examiner, H. G. Bardin of Manchester; state council outside protector, Leon Loomis of Bristol; state council inside protector, F. C. Sutorius of New Haven and F. B. Gray of Bridgeport, representative to national council.

Catholic Ladies of Columbus.

With the coming of the cool weather, various plans are being talked of by Mercier Assembly and at the meeting next week much business of importance will be discussed. One of the main points of interest will be the coming convention which is to be held in Rockville, Conn., in October. The various committees will take up the work for the fall and winter and the best of results are anticipated for the community and for Mercier Assembly.

Foreign War Veterans

A defense test program, featured by a parade to be reviewed by General John J. Pershing, and in which troops of the army, navy and marines and the national guard of New Jersey will play a distinctive part has been arranged as the closing event of the 25th annual national encampment of the veterans of foreign wars, meeting at Atlantic City, September 8-12 inclusive. According to the war department dispatches this demonstration will be second only to the one to be held in Washington, D. C. Approximately 30,000 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, men who have seen actual battle service in one or another of America's wars during the last seven decades will be in the line of march. Eligibility clauses of this veteran order admit only to their ranks those who have worn the uniform in the theater of operations. A membership of 150,000 scattered through 130 posts is claimed.

Other distinguished members of the order attending the encampment will include General John L. Hines and Amos O. Fries of the Army; Admirals Eberle and Coontz of the navy and General John A. LeJeune of the Marine Corps. General Frank T. Hines of the Veterans bureau, accompanied by officials of his staff will relate the work of that department of the government.

General Lloyd M. Brett, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the present adjutant-general of the District of Columbia will preside at the encampment. Pershing's senior at West Point by seven years. He still remains in active service after 44 years in the regular cavalry, during which time he has actively participated in every war campaign and expedition in which America has been embroiled. He wears the medal of honor, highest American award for valor and has been signally favored by the allied nations for gallantry during the World war. He commanded a brigade of the Blue Ridge Division in France.

From all indications the V. F. W. encampment will be the greatest affair of its kind yet to be held in the famous resort. In addition to the $25,000 entertainment fund appropriated by the state, the city council and chamber of commerce have carried on a campaign to provide an encampment fund running into six figures. Every civic and fraternal organization in the city is assisting in the drive.

In all probabilities, the Atlantic City celebration will be the last public affair in which General Pershing will appear in the role of Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of the United States, since the war department has announced his retirement from active service, effective September 13th. Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars are highly elated at the announcement that their distinguished comrade has chosen to be with them at this time. He has been a member of the order for many years, eligible through service in Cuba, the Philippines and France.

Wallingford Masons are preparing on a large scale for the annual grand masters' day at the Masonic home on Saturday, September 27, when visitors will come from all parts of the state. An interesting program has been prepared and will include addresses by Grand Master Buck, principal of the Noah Webster school in Hartford, and Mrs. Walter T. Arnold grand matron of the O. E. S.

Foresters of America.

Court City of Norwich, No. 63, held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening in Steiner hall with Chief Ranger M. B. Looby presiding. Notwithstanding the inclement weather there was a large attendance and the ritual was exemplified upon a class of five candidates. Routine business was transacted and four applications were read and referred to the investigating committee. A resolution calling for the appointment of a committe to revise the by-laws was passed and the chief ranger appointed the committee which will work under the careful guidance of the former deputy, F. J. Murtha. Under the good and welfare the chief ranger made a very interesting address.

The summer meeting of the grand court of Connecticut was held last Saturday at Milford and the reports of the secretary and treasurer showed the order to be in a very healthy condition. The finances have increased as well as the membership during the past quarter. Two new courts were instituted, one in New Haven and one in New London. There were about 75 grand court officers and deputies present and after the meeting a shore dinner was served at which a quartette from Waterbury entertained. Grand Recording Secretary H. A. Congdon of Norwich and Grand Junior Beadle William Smith of Taftville were present.

Women of Mooseheart.

The Women of Mooseheart Legion met Thursday evening at the Moose Home, Laurel Hill. There was a good sized attendance at the meeting during which routine business was transacted. The auditing committee was re-elected for the ensuing term as follows: Mary Wright, chairman, Gertrude Kaminski and Emma Beaver. The next meeting of the lodge will be held September 25th.

Woman's Relief Corps

The regular meeting of Sedgwick Corps, No. 16, was held with a good attendance Friday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial, the president Mrs. Clara P. Burke, calling the meeting to order. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were accepted and department general orders No. 4 were read. Notice was given of the sale and supper to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening. The meeting closed in the usual form.

SOCIALIST CANDIDATE IS LAFOLLETTE SPEAKER

M. F. Plunkett of Wallingford, candidate for lieutenant governor of the socialist ticket and state organizer of the progressive party, was the speaker Friday night in the town hall at a LaFollette rally that had an attendance of twenty when the meeting opened, but enough more drifted in to run the number up to thirty, which included five women.

Albert Boardman introduced the speaker with a few words upon the question of the hour which he said was the exploitation of man by man for he declared that the country was run not for the benefit of the whole people but for the benefit of the few by the few.

Mr. Plunkett states that his address would be chiefly a discussion of the three candidates for the presidency. Mr. Coolidge, he said, has been in public life twenty-five years and had held about every office in the gift of the people, and had risen by obedience to the machine and the bosses, not by opposition to them. He has not one piece of constructive legislation to his credit and has shown none of the qualifications of a statesman. He has been given credit for many things he has not done. He is not a friend of labor and he is not the man to serve the people of America as they should be served today, the speaker declared.

As to Mr. Davis, Mr. Plunkett called attention to William J. Bryan's condemnation of him as in the service of the house of Morgan, but the nomination of Brother Charlie for the vice presidency had placed a plaster over William J's mouth and nothing has been heard from him since. Mr. Davis is proud of his clients, said Mr. Plunkett, and although not now in the Morgan service as attorney he can not escape from his environment. Davis has been credited with being a friend of labor, but Mr. Plunkett gave several instances to show where he has been the attorney in suit hostile to labor. Admitting that Mr. Davis filled the post with ability while ambassador to Great Britain the speaker saw something sinister in England's approval of Mr. Davis as the democratic candidate.

LaFollette, said Mr. Plunkett, is an entirely different man from the other two. He has secured his election to office, district attorney, governor and senator by appeal to the people and not to the politicians. He had put through the direct primary and the re-taxation of railroads in the state of Wisconsin and for 45 years has worked for the interests of the United States. When Mr. Dawes calls LaFollette a demagogue, said Mr. Plunkett, it is nothing but buncombe and bombast. To advocate the conservation of waterways, and squeezing the water out of the railways in order to get cheaper freight rates for the farmers is not the part of a demagogue. LaFollette is against war and is for the reduction of taxation by reducing the millions appropriated for the army and navy and he believes in the payment of war debts to the United States. He believes in the reduction of enormous duties, is opposed to injunctions in labor disputes and believes that the farmer's dollar should be equal to the city man's dollar.

Mr. Plunkett spoke of the millions in the membership of organizations that are backing LaFollette, and read endorsements of him from President Wilson, Justice Brandeis and Harvard and Yale faculty members. The only thing that could be brought against LaFollette, he said was his record. He had voted against the United States entering the war with Germany, but when we were in he had supported measures to bring the war to a successful termination.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Plunkett invited those present to enroll in a LaFollette-Wheeler club and promised that some of the stronger speakers would be sent here in the campaign.

$200,00 FIRE THREATENED TOWN OF NORTH TROY, VT.

North Troy, Vt., Sept. 14.—The Blair Veneer company mills, a two-family tenement and the covered bridge connecting North Troy with Troy, were completely destroyed this morning by a fire which also tied up traffic on the Canadian Pacific railroad bridge temporarily and threatened to wipe out the town. The loss was more than $200,000.

The fire was said to have started with an explosion in the boiler rooms of the lumber mills. Both of the three-story buildings were soon in flames. Fire apparatus called from Newport to assist that of Troy could not control the spread of the flames which destroyed a two-family tenement and then burned the covered highway bridge which spans the Missisquoi river, connecting the two towns, connecting the wto towns, completely suspending communication.

The wooden ties on the concrete and steel railroad bridge burned but were replaced in a few hours by a canstruction gang. Telephone lines between the two towns were dtsoreyed.

A drenching given by recent heavy rains enabled the fire fighters to save the large piles of lumber in the mill yards and some of the smaller buildings of the plant.

Washington, Sept. 14—Two statements were issued today at LaFollette-Wheeler headquarters, Miss Ethel M. Smith, legislative secretary of the National Women's Trades Union League predicting in one that "ten million women will vote for LaFollette and Wheeler next November," and Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., in the other taking Chairman Butler of the republican national committee, to task for his criticism of Senator LaFollette's Labor Day radio address.

Senator La Follette, himself spent the day resting at his home. He held several conferences over the weekend with political advisers, but did not have a meeting here with Senator Wheeler, of Montana, his running mate, as he had expected.

BITTER ATTACK BY BUTLER ON LAFOLLETTE SUPPORTERS

Chicago, Sept. 14.—In bitter attack on the independent force supporting Senator Robert M. LaFollette for the presidency, Chairman William M. Butler, of the republican national committee, today declared that the Constitution of the United Staes has become the greatest issue in the campaign.

"The socialist-third party," he asserted in a prepared statement, "is pledged to the destruction of the Constitution—the destruction of the supreme court."

The chairman's statement follows:

"The country at large, irrespective of parties, has an issue which demands the attention of all. It is to save the Constitution.

"The fundamental issues which have divided the two major parties in the past still exist, but a greater one has arisen. It is no longer merely a question of issues between two parties; the life of our republic is at stake.

"The socialist-third party under the leadership of Senator Robert M. La Follette has thrust upon us a doctrine which calls for immediate action if we would save the Constitution. The struggle is not over methods of government, but the abolition of government.

"The socialist-third party is pledged to the destruction of the Constitution—the destruction of he supreme court. The God-given rights of everycitizen of this country to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are guaranteed to us by the CoConstitution. This is the document which Senator La Follette seeks to destroy for he proposes that power be given congress to annul repeal, amend or modify the fundamental law."

"BEAN KING" HAS BEEN MISSING SINCE TUESDAY

Albion, Sept. 14.—Disappearance of Lewis E. Sands, wholesale bean dealer known as the world's "bean king," will be followed tomorrow by the closing of his wholesale plant here, doing business as Lewis E. Sands Company Inc., and 29 receiving stations and warehouses throughout the country. Liabilities of the company are said to exceed the assets by from $300,000 to $500,000.

Sands disappeared last Tuesday and has not been heard from since by his family and friends. Prior to his departure, it was said he had been burdened by worries over the condition of the company, and it is thought possible these caused a temporary mental disarrangement.

The corporation does a business of between four and five millions a year, through branches in many states. Announcement of the decision to close the business was made today by Sands' attorney Sandford Church who said no action had been taken toward bankruptcy, this depending on further examination of the books and a meeting of creditors.

The company's principal creditors, it was said, are bean dealers throughout the country and banks in Boston, Philadelphia, Waverly, N. Y., Rochester, N. Y., and several in western states.

The courses will be available only to first year men during the coming college year at the two educational institutions and those who enroll are assured by the navy department that they will be given the opportunity to cruise next summer with the Naval Academy midshipmen, probably to Europe, as a part of their training.

The course will cover four years with at least three hours a week given to naval subjects. this work to be credited toward university degrees. FRANCE TO ABOLISH A CONVICT SETTLEMENT

Paris, Sept. 14—France's convict settlement in French Guiana is to be abolished, says the Petit Parisien, largely in consequence of that newspaper's exposures last year of the alleged moral and physical brutalities "of another age" practiced there.

The newspaper asserts that the prisoners will be brought from "tropical misery" to a central penitentiary in France which is yet to be established. According to the Petit Parisien the decision of Premier Herriot to abolish the prison is final, and it asserts that M. Herriot is not expected to have any difficulties in obtaining the necessary legislation.

Statistics Show Business Increase

Car Loadings Have Passed the Million Mark For the First Time This Year.

New York, Sept. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Continued signs of improving condition in industry and renewed ease in the money market were matter of interest in business and financial quarters last week.

That activity continued to be on a larger scale than existed during the summer was made evident by the latest statistics of railroad car loadings. Continuing their consistent increase, loadings rose in the week ended August 30 to 1,020,000 cars exceeding the million-car mark for the first time this year. It was considered significant that whereas loadings during the early summer ran about 11 per cent. below those in the corresponding period of last year, the showing is now only about 7 per cent. short of last year's.

Reports from the steel industry indicated that the recovery of August, which resulted in an increase of 36 per cent. in ingot productions, was being maintained. Conditions were rather spotty and prices still somewhat unsteady, but production continued in the neighborhood of 55 per cent. capacity.

An increase in the U. S. Steel Corporation's unfilled orders during August came as a surprise. The increase was a small one and left bookings close to the lowest point since the war started; but another small decrease had been expected. This utrn followed a decline that began last March.

A sharp reaction in cotton prices attracted considerable attention. The government report on crop conditions as of September 1 reduced the previous estimate of out turn to 12,787,000 bales, or by 169,000. Nevertheless selling soon came into the market and carried prices off about 2 1-2 cnts to new lows for the year. The spot commodity compares with 35.65 cents in January.

Crop reports also played a part in the grain markets, although a marking up by the government of the expected yield of wheat did not undermine the market. Indeed, before the week was ovr, what had rallid rigorously on foreign buying, stimulated by reports showing smaller crops in other parts of the world. The estimated yield of corn was reduced to 2,513,000,000 bushels, as compared with last year's out turn of 3,076,000,000 bushels. Corn prices were, however, comparatively little changed.

The previous week's reaction in the foreign exchanges, in which the buying of dollars to cover European purchases of American grain and cotton was a factor, terminated. The renewal of the $100,000,000 credit that the Morgan granted to France had a stimulating effect on the franc and helped to steady the whole market. Those who keep in close touch with international developments doubt whether the $200,000,000 loan for Germany envisaged in the Dawes report will make its appearance before November.

INCREASED EMPLOYMENT IN PENN. AND NEW JERSEY

Philadelphia, Sept. 14—For the first time since March, employment increased during August at reporting manufacturing establishments in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Philadelphia Federal reserve said in a compilation of statistics made public tonight. At the same time there was an advance in total weekly wages and in average weekly earnings.

Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Weather conditions permitting, the American world fliers will leave here at 10 o'clock tomorrow for Chicago, their next stop on the trans-continental flight, Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, flight commander, announced today. It has been planned not to leave until Tuesday, but McCook field mechanics worked all night in relays, and completed overhauling the planes.

A new engine was installed in the Boston II., Lieutenant Leigh Wade's plane, and the engines of the flagship Chicago and the New Orlean were over hauled completely and serviced.

Lieutenant Smith, who damaged the tail skid of his plane, while taking off yesterday at Bolling Field, Washington, received the part by train today.

There is no doubt in the minds of any of the fliers now as to the ultimate success of their trip, Lieutenant Smith said. He declared their only though is to get to Seattle as soon as possible, without runniny anu chances.

Slattery was arrested to hang himself n his cell at police earlier in the night after he and several other young men attacked a storekeeper at 204 Franklin street. He was charged with injury to private property, breach of peace, and drunkenness. He declared when taken to police headquarters that he would hang himself if he was placed in a cell. The police took away his tie and belt. A half hour later the police heard cries from other prisoners and Sergeant Lyons found Slattery suspended by his shirt. He was taken to Grace hospital.

Fell Over a Cliff More Than 100 Feet

Kineno, Me., Sept. 14.—Princess Radziwill, Polish writer and novelist, who has lived in this country for several years, was killed yesterday when she fell more than 100 feet over a cliff on the north slops of Mount Kineo. Her body lodged in trees part way down and was recovered with difficulty.

The princess who had spent the summer here with her family had lost a valuable ring on the mountain some time previous. With her brother, it is understood, she was searching for it when the earth gave way on the edge of the cliuff.

The princess, formerly Helen Simpson, whose husband was Prince Ladislas Radziwill, and whose home since the death of her husband had been made in Chicago, was believed to have died almost instantly when she fell.

It was said at the hotel today where the family has been staying that the ring lost held a valuable diamond and that Princess Radziwill and her brother Stanley B. Simpson, had gone to the mountain, nearly two miles from the hotel, to search for it. They were at a point just north of the cliff proper on Mount Kineo, when she lost her footing.

The cliff at that point is almost perpendicular and she fell approximately 100 feet where her body was found lodged in a tree. It was necessary to lower her body to the shore of Moosehead Lake, some 600 feet below the cliff of rock. From there a boat conveyed the body back to this village.

The body will be sent from here to Boston tomorrow morning. The Princess Radziwill was the daughter of Dr. E. E. Simpson of Chicago and was about 36 years old, it was said. Dr. Simpson and his family had been summering here.

ANNUAL CONVENTION OF SCOTTISH RITE MASONS

Boston, Sept. 14—The supreme council, 33rd degree, Scottish Rite Masons, of the northern jurisdiction, opened its 112th annual convention here today with a special service at Trinity church. The Rt. Rev. Dr. Harry S. Longley, bishop of Iowa, who preached, characterized the American system of education as "largely pagan."

"If we do not have parochial schools," he said, "I do not know how we can supply the vital need of spiritual development as a basis for all the activities of life. It is certain that it is met neither in the church nor the home at the present time. According to reliable statistics 55 per cent. of our homes have no church connection and 28,000,000 children in the United States are members of no denomination.

"And when they go to college and enter courses of philosophy, while the teaching may not be openly agnostic, there is probably an air of unbelief. Since they have been given no spiritual background which would steady them, they become shipwrecked."

The convention sessions begin tomorrow with a meeting of the trustees of the supreme council and of minor committees. On Tuesday evening, Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, and Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, will receive the 33rd degree.

WARRANT FOR MURDERER OF FRANK D'AGOSTINO

Weehawken, N. J., Sept. 14—It has made known tonight by Weehawken police that a warrant has been issued for the murder of Frank D'Agostino, whose body yesterday morning was found near an abandoned bulkhead of the Delaware and Hudson railroad. The man has not been arrested but detectives are on his trail and know of his whereabouts, it was said.

D'Agostino, who was shot to death, was a hijacker, the police said, and is believed to have been mixed up in some difficulties of a large Hudson County bootlegging ring.

Detectives let it be known that they have information indicating the man was lured to a yacht anchored at Bayonne, there murdered and his body removed to the bulkhead.

Authorities are confident investigation of this case will bring to ligh: the explanation of the disappearance several months ago of Frank Moeller, of Jersey City, who when last seen, according to the police, had in his possession $140,000 in cash.

TO REQUEST ALL PASTORS TO PREACH ELECTION SERMONS

Washington, Sept. 14.—A nationwide get-out-the-vote campaign was announced today by Dr. Worth M. Tippy, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches commission.

"Every pastor in the country will be asked to preach an election sermon on Christian citizenship on the Sunday preceding registration days in their several states," the announcement said. "This will be between September 14 and October 12 in most states.

"If voters do not register, they cannot vote, therefore the election sermon must be preached before registration day and not on the Sunday before election day."

Dr. Tippy said particular attention would be given to getting women to cast their votes.

FIGHTING HAS BEGUN ABOUT 100 MILES TO N. E. OF PEKING

Message Indicates That the Manchurian Troops Are Moving On Peking From Two Directions — The Object is to Overthrow the Government There—Sharp Fighting is Going on in the Civil War Near Shanghai.

Shanghai, Sept. 14.—(By The A. P.)—Two messages from Mukden, given out today by Secretary Loh of Chekiang defense headquarters here, reported that firing began last night at Shanhaikwan in Chihli province, at the Manchurian border, and in the Jehol district, in the heart of Chihli, 125 miles northwest of Shanhaikwan and about 100 miles northeast of Peking.

The second message reported the capture of Tsao-Yang, near Jehol.

These messages, if confirmed, will indicate that Chang Tso-Lin, the Manchurian field marshal, is moving his troops on Peking from two directions in his effort to overthrow the government there.

Meanwhile, the civil war about Shanghai brought sharp fighting today.

According to a communique by Loh, the Chekiang forces, allied with Chang Tso-Lin, in their opposition to the Peking Government, advanced from Kiating, 30 miles northwest of Shanghai, toward Taitsang. They also were said to have scored advances near Apting.

The major operations, however, were west of Tai Lake, where the Chekiang Artillery was turned on Yihing after the Chekiang commander had witheld fire in response to a petition of the townspeople and discovered that this was a ruse to enable the Kiangsu army to bring up reinforcements.

It was admitted that Chekiang troops suffered unimportant losses when junks on Tai Lake transporting them were subjected to a heavy fire. A report from a Kiangsu source said a flotilla of these junks had been sunk by artillery.

Rains were intermittent today.

An eye witness attached to the Kiangsu army reported that it had been attacking near Tsingpu, east of Tai Lake, with Sungkiang, 20 miles south west of Shanghai and the Shanghai-Hangchow Railway as objectives. Advances were claimed. It also was said that the Chekiang advance against Yihing had been halted.

Another witness, returning here at 10 o'clock tonight from Hwangtu, 9 miles west of Shanghai, reported that he saw heavy firing today with many casualties. The Chekiang line between Hwangtu and Anting was holding firmly, he said. There was renewed firing in the Liuho section to the northwest, near the town of Kiahing mentioned in Loh's communique.

12 FULL TROOP TRAINS MOVED THROUGH TIENTSIN

Tientsin, Sept. 14.—(By the A. P.)—Despite Mukden reports of supposed fighting between Manchurian troops of Chang Tso-Lin and Peking leaders of Wu Pei-Fu, at Shang Hai-kwan and Hsiefengkow it was stated here today that no fighting had occurred. But, with many troops moving northward, it is admitted that the situation is critical.

Twelve full troop trains moved through here for the Manchurian border in the last 24 hours ordinary traffic is delayed half a day.

LARGE MEETING OF GERMAN-AMERICANS IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Sept. 14.—Between 3,300 and 4,000 German-Americans from practically every city and town in Connecticut and from New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts, celebrated General Steuben day at Harugari park, West Haven, today and discussed plans for more active participation in political and civic affairs. It was the largest assembly of German-Americans in this section in several years. Nearly 400 automobiles were parked at the scene of the outing and one delegation from Hartford and other up-state points numbered 1,000.

The National Steuben society at its recent national convention in Detroit, endorsed the La Follett-Wheeler president ticket and David Mair, of New York, eastern manager for the Steuben campaign for La Follette, outlined the work of the two candidates and spoke in support of the third ticket. He also dwelt on what he termed the "unjust treatment still being accorded German-American citizens in some sections.

Other speakers were Dr. Frank M. Schirp, editor of the New York Staats-Zeitung, and former Mayor John O. Schumaker, of Ansonia.

The park resembled a huge carnival. Booths had been erected and an open air stage built for entertainments and the sneakers. Sports, a band concert and dancing were included in the program.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF MALCOLM STEVENSON

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Malcolm Stevenson, No. 3 on America's international polo team, who was thrown from his horse in the opening game of the series with Great Britain yesterday, was reported at his home to be greatly improved today. He said he hoped to participate in the remaining two games.

An examination immediately after the accident, which occurred in the eighth chukker of the game, within three minutes of the end, revealed what was believed to be a slight concussion, and he was treated at the Meadowbrook club, where he spent the night.

Mr. Stevenson was taken to his home in an automobile at noon today, where he walked upstairs unassisted. Mr. Stevenson, who is 37 years old, was competing in his first international match, and was considered one of America's best players.

SHIPMENT OF FISH FROM SAHARA DESERT

New York, Sept. 14—Receipt of a shipment of fish from the Sahara desert was announced today by the American Museum of Natural history. The specimens were taken from water-holes in widely separated parts of the desert, the museum authorities stated.

Although the fish, which are of the minnow variety, come from subterranean waters in the Sahara, they are not blind, as is often the case with fish which have occupied caves for long periods of time. This fact, the museum officials believe, proves that their arrival in the subterranean desert pools was comparatively recent. In their embryonic state the fish are carried from one water-hole to another in lumps of mud which cling to the feet of birds, according to the museum announcement.

GILPATRIC TO BE TRIED IN NEW HAVEN SEPT. 23

New Haven, Sept. 14.—G. Harold Gilpatric, former state treasurer, who, by his defalcations of funds of the First National bank of Putnam, will be brought to this city on September 23 and arraigned before the United States district court according to announcement made by Assistant United States Attorney George M. Cohan.

There will be no delay in presenting Gilpatric before the court, it is stated, unless his physical condition is such as to prevent it.

It was also learned that in view of the more recent disclosures concerning Gilpatric's defalcations of bank funds, he will be charged with theft of $500,000 of bank moneys rather than with embezzlement of $190,000 as stated in the original complaint. The indictment for the larger amount is to include all the money alleged to have been appropriated from the bank by Gilpatric.

BINGHAM ADDRESSED G. O. P. MEETING AT LAKE COMPOUNCE

New Britain, Sept. 14—Lieut. Governor Hiram Bingham, republican nominee for governor opened the political campaign in this state Sunday with a speech before the Young Ward Republican club of New Britain at its annual outing held Saturday afternoon at Lake Compounce. It was a notable gathering of republicans from all parts of the state, nearly 1,000 people participating in the barbecue and addresses heard. Colonel Bingham expounded views on the coming political campaign, national and state wise.

In the course of his remarks he said Bingham said:

"The platform adopted by the republican state convention last Wednesday sets forth a record of improvement of which we are justly proud and lays down certain principles on which we propose to base our campaign. The republicans have been in power in Connecticut since January, 1915.

"The past five years have been [illegible] have been controlled by [illegible] majorities who have been responsible for the laws which have been passed and for the taxes which have been levied and the state money which has been spent. The record is a credit not only to the republican party but to the state of Connecticut.

"While some of our neighboring states have greatly increased their bonded indebtedness, the [illegible] Connecticut has been reduced from twelve million dollars to a point where the sinking fund will take care of all bonds as they become due and the necessity of having the legislature appropriate any more money for the sinking fund. This in itself is a record of which the state may be justly proud but there is more to be said than has not been achieved by a more economical handling of schools charitable institutions, or roads. Notwithstanding the [illegible] gone steadily ahead. We can take pride in the conduct of our highway department.

Millions of dollars are spent annually in the upkeep of our trunk lines, but, with a clear sense of justice, this money is all paid by the people who use the roads and very largely in proportion to the amount of use. It seems to me that nothing could be fairer than this gasoline tax, which is directly in proportion to the amount of service required from the highways. This is the kind of common sense legislation which one has a right to expect from the republican party.

"During the last campaign a plea was made by some of our opponents against this tax in the form that it would appeal to the enormous number of users of gasoline, who would naturally like to pay less, rather than more, for what they use. Such an appeal is not an appeal to reason or common sense, but is a demagogic appeal to selfishness. It said to the voters who used the roads 'Let somebody else pay the tax on their roads. You ought to be able to use them free.'

"It is a matter of record that the unselfishness of the Connecticut taxpayers was such that the attempt to destroy this legitimate source of income was defeated, all seeming to realize the justice of leaving a part at least of the burden of highway maintenance to be met by those who were directly benefited thereby.

"It is the same kind of an appeal that is now being made by La Follette in his platform of lower freight rates and higher railroad wages. It justifies President Coolidge in laying so much stress on the necessity for common sense. The appeal to reason, the earnest effort to set forth the truth and to explain to the voters that the benefits of government must be paid for by taxation and that taxation eventually falls on every one either directly or indirectly, is an appropriate compliment to their sound citizenship.

"The appeal which is being made by the socialistic orators, based on misstatements and an utter disregard of the fundamental principles of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, is an insult to the intelligence of the electorate. As has been repeatedly stated, the issue in this campaign is Coolidge and common sense versus Utopian proposals and demagogery."

The starter at a race is one man who is always taken at his word.

WILLIMANTIC

The Mansfield town school committee will face a problem this year which will undoubtedly be a hard one to solve. Many parents of children in the sections of the town comprising Mansfield Hollow, Mansfield Center, Mansfield Four Corners and Conantville, have come out openly in a body to criticize the arrangement made for the attendance of children this term by School Supervisor A. W. Greer and the school committee. The parents claim that the plan will be a hard one for the children of the lower grades to follow. With the expressed purpose of grading the schools in centralized points Supervisor Greer arranged that the Mansfield Hollow school, beginning with the fall term, would be used for lower grade pupils of Conantville, Mansfield Hollow and Mansfield Center and that the older pupils of these places would attend the upper grades in the Mansfield Center school. The Mansfield Four Corners schools, situated at the north end of the town has been closed and twenty-two pupils have been transferred from that school to Storrs, to which place they are given transportation to the graded schools. For some time the Spring Hill school has been closed and the twenty odd children have been transported to the Mansfield Center school. According to the claim of the parents the small children living in Mansfield Center will have a long walk to the Mansfield Hollow school, while Conantville children attending the upper grades at the Mansfield Center school will meet with many hardships especially during cold weather as their trip will be one of two or three miles and in some cases even longer.

Miss Gladys C. Wheeler, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Charles A. Wheeler, of Storrs, and Captain Caspar R. Crimm, head of the military unit at Storrs Agricultural College were united in marriage at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon at a semi-military wedding, the ceremony being performed at the bride's home by Dr. Henry Denlinger of Storrs. The bride was given in marriage by her father and the ceremony was performed under an arch of ferns and dahlias. Miss Madelyn Wheeler, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. William H. Wheeler, brother of the bride, of eastern Pennsylvania, was best man. The ribbon girls were little Miss Dorothy Wheeler, Elizabeth Backerson, Analou Ferguson and Helen Newton. Master Douglas Newton was flower boy. The bride wore a gown of canton crepe satin, trimmed with lace. Her veil was caught with pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Miss Madelyn Wheeler, as maid-of-honor wore rose colored georgette with lace trimmings and carried a bouquet of asters. The groom was in white dress uniform and Dr. Delinger who officiated wore an academic gown. The wedding music was by Miss Isabell Montieth of Hartford, violinist, and Mrs. H. D. Newton at the piano. The house decorations, arranged by Mr. Hatch and his assistant of the college greenhouses, consisted of palms, maiden hair ferns and dahlias. Flowers were also sent by George H. Fraser, of Wendham. A luncheon and reception followed the nuptial ceremony. The wedding cake was cut by the bride with Captain Crimm's sabre. The bride is a graduate of Windham High school, Willimantic. She attended Russell Sage college at Troy, N. Y. and was graduated from the secretorial department of Simmons college, Boston. For some time she has been a secretary to Storrs college. Her father, Professor Wheeler, has been connected with the agricultural institution for many years. Captain Crimm is of the Fifth Infantry, U. S. army, and has been stationed at Storrs college for two years. He expects to remain there for another term. During the World war he served overseas for two and one-half years, being with the army of occupation in Germany for a time. He was formerly of Indianapolis, and is a graduate of Terre Haute. After a brief wedding journey Captain and Mrs. Crimm will reside at Storrs. Guests at the ceremony and reception numbering 75 came from New York, Bridgeport, Philipsburg, N. J., Chicago, Boston, Providence and Kingston, R. I., Glastonbury, Hartford, Willimantic, Storrs and various other places. The bride received many beautiful gifts.

With a hot contest on for the office of town tax collector, the only real paying job on the ticket, the democratic town caucus this (Monday) evening will, it is expected, become a miniature reproduction of the history making national convention of the party in New York. There will be much speech making if present indications prove true to form. Albert F. Piche, who has been collector for three terms without dangerous opposition, when he strives for renomination will meet with a strong opponent this year in the person of Bert F. More. Both contestants are backed by strong followings which should be responsible for a record turnout of voters at the caucus this evening. Joseph P. Gaudreau, present assessor, who informally announced that he would conditionally run for the office of tax collector, has withdrawn in favor of Mr. Piche and it is understood has wedded his support to the latter. In consideration of Collector Piche's strength as a vote-getter in the past the friends have confidence in his ability to gain the nomination. On the other hand Mr. More is bound to secure the support of a large share of the democrats.

The biggest surprise of over half a decade was sprung in Mansfield Friday night, when the republican caucus nominated T. Arthur Barrows and Hibberd Parker for town school committee, to replace Rev. Leonard Smith and Mrs. A. W. Manchester, whose three year terms expire next month. It is generally believed that the change made this year in the grading of the schools of the town are responsible in a large measure for the sudden retreat of party favorites also that the supervisor of the town schools was partly influential in the change on the ticket.

Charles L. Beach, president of Connecticut Agricultural College was the chairman of the caucus and Sherman Hollister of Storrs was clerk. The ticket as selected follows: Assessor for three years, George M. Clark; board of relief for three years, Albert Anthony; selectmen, Daniel C. Flaherty and Robert W. Gardiner; agent of town deposit fund, L. J. Storrs; grand jurors, W. F. Storrs, F. W. Millard, Albert James W. G. Farrington; collector of taxes, Henry W. Knowlton; constables, George J. Hall, Wayne J. Storrs, James Kerwin, Edward J. Champlin; registrar of voters, F. W. Millard; school committee, T. Arthur Barrows and Hibberd Parker.

Al Mittenholzer, of North Coventry, who spread apprehension for several miles along the Hartford-Willimantic highway in the town of Bolton, Friday afternoon, about 5:30 o'clock by driving his car in a most dangerous manner along the road, has been placed under arrest by Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover. Mittenholzer who was said to be the most intoxicated man ever seen driving, wiped war on automobiles which attempted to pass his Chevrolet touring car. His brother-in-law Thomas Cobell, also of North Coventry, was sober and made futile attempts to take the steering wheel away from his relative. He is now the star witness against Mittenholzer, who was brought before Justice of the Peace James Connors, of the Bolton town court, Sunday forenoon. The man was charged with reckless driving and driving while under influence of liquor. The case was continued until Wednesday evening next at six o'clock. The accused was placed under bonds of $50 which were furnished. The Chevrolet bore the Connecticut markers P-282 which had been removed from a Ford last June. She is not known as yet if the transfer has been recorded with the state motor vehicle department. If this has not been done, there will be grounds for an additional charge. Grand Juror Carl Maine of Bolton prosecuted the case. Mittenholzer's driving Friday afternoon was nothing short of acrobatic and his escape from an accident was miraculous. Mittenholzer turned off into a dirt road a few miles west of Andover and was later tracked and arrested at his home by Sheriff Frink who had received complaints.

The faculty and seniors of The Willimantic State Normal School entertained last week in honor of the incoming juniors. A formal reception was followed by dancing. In the receiving line were Principal and Mrs. George H. Shafer, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Staebner, Miss Harriet Gerould, Miss Miriam Skidmore, Miss Iva Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Noble, Miss Eleanor Lindeman and Miss Rebeca Messenger, president of the class. The committee in charge comprised the chairman of arrangements, Miss Harriet Stone, invitations, Miss Miriam Skidmore, reception; Miss Annie Oates, music; Miss Florence Woodward, refreshments; Miss Dorothy Murdock, decorations.

At Brookline, Mass., Thursday evening a wedding of local interest took place when Miss May Heller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Heller, of Brookline became the bride of Dr. George Rothblat, son of Mrs. Maurice Rothblat of this city. Harry Cohen was best man. Miss Helen Cohen was bridesmaid and Ellis Cohen was usher. All are children of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cohen of this city. Miss Sophie Heller, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Dr. Rothblat is a graduate of Windham High school and the Tufts School of Dentistry. He has practiced in Boston for five years. Others from this city who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Cohen, Miss Helen, Harry and Ellis Cohen, Harry Rothblat, Max and Reuben Rothblat and Miss Bessie Rothblat.

Five hundred dollars as salary in payment of the work of assessor is considered insufficient pay by the present assessor, Joseph F. Gaudreau and he ha made known his intention not to run for re-nomination at the Democratic town caucus this (Monday) evening. The fact that holding the assessorship partially eliminates other sources of revenue makes that position less enticing, according to Assessor Gaudreau.

Delphis Boucher, Jr., was elected president of the senior class of Windham High school at the recent elections. Other officers are Vice- President, Mary Norton; treasurer, Parker Smith; secretary, Grace Iskiyan; faculty advisor, Miss Hyde; representatives to the athletic council, Philip Dodge and Alma Liberty. The class voted $25 to the athletic council and $15 for Lyceum.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Sept. 14.—Miss Margaret Muench, 15, of Norwich, was taken into custody at Ocean Beach, late this afternoon as a runaway, and at the request of relatives of the girl. The girl came to New London a few days ago and obtained lodging accommodations on Montauk avenue. She is a fairly good swimmer and she spent considerable time at Ocean Beach where she attempted two or three long swims, but failed. Saturday, when the girl did not return home, the local police were requested to apprehend her. Policeman James McKenna spied the girl at the shore about 6 o'clock and detained her, until Policewoman Cassidy arrived and took charge of her.

There is but one other candidate, Edward L. Streeter. Haven and Goss were the low candidates at the election held a week ago.

The police this evening received a telephone call from a woman residing at 37 Chappell street, who stated that an attempt was being made to rob her. Naturally the officer departed in disgust.

They were locked up, pending a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Carney and Troski, it is alleged, went to the plant of the Connecticut Power Company, Water street about 1 o'clock, where they found a fellow sleeping off a drunk and robbed him. George F. MacKenzie, paymaster in the employ of Stone and Webster, which concern is having a mammoth gas tank erected on the property, observed Carney and Troski, when the two soldiers rifled the pockets of the drunk. McKenzie communicated with the police and the officers placed the soldiers under arrest and locked the drunk up as a witness. Carney when searched had less than $4 in his possession. Both Carney and Troski had also been drinking.

It is likely that there will be a spirited contest at the polls a week hence when Thomas Gragan and Edward Streeter will be contestants for election to the city council. A week ago Gragan led Streeter, but he did not have a majority of all the votes cast so under the peculiar charter governing the affairs of this city he must go before the people again before he can be chosen to the council. At the election a week ago it is claimed that Mr. Gragan's friends did not turn out and vote. They were apathetic and manifested so little interest in the voting that Mr. Gragan made a very poor showing. It is believed there will be a different interest in the election on Monday, the 22d. Mr. Gragan is a member of the fire department, is foreman of the Allen Hook and Ladder company and has been a member of the council since the inauguration of the city manager form of government. He has been a sort of freelance in that body and has expressed his opinion without fear and expecting no favor. He made some enemies by that course, but he won many friends. Mr. Gragan is not a polished leader and does not appeal to the knickerbocker costume element, but that is said to be his advantage, and he is in the race for the council as the representative of the common people. Mr. Streeter is a reputable citizen a man standing well in the community. He is not known by many and that may be to his disadvantage. But the race should be a hot one. The supporters of both candidates will realize there has been a battle at the polls on the evening of the 22nd.

As the alleged offense was committed outside the jurisdiction of the local police the complaint was turned over to the state police. The car complained of is owned in New Haven.

The body of an unknown man was found floating in the Sound off Clinton, yesterday forenoon and there was nothing upon the man's person, which would tend to establish his identity. An envelope containing $160 and with the names "Fred Olson" and "Alice" on it and the letter "G" on his underclothing were the only marks which may result in the body being identified. Coroner L. A. Smith, of Middlesex county, has communicated with the New London authorities in an endeavor to establish the identity of the man. In the horse-pulling contest of a double team weighing over 2800 lbs. James S. Burdick took first place and Mason Gray second. With single horse, the result was the same. Mr. Gray exhibited the pulling power of a light team.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A bootlegger reading what is to follow would be willing to give nearly his entire profits from three occasional customers to own a machine like the one again. The motor pumper of the fire department equipment. The big machine has just been overhauled, after about five years of service. Given a test it pumped 775 gallons a minute—just think of that!—and did it as smoothly as the day on which the piece of apparatus was delivered here from the builders. It pumped water of course, so the reference to bootleggers may have been unwarranted after all. When the big pumper was delivered here it was guaranteed to deliver 750 gallons a minute. It is doing better than that now, after all the years of service, and the fact is a delight to Chief Engineer A. F. Woodward and all the members of the department who have the operation of the machine in charge and the fire fighting facilities of the borough under their direction.

The stage is set for the town election. Three nickels are in the field. The real battle at the polls is going to be over the naming of Killingly's three selectmen. As usual, the republicans holding their caucus first and standing on their own, have named John A. Gilbert, first selectman and Napoleon P. Gingras, second selectman, to succeed themselves.

Saturday afternoon the democratic and citizens' parties, holding caucuses in the town hall, the citizens as in the case democrats had finished their nominations and adjourned, announced to have brought about a coalition that will mean a real struggle at the polls. Those who shall be on the board of selectmen the coming year.

Candidates of the democratic and citizens' parties are Patrick Riley to retire from the postmastership and a former selectman, Alcott D. Killingly, for many years of the board of selectmen. Citizens' party ticket includes Patrick Riley of Danielson, D. Sayles of East Killingly.

Interest centered from this that Gingras, Riley and Sayles were selected for selectmen. The democrats represented three of them can be elected. Messrs. Gilbert and Gingras they will have to win over the efforts of the democrats and their representatives of the opposition in the battle of ballots. It promises to be little perfunctory affair, may be a little flurry the town school committee.

The coming town election is one to be remembered for with a glow of satisfaction by the friends of the candidates. Thomas J. Walsh, democrat, has all the nominations for tax collector and succeed himself. He Damase Boulais, republican town school committee with the republicans' party nomination himself. Dr. Raymond C. Prisque of Danielson, is honored by the democratic and citizens' nominations for membership on the school committee. Thomas Sullivan, republican, has the endorsement of his party and of the citizens' party to be agent of the town. Edward J. Sullivan, republican nominee for membership on the board of relief and the citizens' party nominee for assessor. That doesn't please Thomas Young. He is a republican and cares about it, so much so that he was talking Saturday night and means to run off the citizens' nomination. One it appears, can be content with political honors.

When the democratic caucus convened in the town hall Saturday afternoon Edward was named as chairman and A. J. Cavanaugh of Danielson secretary. The one contest of the caucus developed over the selectmen. Without Patrick Riley of Danville being named as the party's candidate for selectman Selectman George Gingras of Danielson and Alcott D. Killingly contested for second selectman. The latter won in a vote of 85 to 27. This means the passing of Mr. Alvord from the selectmen's board after seven years of service.

The complete list of nominations of the democratic caucus were: Assessor, Edward F. Aldrich; board of relief, selectmen, Patrick Riley of Danielson, Alcott D. Sayles, Killingly; agent town deposit fund, A. V. Woodworth; auditor, Marguerite Dunn; collector of taxes, James R. Walsh; constables, Thomas Wolfe, George E. Alvord, William A. Graves, Alcott D. Sayles; town school committee, Aldore Lamoureaux, Alfred J. Cavanaugh, James P. Aldrich; school committee, Dr. Raymond C. Prisque, John W. Gallup.

The citizens' caucus was convened immediately after the democratic caucus at the town hall. Thomas Bradford was chairman and A. J. Cavanaugh of Danville clerk. The list of nominations of the caucus was as follows: Assessor, William J. Young; board of relief, Damase Boulais; selectmen, Thomas Bradford, Patrick Riley; agent town deposit fund, F. T. Pearson; auditor, A. M. Thompson; collector of taxes, James R. Walsh; constables, Martin Wolfe, Alcott D. Sayles, Dana W. Shippee and Sabin L. Sayles; registrars, Hiram W. Burton, Frank L. Bennett. Proctor Aldrich; town school committee, Dr. Raymond C. Prisque, Damase Boulais.

The nice little amount of $2427.25 was paid over at the week end to officers and enlisted men of the Service battery, this money representing extra compensation for the camp service they recently performed at Camp Eustis, Va. The privates of the company received $2.15 a day for the 18 days of service they put in, and higher grades of enlisted men and the officers received proportionately higher pay. Captain Armington says that some of the money paid out will go for full civilian clothing for the men. At least that has been the rule in other years.

The body of a man who had registered Saturday under the name of Richard A. Bennett of Detroit, Mich., was found in a Boston hotel. Medical examiners pronounced death due to strychnine poisoning.

Following his arrest early in July Ryan saved the mayor and common council any possible embarrassment by asking for a leave of absence pending the outcome of the charges against him. The leave was granted the patrolman, since which time he has been off duty engaged in other employment. Sunday night he again donned the uniform he had laid aside temporarily and became an active member of the force again.

Mrs. Clemons, nurse at the Day Kimball hospital, is having her vacation and left Saturday to visit relatives in Ogdensburg, N. Y.

The fatalities in the animal and bird kingdoms by the automobile route were added to the latter part of last week when a large blue heron was run over in Woodstock. It is believed that the bird exhausted by a long flight, was unable to get out of the way of the approaching car.

The record heretofore has included partridge, pheasants, a fox, deer, numerous rabbits, chickens, dogs, cats and polecats, as victims of man's progress in getting over the highways quickly. It is unusual for a bird to be killed in daylight. Most of such deaths have been in the night time when glaring headlights have confused the birds on the wing and led them to death by crashing into windshields.

Mrs. Hiram Brown is visiting relatives in North Brookfield. She will go from there to Worcester and will be away the rest of the month.

Mrs. Moses Aldrich, Sawyer district, is entertaining Mrs. Ida Plant, who has been living on School street but who is to move to Worcester, following her visit.

Following a meeting of the citizens' committee having charge of the organization of a new bank for Putnam, held Friday night, nothing was given out as to what transpired at the meeting members of the committee said that they were acting on the advice of H. H. McKee, representative in Putnam of the comptroller of the currency, who met with the committee.

The charter for the Citizens' National bank has not yet been granted, notwithstanding the fact that a dispatch fro ma reliable source, Thursday, was to the effect that the charter would become a reality within two hours. While the citizens' committee confidently believes that the charter will be granted, it is also expected that there will be a proviso that the new national bank take over the sound assets of the old bnak.

While no information as to the result of the checking of the bank commissioners' statement by a committee of the citizens' committee and by a committee of the stockholders' protective committee has been made public, it is believed that in all material parts the bank commissioners' statement has been found correct.

Stories of people who put funds in Gilpatric's hands for investment or for deposit in savings or other institutions or banks and now find that this has not been done, keep coming to light. In most such instances the trustful persons have nothing to show as evidence to substantiate their claims. The total of such claim is not known and in all probability never will be.

There is hardly a conversation among people of this community lasting ten minutes in which the bank or Cashier Gilpatric is not mentioned.

Saturday evening about 7 o'clock a second false alarm for fire was rung in from box 73, Canal street near the power house. Three pieces of fire apparatus responded and on arriving at the box found the door open as they did a week ago Saturday night. Fire Chief George E. Egger and assistants learned that a twelve year old colored boy was seen near the box before the alarm was sounded. The fire officials visited Pierce street and found a colored boy who fitted the description and who stated that the alarm was sounded by an Italian lad, but both maintained innocence.

In respect to Sheriff John R. Wilcox who died suddenly at his home in Kingston, R. I., Wednesday night last, Judge Michael J. Turano in a regular session of the Third District court Friday morning, announced that there would be no court session as a mark of respect to the sheriff of Washington county. Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge, secretary of the Westerly Bar association spoke briefly concerning the late sheriff and asked that all cases be continued, which was granted. One new writ was entered, that of Charles T. Crandall of Groton vs Jonathan Starr of Westerly.

The fair at the Church of the Immaculate Conception was held again Saturday evening, at which time the usual closing features took place. The bazaar was scheduled to be held only on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, but the attendance on the opening night was small, due to the heavy rainstorm. Therefore it was decided to continue it to Saturday night for its closing. A large crowd was in attendance and enjoyed the various forms of entertainment provided.

The phases of the situation most discussed are when he began his irregularities, how he could have covered them up, why they were not discovered sooner by the bank commissioners, how he could have disposed of so much money and how he turned to dishonesty in the first instance. Putnam people, or a majority of them, it is safe to say, still refused to believe, and do not believe, that Gilpatric was or ever could be a vicious man. He had a weakness, in being unable to say "No" when approached for a favor to which many attribute his down fall.

Gilpatric grows stronger in mind and body at the home of his parents. He has no callers aside from members of his family. Even to this day it is not known whether he realizes that he will never see again.

WINDHAM HOUSE ASS'N GRATEFUL TO MRS. E. W. HIGGINS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, Sept. 14.—At a meeting of Windham House association for the Connecticut College for Women, held with Miss Rosamond Danielson, at Putnam Heights, it was announced that the fund now totals $40,000. On account of the present cost of building the erection of the dormitory will be still further delayed. Miss Danielson was re-elected secretary and treasurer of the association, and Miss M. L. Marot, Thompson, first vice president. The chairmen were chosen as follows: Thompson, Miss Florence Wiley; Woodstock, Mrs. Herbert W. Bowen; Pomfret, Mrs. S. B. Overlock. Mrs. J. B. Kent and Mrs. Thomas H. DeCoudres will be in charge of the campaign in Putnam

Mrs. Rienzi Robinson, now of Hudson, N. Y., continues as president, and Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of Norwich as executive secretary.

The meeting was most enthusiastic, especially when it was announced that the funds had been duobled during the year. A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Higgins, for her devotion, sacrifices and energy in behalf of the fund. Later a resolution was formally adopted, expressing appreciation of Mrs. Higgins work, in giving her time, energy and strength to the cause. The meeting was well attended. It was announced that the county canvass had been only partially completed, so that other friends of the college are yet to be heard from. While there are funds for the pulding in several Windham County banks, there are none in the First Natioal bank, Putnam, although Cashier G. Harold Gilpatric was general chairman of the committee.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

TO MY DOG

You greet me with the breaking light
And bound to meet my outstretched hand;
My every step from morn till night,
You watch and seem to understand.
At all such work as dogs can do
I find in you a helper true;
In all my sport, too, you must share
And help to drive away my care.

If other beasts about the place
Get mean and vicious too.
All I must do to teach them grace
Is merely call on you:
I sleep secure when you stand guard—
No foreman dares to cross our yard—
No time so rough but if I call,
You bravely come and dare it all.

Regardless what my fortunes be
And whether men shall scoff or praise,
You're still the same good friend to me
And change not with the changing days.
And every night when I come home—
Sometimes with less of joy than gloom
Beside my gate you waiting stand
To hail me with a welcome grand.

Unfailing friend! To me so true!
While I have shelter, bread and meat,
Beside my fire there's room for you.
Nor shall you want for aught to eat.
Ere human hands bring harm to thee
They first must do away with me.
For since to me you're always true,
I'll be the same good friend to you.

WINTER DAYS

Now comes the graybeard of the North:
The forests bare their rugged breasts
To every wind that wanders forth.
And, in their arms, the lonely nests,
That housed the birdings months ago,
Are egged with flakes of drifted snow.

No more the robin pipes his lay
To greet the flushed advance of morn;
He sings in valleys far away;
His heart is with the south today:
He can not chill among the corn.
For all the hay and corn are down
And garnered; and the withered leaf,
Against the branches bare and brawn.
Rattles; and all the days are brief.

An icy hand is on the land;
The cloudy sky is sad and gray:
But through the misty sorrow streams
Outspreading wide, a golden ray.
And on the brook that cuts the plain
A diamond wonder is aglow.
Fairer than that which, long ago,
De Rohan staked a name to gain.
—Henry Abbey.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKE'S

Animals, especially wild animals, are always of interest to boys and girls. We see domestic animals, like the dog, horse and cattle, every day but it is seldom that we see real wild animals, such as one would expect to meet in the jungle lands, far away. About the only time we see real wild animals is when we go to the circus. It is interesting to watch them pacing up and down their cages. We all knew the elephant, the lion and the tiger when we see one but most of us know very little about their characteristics and their way of living.

The lion is a tawny yellow and is lighter on the underside of the body. Its ears are of a blackish cast and on the tip of the tail is a tuft of black hair. The male lion has a thick shaggy mane of long hair while the female lion or lioness has no mane. The average sized male lion is about four feet in height at the shoulders and is about eleven feet long from the nose or snout to the tip of the tail. The lioness is somewhat smaller than the lion.

Perhaps but few of us know that the elephant lives to be over 100 years old. There are two distinct species or kinds of elephants. One is called the Asiatic elephant and the other the African elephant. They are alike in many characteristics, but they may be distinguished at once by the size of the head and ears. In the Asiatic elephant the head is quite long, the forehead concave while in the African elephant the head is much shorter, the forehead convex and the ears of enormous size. The average elephant is from 14 to 16 feet in height although there have been several elephants found that measured 18 to 20 feet high.

The ivory tusks of the elephant are extremely valuable and great quantities are imported into this country every year. A pair of tusks weighs about 150 pounds.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKE'S

STORY OF THE WINDS

Uncle Jed: Far, far away in the west lived Kabeyun. He was the father of the winds. For himself he kept the west winds. To his son, Wabun, he gave the east wind. Wabun was young and beautiful. He chased the darkness away with his silver arrows. He brought the glad, bright morning. He woke the little Indian children from their sleep. He woke the deer in the forest and the hunters in the village. Everyone loved Wabun. The birds sang gaily to him. The flowers nodded to him. The trees whispered to him, and the rivers sang at his coming.

They all feared Kabibanokka, to whom Kahegun gave the north wind. He lived far to the north. His home was among icebergs and snowdrifts. It was Kabibanokka who painted the trees in autumn. He stained the leaves with red and yellow. He sent the snowflakes flying through the forest. He froze the ponds and lakes and rivers. He drove the birds southward to the home of Shawandasee.

The south wind belonged to Shawandasee. He was fat and lazy. It was he who sent the birds and flowers to the Indians. He sent them melons, and grapes, and tobacco too. Sometimes, in the fall, the air was warm and hazy. Then the Indians said, "Shawandasee is smoking. See the smoke fills the air."

HAS BEEN SICK

Dear Uncle Jed: If I hadn't been sick I would have written you a letter before. But I was quite sick for a long time. I don't know what it was I was sick with but I am getting better now and can go out. I felt funny all over. I feel all right now but I get tired and my mother says I must be careful and not run too much. So today I am sitting in the house and thought I would write you a letter. I think I am going to school this week. Last year I was in the fifth grade and this year I will be in the sixth grade. We are going to have a new teacher, I think.

Right after school closed my father, my mother, and my brother and myself went to Springfield to visit my grandmother and grandpa. We had a dandy time on the Fourth. I had a lot of night fireworks. I wanted a revolver and blank cartridges but pa wouldn't let me have it. He said I might blow my head off or hurt someone else. I had a toy pistol which he got for me and I had a lot of fun with it. But I don't think it was as much fun as a real revolver. Pa says when I get old enough he will buy me a rifle and then I can go out and shoot animals like rabbits and foxes.

I must stop now because it is supper time and I have to go to bed early.

THE CHIPMUNK'S ESCAPE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you what I saw in the woods. I was sitting in the woods one autumn day when I heard a small coy and a rustling amid the branches of a tree a few rods beyond me. Looking thither I saw a chipmunk fall through the air and catch on a limb twenty or more feet from the ground. He appeared to have dropped from near the top of the tree.

I saw in a moment what had happened. The weasel had driven the squirrel from his retreat in the rocks and stones beneath and had pressed him so closely that he had taken refuge in the top of the tree. But weasels can climb trees too, and this one had tracked the frightened chipmunk to the topmost branch, where he had tried to seize him. Then the squirrel let go his hold and fell through the air till he struck the branch just described. Now his blood thirsty enemy was looking for him again, apparently relying entirely upon his sense of smell to guide him to the game. It seemed as if he knew that particular branch his prey was on. In the course of five or six minutes the weasel gave over the search and ran hurriedly down the tree to the ground. The chipmunk remained motionless for a long time. Then he stirred a little as if hope were reviving. Then he looked nervously about him.

Presently he began to move cautiously along the branch. After a few moments delay, he plucked up courage to descend to the ground where I hope no weasl has disturbed him since.

MY TRIP TO WEEKAPAUG

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for quite a long while so I thought I would write and tell you of one of my trips this summer. One morning we left Baltic at ten o'clock. On our way we stopped at my friend's house and asked her and her parents to join us to which they readily consented.

We left her home about quarter of eleven. Our first stop was at Pleasant View which was very pleasant. Our next stop was Atlantic Beach. While there we witnessed a seaplane leave the water. We decided to go to Weekapaug which is just a short distance from Atlantic Beach. Then our parents decided to spend the rest of our time there. We went in swimming for about three hours. Then we had our lunch and as it was getting late we decided to go home. We arrived home at nine o'clock tired but happy.

LIKSS THE WIDE AWAKE LETTERS

Dear Uncle Jed: Vacation is gone and school days are here again. I am very glad to be back to school.

I did not go anywhere for a vacation, but had good times visiting berrying and bathing. I can swim a little so I enjoyed being in the water. The rest of my vacation was spent helping mother. I helped by washing dishes, taking care of my little sister, running errands and doing many other things. I enjoy reading the Wide Awake letters every week, and am glad to be one of the Wide Awakes. I will try to write more often.

HAS ELEVEN DOLLS

Dear Uncle Jed: I saw in the Bulletin last week that children write letters to you and tell you about themselves. I like the names of the books you give them for your letters. They sound quite nice. I like to read a lot. We used to live in New York and I liked it there pretty well but there wasn't any nice yard to play in. There were a lot of different people lived in the house we lived in. I like it here a lot better, but there aren't very many people and when I first came I got lonely. But now I like it first rate and hope we will stay here. It takes quite a long time to get to the city. I always go to the movies when we get there. I like to play ball and sew and once I went fishing with my brother. I have eleven dolls.

GOT LOST BERRYING

Dear Uncle Jed: I think I will write and tell you about the time I got lost berrying. There were three of us and we started out in the morning. We took our lunch with us and went to a big field, through some woods, where there were quite a few blue berries. It was the first time I was ever in the field. We kept together for a little while but pretty soon I looked up and I couldn't see any of the rest. They had gone off to another part of the field, over a hill and I was alone.

I wanted to catch up to them and started out to look for them. But I couldn't find them. Pretty soon I got into another field and then into the woods and didn't know where I was. I was lost. I didn't get very frightened but it took me a long time to find the path and get onto the road again and then I had to ask someone if I was on the right road. They said I was but that I was going the wrong direction. So I turned around and got home all right. The others got home a little while afterwards. They said they had been looking for me and didn't know where I had gone but thought that I had gone home. They were right. I like to read the Wide Awake letters and hope you will print this one. This is my first letter. I will write again when I think of something to tell you.

A PICNIC

Dear Uncle Jed: One Saturday afternoon we went in a couple of boats to a small island in a stream. We took the lunch in the rowboat. We started at half past five and got there at six. We stayed till eight at the island. We sang and went picking flowers. We got home at half past eight tired but happy.

MY VACATION

Dear Uncle Jed: As I had nothing to do this afternoon, I thought I would write and tell you how I am spending my vacation.

My mother is teaching me how to cook, also to bake. I am sending in a recipe, which my mother has taught me how to make, which I hope that some of the Wide Awakes will find very good, if they go, according to the directions.

A layer or loaf cake—2 level cups of flour, 1 level cup of sugar, 2 teaspoons of baking powder, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon full of cream or butter, 1 large cup of milk and 1 tablespoon of vanilla. Take your flour and put in a sieve, add your sugar and baking powder and sift altogether, then add the beaten eggs and cream of butter, then your milk last of all mix to a batter. Then flavor to suit your taste. I take one tablespoon of vanilla.

Hope some of the Wide Awakes will try this recipe, and learn to cook and bake, because they are two important things which we should learn to housekeeping. I will close with greeting to the wide awakes.

LIKES TO LIVE IN HARTFORD

Dear Uncle Jed: I used to live in Norwich but I like living here better though. We moved up here last winter. I didn't like it the day we moved. It was cold and there was ice everywhere. We were going to come up in the automobile but my father said it was too slippery and then it was cold, so we came up in the train, and he brought the machine up two weeks afterwards. I don't live right in the city but a little bit out in the country. I live on a small farm. We have a pretty good garden but my father says it didn't rain enough when the things were growing and some of them got dried up and aren't much good. I went down to the beach three times this summer. Once was on the Fourth of July, the other time was on my birthday in August and then we went again Labor day. We went to Ocean Beach. I used to go to the beach a lot when I lived in Norwich. It is raining here today.

HEALTH RULES

Dear Uncle Jed: I am sending in some health rules that we learned in school. We should obey these rules in order to keep our body vigorous and strong. First we should sleep with our windows open so as to give us fresh air. Second eat milk, vegetables and brown bread. We should not eat too much meat for it's not healthy. Third see the dentist twice a year. Fourth, play often out of doors. Fifth, take a bath daily. Sixth, clean our teeth three times a day, after each meal.

With the best wishes to the Wide Awakes.

HATCHED OUT 10 CHICKENS

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about my chickens. I set some eggs under a hen and my father said, I would have to see if she hatched out ten chickens. They were little bits of things when they first hatched but they have grown quite big now. There are five roosters and five pullets. I am going to sell the eggs they lay this fall and when I get enough money I am going to buy a bicycle. I think as first I would buy a sled but as she will give me one for Christmas so I changed my mind and I am going to buy a bike instead. I want to ride a bike to the beach on.

MYSTIC

To beautify Mystic, the Garden club at its last meeting discussed the question of planting elms, evergreen trees and shrubs, along the road on Lantern Hill. The idea originated and plans were presented by Mrs. W. [illegible] president of the club, and the trees were purchased by the club. One [illegible] of the trees on the road [illegible] and [illegible] will be planted. The new [illegible] is [illegible] by putting the [illegible] in a piping in with large stone walls on either side of the road in front. It is proposed to plant elms along these walls and evergreen trees and shrubs wherever possible, at [illegible] of the road [illegible] road superintendent, Mr. Jeffers will assist in making these changes possible. The new [illegible] of intersection of roads will be much improved by the planting of [illegible] that would not interfere with the view across the streets. In order to carry out this project funds will be needed. The Ladies' Aid society of the Union Baptist church will finance the planting about the church walls and terrace. To help raise the necessary funds for the remainder of the planting the Garden club contemplates a whist and sale under the chairmanship of Mrs. L. E. Kinney. Mrs. L. P. Allen and Mrs. Frank W. Batty are receiving contributions.

Miss Imogene Bacon of South Glastonbury school has followed that vocation for nearly half century and now, at 72, is about ready to retire. Miss Bacon taught in the Groton Heights school at the beginning of her career. She then taught in Mystic, and then on long trips to several years. After she had been teaching for fifteen years she entered Mount Holyoke and studied there until she received her degree, later resuming her work as teacher. A recent issue of a Hartford paper said Miss Bacon still holds her own in a vocation that has undergone many changes since the inception of her teaching career. During recent years she has planned each to see her last, but she is kept in the profession by the continual urging of her superiors. It is said that Miss Bacon taught here at the Mystic Academy about 1868 and for a period of perhaps three years and those who were her pupils at that time recall that she was principal of the Academy at that time.

Hubert Watson was home from Putnam Trade school over the week end.

While some of the cottagers will continue to spend week ends at Lantern Hill, the season there is practically over and most of those who live at a distance have left for their homes.

The cool weather this season has been bad for all summer resorts. The cold spring weather kept many from going to the shore as early as usual and the very cool weather so far this month has a tendency to hurry people home who might feel inclined to linger if the weather were warmer, which is quite a loss to those who depend upon renting houses to summer visitors. A balmy September is most delightful at the beach but the chilly
